practices. An advisory board will oversee the resource center. The members of the advisory board are, at a minimum, the executive directors of the department of public safety, department of corrections, and department of human services, the director of the division of criminal justice, and the director of the division of probation or their designees. The director of the division of criminal justice may appoint additional members to ensure adequate representation and oversight. The division of criminal justice is authorized to accept gifts, grants, and donations for the program. The division will report to the general assembly by July 1, 2014, and every 3 years thereafter on the status of the resource center.

1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2 SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly
3 hereby finds that:

4 (a) Public safety is enhanced by combining evidence-based 5 correctional practices with the science of program implementation to 6 promote pro-social change among offenders;

7 (b) Public safety is enhanced by continuously improving the skills
8 of Colorado's criminal justice professionals and by expanding the state's 9 capacity to provide evidence-based offender supervision, case
10 management, and service practices;

11 (c) The systematic use of implementation science is critical to 12 effect long-term, system-wide, organizational change to promote 13 pro-social change among offenders, reduce victimization, and enhance 14 public safety;

15 (d) Building and sustaining agency implementation capacity is 16 essential to maximizing the use of evidence-based practices;

17 (e) The judicial department and the departments of public safety, 18 corrections, and human services are committed to the use of 19 evidence-based practices and implementation science to most effectively
20 use public safety resources;

1 (f) Research indicates that agencies must invest in the 2 development and use of implementation strategies that are grounded in 3 science and improved through accumulated professional experience;

4 (g) Research shows that client outcomes can be predicted by the 5 quality of the relationship between the professional and the client;

6 (h) Organizational flexibility is required to use research to change
7 strategies, services, and systems when new evidence about best practices 8 emerges over time; and

9 (i) Outcomes are most likely to be improved when multiple 10 agencies work together to enhance cooperation and collaboration and 11 expand knowledge of the criminal justice system.

12 (2) Therefore, the general assembly determines that 13 implementation of a centralized resource center to promote the use of 14 evidence-based correctional practices and the use of implementation 15 science helps build the long-term capacity of each department to develop 16 strategies, services, and systems to benefit the state.
