SECTION I: COLORADO WAGE LAW AND COLORADO MINIMUM WAGE ORDER NUMBER 28
Colorado employers may pay their employees with checks (or other instruments payable upon demand), cash, paycards, or by direct deposit into the employee’s account at a financial institution.

DIRECT DEPOSIT
Direct deposits can only be made if the employee has voluntarily authorized the deposit and has chosen the financial institution into which the deposit is made.

PAYCARDS
A paycard is defined as an access device that an employee uses to receive his or her payroll funds from his or her employer.

Effective August 5, 2008, an employer may deposit an employee’s wages on a paycard, so long as the employee:

- Is provided free means of access to the entire amount of net pay at least once per pay period;

OR

- May choose to use other means for payment of wages as authorized in subsections 1 and 2 of 8-4-102, C.R.S., such as checks, cash, other instruments payable upon demand, or direct deposit.

PAY PERIODS AND PAYDAY NOTICE, 2(I)

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE.
CONTACT AN ATTORNEY FOR LEGAL ADVICE.

PAY PERIODS
The employer and employee may, by mutual agreement, determine the period of wage and salary payments. In the absence of such agreement, Colorado wage law provides: All wages or compensation shall be due and payable for regular pay periods of no greater duration than one calendar month or thirty days, whichever is longer. Regular paydays must be no later than ten days following the close of each pay period. The pay periods described above do not apply to compensation payments due an employee under a profit-sharing plan, a pension plan, or other similar deferred compensation programs.

It is the policy of the Division of Labor that any changes to either the pay period schedule or to the date of the payday must adhere to the time frames specified above (or such changes must be mutually agreed-upon by both employer and employee). Employers may not make changes that violate the calendar month or thirty-day pay period requirement for regular pay periods, nor may they make changes that violate the ten-day payday requirement, unless the employer and the employee mutually agree on any other alternative period of wage or salary payments.

PAYDAY NOTICE
Every employer must post a notice specifying regular paydays and the time and place of payment. The employer must also include any changes in paydays or time and place of payment as they may occur from time to time.

PAY STATEMENTS
Colorado law requires employers to furnish to the employee an itemized pay statement. The pay statement must be made available to the employee once a month or at the time of payment of wages or compensation. The pay statement must contain the following:

- Gross wages earned (It is the policy of the Division of Labor that gross wages refers to the gross wages for the specific pay statement, not gross wages for the year-to-date)
- All withholdings and deductions
- Net wages earned
- The inclusive dates of the pay period
- The name of the employee or the employee’s social security number
- The name and address of the employer

Termination of Employment by the Employer

When an interruption in the employer-employee relationship by volition of the employer occurs, the wages or compensation for labor or service earned, vested, determinable, and unpaid at the time of such discharge are due and payable immediately, EXCEPT:

- When the employer’s accounting unit, responsible for the drawing of payroll checks, is not regularly scheduled to be operational, then the wages due the separated employee shall be made available to the employee no later than six hours after the start of such employer’s accounting unit’s next regular workday.

- If the accounting unit is located off the work site, the employer shall deliver the check for wages due the separated employee no later than twenty-four hours after the start of such employer’s accounting unit’s next regular workday to one of the following locations selected by the employer: a) the work site, b) the employer’s local office, c) the employee’s last-known mailing address.

Note: It is the policy of the Division of Labor that mailing of wages due to a separated employee is acceptable when the postmark is dated within the specified time periods as described above. For example, an employer with an off-site accounting unit may mail wages due to the separated employee via regular mail as long as the mailing is postmarked no later than twenty-four hours after the start of the accounting unit’s next regular workday.

Permissible Deductions Upon Termination

Deduction for the amount of money or the value of property that the employee failed to properly pay or return to the employer in the case where a terminated employee was entrusted during his or her employment with the collection, disbursement, or handling of such money or property. In this instance the employer shall have 10 calendar days after the termination of employment to audit and adjust the accounts and property value of any items entrusted to the employee before the employee’s wages or compensation shall be paid in accordance with C.R.S. 8-4-109.
TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT BY THE EMPLOYEE

When an employee voluntarily quits or resigns, they are to receive their wages and compensation, due and payable, upon the next regular payday. They may be paid by check, cash, or by direct deposit as on any other payday.

