

United States Census 1890

A fire in the Federal Commerce Department Building on January 21, 1921 destroyed these records. While many of the census schedules were not fully consumed by the blaze, enough were damaged that Congress felt it necessary to authorize their disposal.