GAMING INDUSTRY BULLETIN

AUGUST 23 APRIL 09, 1994 2010

Starting September 1, 1994, the Colorado Division of Gaming will begin issuing temporary Support license ~~approval letters~~ to those applicants who “walk-in” to the Division’s Denver office with a fully completed Support application and who pass an initial background check. The Division anticipates this process to take about an hour.

~~By receiving this approval letter, the licensee can then go to one of the four Division of Motor Vehicle offices to immediately obtain their Support license badge.~~

This change in Division procedures is not an easing of the State’s standards for issuing Support licenses. The new procedures are structured in such a way that the same background check will be conducted on license applicants. If, during the course of the investigation, the Division discovers the applicant did not fully disclose or lied about an arrest or other pertinent information, the Division will deny the license before it transfers to permanent status.

If during the Division’s initial review of the applicant’s background, an issue is discovered, an approval letter will not be issued that day. If the issue in question is something that can be resolved, the approval will be issued at a latter date.

Please note, the Division will not accept any Support applications, which are not completely filled out. Those persons with incomplete applications will be asked to re-submit after they have obtained all the necessary documentation.

Those applications mailed to the Division or dropped off at the Central City and Cripple Creek offices will be forwarded to the Denver office and, if the necessary information and documentation is included, an approval letter will be mailed to the applicant after the initial background check. This process should take 2 or 3 days.

This is the First Step in a process that will eventually see the Division conduct a complete background check and issue the actual license badge in less than an hour at each Division office.