For the purpose of timely payment of wages, it is the policy of the Division of Labor that an employee has quit or resigned in the instance where he or she has not shown up for work as scheduled. Note: this policy solely applies to the Division of Labor and this section of the law; other agencies may differ in their assessment of employment separation.

Colorado wage law permits employers to make specific wage deductions in the following areas.

PERMISSIBLE DEDUCTIONS:

- Deductions required by local, state, or federal law. Examples include, but are not limited to, deductions for taxes, social security, FICA requirements, Medicare, garnishments, or any other court-ordered deductions.

- Deductions by written agreement between the employer and employee. The agreement may be for loans, pay advances, goods or services, and equipment or property. The agreement must be in writing, enforceable, and not in violation of law.

- Deductions necessary to cover the replacement cost of a shortage due to theft by an employee. Colorado law provides the following criteria for deductions related to theft:
  - A report must be filed with the proper law enforcement agency.
  - If criminal charges are not filed against the accused employee within 90 days after the filing of the report, or the accused employee is found not guilty in a court action, or the charges are dismissed, the accused employee shall be entitled to recover any amount wrongfully withheld plus interest.
  - If an employer acts without good faith in making such charges, in addition to the amount wrongfully withheld, the employer could be held liable for three times the amount wrongfully withheld plus attorney’s fees, court costs, and other costs the court finds reasonable.

- Deductions that are authorized by the employee and that can be revoked. Examples include, but are not limited to, deductions for insurance benefits, savings plans, stock purchases, voluntary pension plans, charities, and deposits to financial institutions.

- Deductions for union dues. Must be in writing between the employer and employee.

- Deduction for the amount of money or the value of property that the employee failed to properly pay or return to the employer in the case where a terminated employee was entrusted during his or her employment with the collection, disbursement, or handling of such money or property. In this instance the employer shall have 10 calendar days after the termination of employment to audit and adjust the accounts and property value of any items entrusted to the employee before the employee’s wages or compensation shall be paid in accordance with C.R.S. 8-4-109.
Examples of Impermissible Deductions:

Property Damage
In general, absent a written agreement to the contrary, employers may not deduct from an employee’s wages or compensation for the cost of damage or depreciation to the employer’s property. For example, an employer may not typically deduct the cost of damage to a company car from an employee’s wages, unless an enforceable written agreement existed between the employer and employee that is not in violation of the law.

Fines for Employee Behavior or Actions
In general, employers may not apply fines to an employee’s earned wages or compensation based upon employee behavior or performance. For example, an employer may not typically deduct from the wages of a restaurant waitperson for the cost of a meal in the event that the customer does not pay the bill.

VACATION PAY, 5(I)

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE.
CONTACT AN ATTORNEY FOR LEGAL ADVICE.

VACATION NOT REQUIRED
Colorado wage law does not require that vacation time be given. Colorado wage law does not require paid vacation and does not require that an employer establish a vacation policy.

VACATION POLICY
An employer may establish a vacation policy in writing or by custom and practice. Employees must be made aware of the employer’s policy. Employers and employees must follow established policy unless and until that policy is changed. The Division recommends that employers develop their vacation policy in consultation with legal counsel.

VACATION AS WAGES OR COMPENSATION
Colorado wage law provides that vacation pay, earned in accordance with the terms of any agreement, is classified as wages or compensation. If an employer provides paid vacation for an employee, the employer shall pay upon separation from employment all vacation pay earned and determinable in accordance with the terms of any agreement between the employer and the employee.

GRANTING OF VACATION LEAVE
In general, the granting of vacation leave by an employer for a current employee is made pursuant to the employer’s policy. The Division of Labor does not intervene in disputes involving the scheduling of vacation leave or the denial of use of vacation leave for current employees.

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS, 6(I)

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE.
CONTACT AN ATTORNEY FOR LEGAL ADVICE.

Colorado wage law defines an employee as any person, including a migratory laborer, performing labor or services for the benefit of an employer in which the employer may command when, where, and how much labor or services shall be performed. An individual primarily free from control and direction in the performance of contracted labor or services, and who is customarily engaged in an independent trade, occupation, profession, or business related to the service performed is not an employee.

Independent contractors are not employees as defined in Colorado wage law.

