

Renny Fagan Biography

Renny Fagan has served as the State Director for U.S. Senator Ken Salazar since December 2006. In that capacity, he is responsible for the Senator's Colorado staff and eight offices around the state. These regional offices serve as the Senator's "eyes, ears and voice" in Colorado communities and assist constituents in resolving problems with services provided by the federal government.

From 1999 until 2006, Renny was a Deputy Attorney General in the Colorado Attorney General's Office. During that time, he managed two different sections of attorneys and staff that provided a wide range of legal services to state officials and agencies including the Governor, Treasurer, Secretary of State, health care, public health, human services, labor, higher education and regulatory law.

Renny was a member of Governor Roy Romer's cabinet for six years, serving as the Executive Director of the Colorado Department of Revenue. This large agency collects taxes, licenses drivers, registers motor vehicles, enforces state liquor and gaming laws and operates the Colorado Lottery.

Renny also served as a State Representative in the Colorado General Assembly. Elected three times, his district included part of Colorado Springs, Manitou Springs and Ute Pass. He focused on school finance, land use and air quality issues.

He is a native of Colorado and grew up in the Pikes Peak Region. He earned his undergraduate degree at the University of Chicago and his law degree from Northwestern University.
