The surety bond must be renewed annually at the same time the license is renewed.

Authority To Sell Motor Vehicles

First time applicants may begin selling motor vehicles when the applicant has completed the application process and a Temporary License is issued. The Temporary License is subject to denial pending the results of a background investigation. The application review and investigation process may take several weeks. If an applicant has been the subject of Dealer Board licensing or disciplinary action within the past 5 years, the applicant will not receive a temporary license and may not start licensing or selling until the Board reviews the application and grants a license.

The temporary status is in effect until the license is approved or denied. If the application is approved, a permanent license will be issued. If the application is denied, a Notice of Denial is issued and the applicant must immediately cease selling motor vehicles upon receipt of the Board Order. The Notice of Denial documents explain an applicant's rights to request a formal hearing.

When a motor vehicle salesperson license is issued, it is valid for one year following the month of issuance. For example, if a motor vehicle salesperson license is issued on September 5th, the license is valid for one year and expires on September 30th of the following year. The license is mailed to the employing dealer. The dealer will post the license at their place of business

Proof Of Lawful Presence In U.S.

The applicant must complete the Affidavit DR 4679 to prove lawful presence. The affidavit must be attached to the application and sent to the Auto Industry Division upon completion.

A copy of the applicant's identification provided as proof of lawful presence must be sent to the Auto Industry Division. Please review rules in order to understand what constitutes "Proof of Lawful Presence."

Changing Dealerships

When a salesperson terminates employment with a dealership, the dealer is required to return the salesperson license to the Auto Industry Division. The salesperson must immediately cease selling until employment at another dealership is obtained and proper notification is given to the Auto Industry Division. The applicant must submit the "Change of Employer Notification" form to the Auto Industry Division. The "Change of Employer Notification" form is at the bottom of the salesperson's license.

The form must be filled out completely and signed by both the salesperson and the employing dealer. There is a fee to transfer a license. Mail or hand deliver to the Department of Revenue, Auto Industry Division, 1881 Pierce Street #112, Lakewood, CO 80214, Denver CO 80261-0016.

The new license will be issued for the remaining months of the 12-month license and will display the salesperson's name, the new employing dealer's name, license number and address. The license will be mailed to the new employing dealer.

License Renewal

The license and surety bond expire 12 months after the month of issuance. A renewal application is mailed to the licensed dealer prior to the expiration of the salesperson license. The renewal application must be completed and returned along with the renewal fee and a copy of the new bond or continuation certificate. A courtesy grace period of 30 days is granted after the expiration date. In order to renew a current existing license, the Auto Industry Division must receive the renewal application prior to the license expiration date, after which a late fee will be assessed. A request for a license to be renewed after the expiration date and 30 day grace period requires a new original application, surety bond and fee.

Application Fees

See fee schedule for the current year. Make checks payable to the Colorado Department of Revenue. Licensing fees are subject to change on July 1 of each year.