To determine whether a worker is an independent contractor or employee, the relationship between the worker and the business must be examined. The courts, the U.S. Department of Labor, the Internal Revenue Service, the Colorado Division of Employment and Training Unemployment Insurance, and the Colorado Division of Labor may consider many different facts in making this determination, and such facts typically fall into three main categories: behavioral control, financial control, and type of relationship.

As different agencies use different criteria in their determinations, persons inquiring must contact the appropriate agency for their situation, and determinations made by one agency for one specific purpose may not necessarily apply to other agencies and purposes. For example, a determination of employee or independent contractor status for the purpose of unemployment benefits in Colorado is subject to Colorado Revised Statutes 8-70-115, and such a determination is made by the Colorado Division of Employment and Training. Determination of employment status for the purpose of workers’ compensation is described in Colorado Revised Statutes 8-40-202.

The Colorado Division of Labor will evaluate employment status on a case-by-case basis, and the determination will examine facts which may include:

Behavioral Control

Facts that show whether the business has a right to direct and control how the work is performed, through instructions, training, or other means.

Employees are generally told:

- when, where, and how to work
- what tools or equipment to use
- what workers to hire or assist with their work
- where to purchase supplies and services
- what work must be performed by a specific individual
- what order or sequence to follow in performing tasks
FINANCIAL CONTROL
Facts that show whether the business has a right to control the business aspects of the worker’s job.

Financial aspects that may be examined include:
• the extent to which the worker has un-reimbursed expenses
• the extent of the worker’s investment
• the extent to which the worker makes services available to the relevant market
• how the business pays the worker
• the extent to which the worker can realize a profit or loss

TYPE OF RELATIONSHIP
Facts that show the nature of the relationship between the two parties.

Relevant information on the nature of the relationship includes:
• written contracts describing the relationship the parties intended
• whether the worker is provided with employee-type benefits
• the permanency of the relationship
• how integral the services are to the principal activity

SUMMARY
In general, to classify someone as an independent contractor, the employer typically has control over the result of the work performed, whereas the independent contractor exerts control over the means and methods of accomplishing the result.

HOLIDAY PAY
Colorado wage law does not require nor prohibit any paid holidays, and does not require nor prohibit any extra pay for working on holidays. When an employee is paid for a non-work holiday, the holiday hours do not count towards overtime unless actual work was performed on the holiday.

SEVERANCE PAY
Colorado wage law does not require nor prohibit severance pay. Severance pay is a benefit offered by employers at their own discretion. Severance pay is not wages or compensation for the purposes of the Colorado Wage Act.

SICK PAY AND SICK LEAVE
Colorado wage law does not require nor prohibit sick pay or sick leave, or bereavement pay or bereavement leave. Colorado wage law does not require employers to provide time off due to illness or injury. Persons inquiring about family, medical, or sick leave should contact the U.S. Department of Labor as federal law may apply, or contact Colorado Workers’ Compensation or an attorney for additional guidance.

COMPENSATORY TIME
The use of compensatory time for non-exempt employees is not allowed for employers covered under Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28. Compensatory time is defined as paid time off the job which has been earned and accrued by an employee in lieu of the appropriate wage payments for a specified pay period.

Non-exempt employees covered under Colorado Wage Order Number 28 must be paid time and one-half of the regular rate of pay for any work in excess of forty hours per workweek, twelve hours per workday, or twelve consecutive hours without regard to the starting and ending time of the workday (excluding duty free meal periods). See Advisory Bulletin # 2 (I) for information on pay periods and paydays.

TIME CLOCKS, TIMEKEEPING, AND PAY STATEMENTS, 8(I)

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE.
CONTACT AN ATTORNEY FOR LEGAL ADVICE.

---

Time Clocks

Many different timekeeping methods are acceptable for tracking employee work. Employers have discretion in choosing their own method of timekeeping as long as it is complete and accurate. The use of time clocks in the workplace is not required under Colorado wage law. Employees must be compensated for all time worked, regardless of whether time clocks are used in the workplace.

Rounding of Hours Worked

Rounding of hours worked is acceptable, provided that any such arrangement averages out so that the employee is fully compensated for all hours worked. For example, rounding an employee’s starting and ending time to the nearest 5 minutes or the nearest one-tenth of an hour is allowed if the end result is compensation for all hours worked. The rounding must be done in a manner so that the employee does not lose hours worked over a period of time, and the employee benefits from the rounding as often as not. For example, when the employee is 5 minutes early it would be rounded forward to the start time, and when the employee is 5 minutes late it would be rounded back to the start time.

Pay Statements

Colorado wage law requires employers to furnish to the employee an itemized pay statement. The pay statement must be made available to the employee once a month or at the time of payment of wages or compensation. The pay statement must contain the following:

- Gross wages earned (It is the policy of the Division of Labor that gross wages refers to the gross wages for the specific pay statement, not gross wages for the year-to-date)
- All withholdings and deductions
- Net wages earned
- The inclusive dates of the pay period
- The name of the employee or the employee’s social security number
- The name and address of the employer

The Division of Labor refers to the Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 (hereafter referred to as the Wage Order) to answer questions about exempt and non-exempt employees. The Administrative, Executive or Supervisor, Professional, and Outside Salesperson exemption definitions in Section 5 of the Wage Order pertain only to the industries covered by the Wage Order. Employees and employers not covered by the Wage Order as well as those covered by the Wage Order should be aware that they may also be covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act and should contact the United States Department of Labor for additional information.

Exemptions described in this Bulletin are:
- Exemptions from the Wage Order, and
- Exemptions from overtime.

Exemptions from the Wage Order

Section 5 of the Wage Order sets forth, by name, categories of employment by profession or occupation. The following employees or occupations are exempt from all provisions of the Wage Order: administrative, executive/supervisor, professional, outside sales employees, and elected officials and members of their staff. Other exemptions are: companions, casual babysitters, and domestic employees employed by households or family members to perform duties in private residences, property managers, interstate drivers, driver helpers, loaders or mechanics of motor carriers, taxi cab drivers, and bona fide volunteers. Also exempt are: students employed by sororities, fraternities, college clubs, or dormitories, and students employed in a work experience study program and employees working in laundries of charitable institutions which pay no wages to workers and inmates, or patient workers who work in institutional laundries.

Exemption Definitions:

Administrative Employee:
A salaried individual who directly serves the executive, regularly performs duties important to the decision-making process of the executive, and is earning in excess of the equivalent of the minimum wage for all hours worked in a workweek. Said employee regularly exercises independent judgment and discretion in matters of significance and their primary duty is non-manual in nature and directly related to management policies or general business operations.
EXECUTIVE OR SUPERVISOR:
A salaried employee earning in excess of the equivalent of the minimum wage for all hours worked in a workweek. Said employee must supervise the work of at least two full-time employees and have the authority to hire and fire, or to effectively recommend such action. The executive or supervisor must spend a minimum of 50% of the workweek in duties directly related to supervision.

PROFESSIONAL:
A salaried individual, earning in excess of the minimum wage for all hours worked in a workweek, employed in a field of endeavor who has knowledge of an advanced type in a field of science or learning customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study. The professional employee must be employed in the field in which they are trained to be considered a professional employee.

The usual rule is that an employee must be salaried to be exempt. However, doctors, lawyers, teachers, and employees in highly technical computer occupations earning at least $27.63/hour do not have to be paid on a salary basis in order to qualify for exemption as a professional under the Wage Order.

OUTSIDE SALESPERSON:
Any person employed primarily away from the employer’s place of business or enterprise for the purpose of making sales or obtaining orders or contracts for any commodities, articles, goods, real estate, wares, merchandise or services. Such outside sales employee must spend a minimum of 80% of the workweek in activities directly related to their own outside sales.

Note:
Not all salaried employees are exempt. To be exempt under the Wage Order, the employee must meet the criteria for the relevant exemption. If the employee doesn’t meet the criteria, the employee is non-exempt and must be paid for overtime.

EXEMPTIONS FROM OVERTIME
Exemptions from all or part of the overtime requirement may be allowed under the Wage Order for commission sales, the ski industry, and medical transportation. These along with salespersons, parts-persons, and mechanics, who are employed by an automobile dealer are exempt as explained in Section 6 of the Wage Order.

The Following Employees Are Exempt From The Overtime Provisions of The Wage Order:
- Salespersons, parts-persons, and mechanics employed by automobile, truck, or farm implement (retail) dealers: salespersons employed by trailer, aircraft and boat (retail) dealers.
- Commission Sales Exemption: sales employees of retail or service industries paid on a commission basis, provided that 50% of their total earnings in a pay period are derived from commission sales, and their regular rate of pay is at least one and one-half times the minimum wage. This exemption is only applicable for employees of retail or service employers who receive in excess of 75% of their annual dollar volume from retail or service sales.

- Ski Industry Exemption: employees of the ski industry performing duties directly related to ski area operations for downhill skiing or snow boarding, and those employees engaged in providing food and beverage services at on-mountain locations, are exempt from the forty (40) hour overtime requirement of the Wage Order. The daily overtime requirement of one and one-half the regular rate of pay for all hours worked in excess of twelve (12) in a workday shall apply. This partial overtime exemption does not apply to ski area employees performing duties related to lodging.

- Medical Transportation Exemption: employees of the medical transportation industry who are scheduled to work twenty-four (24) hour shifts, are exempt from the twelve (12) hour overtime requirement provided they receive overtime wages for hours worked in excess of forty (40) hours per workweek.

See Advisory Bulletin # 30 (I) for more information on exemptions.

Employees who are covered by Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 may, in certain circumstances, qualify for overtime pay. Advisory Bulletin # 9 (I) describes employees that are exempt from overtime. The information contained in this Bulletin only applies to non-exempt employees covered by the Wage Order.

The minimum wage for all hours worked must be paid in accordance with the Wage Order, the Colorado Constitution, and also federal law. Currently, the federal minimum wage is $7.25 per hour, while the state minimum wage in Colorado is higher at $7.64 per hour.

If an employee is covered by both federal and Colorado minimum wage laws, then the employer must pay the higher $7.64 state minimum wage.

OVERTIME HOURS

Employees shall be paid time and one-half of the regular rate of pay for any work in excess of: (1) forty hours per workweek; (2) twelve hours per workday, or (3) twelve consecutive hours without regard to the starting and ending time of the workday (excluding duty free meal periods), whichever calculation results in the greater payment of wages.

WORKWEEK DEFINITION AND OVERTIME

A workweek is defined as any consecutive seven-day period starting with the same calendar day and hour each week. A workweek is a fixed and recurring period of 168 hours, seven consecutive twenty-four hour periods, and is typically established by the employer. Hours worked in two or more workweeks shall not be averaged for computation of overtime.

REGULAR RATE OF PAY

The regular rate of pay for an employee is used to calculate overtime pay. The regular rate of pay is expressed as a rate per hour, and it is determined by dividing the total remuneration provided to an employee in any workweek by the total numbers of hours actually worked in that workweek.

The regular rate of pay includes all compensation paid to employees including the set hourly rate, shift differential, non-discretionary bonuses, production bonuses, and commissions.

The following are excludable from the regular rate of pay: business expenses, bona fide gifts, discretionary bonuses, employer investment contributions, vacation pay, holiday pay, sick leave, or jury duty.

Important note: The following calculation examples are intended to serve as a general guideline for commonly encountered overtime pay situations. The calculation of regular rate and overtime... pay should be conducted very carefully, and other methods of calculation not described in this Bulletin may be appropriate depending upon the particular circumstances.

SALARIED EMPLOYEE OVERTIME CALCULATION EXAMPLES

Salary Paid Weekly for a Fluctuating Workweek Example
A non-exempt employee receives a $500.00 weekly salary. The employee works 50 hours in one specific week (the hours worked may vary weekly). The overtime computation is:

- Determine the regular rate of pay by dividing the salary ($500.00) by all hours worked in the workweek (50). $500.00 divided by 50 = $10.00/hour. $10.00/hour is the regular rate for that workweek.
- Regular rate wages (straight time) are: 50 hours x $10.00 = $500.00.
- The premium overtime rate equals one-half the regular rate times the number of hours over 40 in a workweek: $10.00 x .5 x 10 hours = $50.00.
- Total wages owed = $500.00 + $50.00 = $550.00

Salary Paid Weekly For a Fixed Workweek Example
A non-exempt employee receives a $500.00 weekly salary for an agreed, fixed workweek of 40 hours. The employee works 43 hours in one week. The overtime calculation is:

- Determine the regular rate of pay by dividing the weekly salary ($500.00) by 40 (the agreed, fixed hours) = $12.50/hour. $12.50/hour is the regular rate.
- Regular rate wages (straight time) for the week are the agreed amount of $500.00 PLUS the three additional hours at $12.50/hour = $537.50.
- The premium overtime rate equals one-half the regular rate times the number of hours over 40 in a workweek: $12.50 x 3 x .5 = $18.75.
- Total wages owed = $537.50 + $18.75 = $556.25

Salary Paid Monthly Example
A non-exempt employee receives a salary of $4335.00 per month. The employee works 50 hours in one week. The overtime computation is:

- Determine the weekly amount earned. Multiply the monthly salary of $4335.00 by 12 (months in a year). $4335.00 x 12 = $52,020.00/year. Divide this result by 52 (weeks in a year) to determine the weekly amount. $52,020.00/52 = $1000.38/week.
- Divide the weekly amount by hours worked to determine the regular rate. $1000.38/50 = $20.00/hour. This is the regular rate (carry out your math to two decimal places).
- Regular rate wages (straight time) are $1000.38.
- The premium overtime rate equals one-half the regular rate times the number of hours over 40 in a workweek: $20.00 x 10 hours x .5 = $100.00.
- Total wages owed for the week are $1000.38 + $100.00 = $1100.38.

PIECE RATE OVERTIME CALCULATION EXAMPLE
When an employee is paid on a piece rate basis (for example, a certain amount is paid for every piece, dozen pieces, or for each service completed), the regular rate of pay is computed by first adding together the total earnings for the workweek from all piece rate work plus any other amount from that week for hours worked, waiting time, etc. This sum is then divided by the total number of hours worked in that week. For example, an employee works 50 hours in a week, earns a total of $500.00 for all piece work completed, and also receives a $100.00 nondiscretionary bonus that week.

- The regular rate of pay for the workweek is all of the earnings divided by the hours worked. $500.00 + $100.00 = $600.00. $600.00/50 = $12.00
- The regular rate wages (straight time) for the workweek are $600.00
- The premium overtime rate equals one-half the regular rate times the number of hours over 40 in a workweek: $12.00 x 10 hours x .5 = $60.00
- Total wages owed for the week are $600.00 + $60.00 = $660.00.

See Advisory Bulletin 18 (I) for further details on piece rate workers.

Tipped Employee Overtime Calculation Examples

(Three Equivalent Methods)

Calculation Assumptions

1. The applicable minimum wage is $7.64 and the tipped minimum wage is $7.64 - $3.02 = $4.62
2. The employee’s tips make up the difference between the tipped minimum wage of $4.62 and the full minimum wage of $7.64.
3. No other payments occurred during the pay period that would have to be included in the regular rate (e.g., non-discretionary bonuses, commissions, etc.). Note that tips are not included in the regular rate for overtime calculation purposes.
4. The employee works 50-hours in the workweek, with 10 hours of overtime owed under the 40-hour overtime criterion; no work in excess of the 12-hour overtime criteria occurred.
5. The rate for overtime hours is based upon the full minimum wage of $7.64, not $4.62.

Example 1: Straight time earnings for all hours worked; half-time OT

- $7.64 x 50 = $382.00 (straight-time earnings for all hours)
- $7.64 x .5 x 10 (OT half-time premium multiplied by number of OT hours) = $38.20
- $38.20 + $420.20 = $420.20 (total owed before applying any tip credit)
- $3.02 x 50 = $151.00 (tip credit which the employer may apply)
- Total owed by the employer to the employee = $420.20 - $151.00 = $269.20

Example 2: Straight time earning for regular hours worked, 1 ½ OT

- $7.64 x 40 = $305.60 (straight-time earnings for regular hours)
- $7.64 x 1.5 x 10 (one and one-half OT premium multiplied by number of OT hours) = $114.60
- $305.60 + $114.60 = $420.20 (total owed before applying any tip credit)
- $3.02 x 50 = $151.00 (tip credit which the employer may apply)
- Total owed by the employer to the employee = $420.20 - $151.00 = $269.20

Example 3: Tip credit applied before calculations

- $4.62 \times 40 = $184.80 (tip credit subtracted first, multiplied by regular hours)
- $7.64 \times 1.5 = $11.46 (one and one-half OT premium based upon full minimum wage)
- $11.46 - $3.02 = $8.44 (OT premium rate after applying the tip credit)
- $8.44 \times 10 = $84.40 (OT premium rate after applying the tip credit multiplied by OT hours)

Total owed by the employer to the employee = $184.80 + $84.40 = $269.20

See Advisory Bulletin #14 (I) for more information on tipped employees.

NON-EXEMPT EMPLOYEE WORKING TWO JOBS

An employee working two non-exempt jobs at different hourly pay rates for the same employer within a specific workweek may be paid overtime using either of the following methods, provided that the employee is notified in advance which method will be used:

- Overtime is paid at time and one-half the regular rate of pay for the job during which the actual overtime occurs.

OR

- Overtime is paid at time and one-half the regular rate, which is computed as a weighted average based upon the rates for each position. In other words, the employee’s regular rate for the workweek is determined by adding together all the wages and compensation for the workweek from both jobs, and then dividing this amount by the total amount of hours worked from both jobs.

For example, in one workweek, a non-exempt employee works 40 hours per week at $15 per hour, and then performs 10 hours of different duties at different times during the workweek at a rate of $10 per hour. The weighted average regular rate of pay for this employee would equal

\frac{(40 \times $15) + (10 \times $10)}{50} = $14 \text{ per hour regular rate.}

Thus, using this calculation method, the employee would be owed overtime at a rate of $14 \times 1.5 = $21 per hour for overtime work.

COLORADO MINIMUM WAGE ORDER NUMBER 28 DEFINITION OF TIME WORKED:

The time during which an employee is subject to the control of the employer, including all the time the employee is suffered or permitted to work whether or not required to do so. Requiring or permitting employees to remain at the place of employment awaiting a decision on a job assignment or when to begin work or to perform clean up or other duties ‘off the clock’ shall be considered time worked and said time must be compensated.

“ENGAGED TO WAIT” OR “WAITING TO BE ENGAGED”

In Skidmore v. Swift & Co. (1944), the United States Supreme Court classified an employee as either “engaged to wait” or “waiting to be engaged”. An employee who is required to stay very close to the workplace in time and distance, and has very little freedom to use the time as their own is “engaged to wait” and the time is classified as work time for compensation purposes. If the employee has only minimal restrictions on the use of their time while on call, and has a fair amount of time to respond to the call, they are “waiting to be engaged” and the on call time is not hours worked for compensation purposes.

There is no one universally accepted test for determining whether on call time should be considered as hours worked. The following factors may be considered in making the determination whether on call time is compensable. All of these factors should be considered in conjunction with other relevant information in making the decision.

- THE GEOGRAPHIC OR RESPONSE TIME LIMITATIONS PLACED ON THE EMPLOYEE. A narrow geographic restriction, or strict time limitations, may be indicative of an employee engaged to wait. For example, requiring an employee to remain close to the workplace, or requiring the employee to respond in 5 minutes, are indications that the employee may have been engaged to wait.

- THE FREQUENCY WITH WHICH THE EMPLOYEE MUST RESPOND TO CALLS WHILE ON CALL. If an employee is required to respond to a call every time he or she is on duty, then the on call duty is more disruptive to nonworking time and is more indicative of an employee engaged to wait.

- THE USE OF A PAGER OR CELL PHONE. The widespread availability of cell phones and pagers has made it less likely that on call time will be considered working time, as the employee is not required to wait near a home phone or other specific location. Merely requiring an employee to carry a cell phone or wear a pager does not, in itself, make the time compensable.
• THE CONSEQUENCES OF FAILING TO RESPOND. Greater flexibility in response to a call increases the likelihood that the on call time is not compensable. For example, if an employee does not have to respond to a call, or only has to respond to a certain percentage of calls, then the time spent on call is less likely to be compensable.

- If the uniform furnished by the employer is plain and washable and does not need or require special care such as ironing, dry cleaning, pressing, etc., the employer need not maintain or pay for cleaning.

The entire deposit shall be returned to the employee when the uniform is returned. The cost of ordinary wear and tear of a uniform or special apparel shall not be deducted from the employee’s wages or deposit.

- Clothing accepted as ordinary street wear and the ordinary white or any light colored plain and washable uniform need not be furnished by the employer. If a special color, make, pattern, logo or material is required, the employer must furnish the uniform.

TIPS, 14(I)

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE.
CONTACT AN ATTORNEY FOR LEGAL ADVICE.

Tipped Employee Definition (Wage Order 28)
Any employee engaged in an occupation in which he or she customarily and regularly receives more than $30.00 a month in tips. Tips include amounts designated by credit card customers on their charge slips.

Tip Credits and Minimum Wage (Wage Order 28)
Employers of tipped employees must pay a cash wage of at least $4.62 per hour if they claim a tip credit against their minimum hourly wage obligation.

If an employee’s tips combined with the employer’s cash wage of at least $4.62 per hour do not equal the minimum hourly wage, the employer must make up the difference in cash wages. It is the policy of the Division of Labor that this rule applies on a weekly basis. The employee’s tips combined with the employer’s $4.62 cash wage must equal the minimum hourly wage when computed over a seven-day workweek in order for the employer to avoid making up any difference.

Tip Pooling Among Employees
According to Colorado wage law, employers may require employees to share or allocate tips and gratuities on a pre-established basis with other employees.

Under Wage Order 28, if the employer requires tipped employees to share their tips with other employees who do not customarily and regularly receive tips (such as management or food preparers), the tip credit towards minimum wage is nullified.

Tip Credit Card Processing Fees
Under Wage Order 28, employer-required deduction of credit card processing fees from tipped employees nullifies the allowable tip credits towards the minimum wage.

Employer Ownership of Tips
Colorado wage law allows for an employer to assert claim to, right of ownership in, or control over tips only if: the employer posts a printed card at least 12 inches by 15 inches in size with letters one-half inch high in a conspicuous location at the place of business. The card must contain a notice to the general public that all tips or gratuities given by the patron are not the property of the employee, but instead belong to the employer.
If the employer does not post a printed card detailing tip ownership as described above, the employer may not exert any control over cash tips designated for an employee.

CREDIT CARD TIP PAYOUT

It is the policy of the Division of Labor that an employer may not withhold the payment of earned credit card tips or tips designated on a check beyond the regular payday while the employer is waiting for reimbursement from the credit card company or bank.

See Advisory Bulletin # 10 (I) for information on the calculation of overtime pay for tipped employees.

For individuals covered under Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28, the following rules apply:

MEAL PERIODS
Employees shall be entitled to an uninterrupted and ‘duty free’ meal period of at least a thirty-minute duration when the scheduled work shift exceeds five consecutive hours of work. The employee must be completely relieved of all duties and permitted to pursue personal activities to qualify as a non-work, uncompensated period of time. When the nature of the business activity or other circumstances exist that makes an uninterrupted meal period impractical, the employee shall be permitted to consume an “on-duty” meal while performing duties. Employees shall be permitted to fully consume a meal of choice “on the job” and be fully compensated for the “on-duty” meal period without any loss of time or compensation.

DEDUCTIONS FOR MEALS
The reasonable cost or fair market value of meals provided to the employee may be used as part of the minimum hourly wage. No profits to the employer may be included in the reasonable cost or fair market value of such meals furnished. The meal must be consumed before deductions are permitted.

REST PERIODS
Every employer shall authorize and permit rest periods, which, insofar as practicable, shall be in the middle of each four-hour work period. A compensated ten-minute rest period for each four hours or major fractions thereof shall be permitted for all employees. Such rest periods shall not be deducted from the employee’s wages. It is not necessary that the employee leave the premises for said rest period.

TIME WORKED
Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 defines time worked as the time during which an employee is subject to the control of an employer, including all the time the employee is suffered or permitted to work whether or not required to do so.

Attendance at Training, Lectures, Meetings, Seminars, and Educational Programs
All such employee activities are generally treated as compensable unless all of the following four conditions are met:

- Attendance is outside of the employee’s regular working hours.
- Attendance is in fact voluntary.
- The course, lecture, meeting, or activity is not directly related to the employee’s job.
- The employee does not perform any productive work during such attendance.

FULL-TIME vs. PART TIME STATUS

Employers are generally given discretion in how many hours an employee is required or allowed to work in a workweek. Colorado wage law does not require employers to designate an employee as full-time or part-time, nor does Colorado wage law require an employer to provide fringe benefits based upon hours worked.

Whether an employee is considered to be full-time or part-time by the employer does not affect the application of Colorado wage law to the employee.

EXCEPTION

In order to qualify for the executive or supervisor exemption from Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28, the executive or supervisor must supervise the work of at least two full-time employees. In this instance (and only for this purpose), the Wage Order defines a full-time employee as an employee who performs work for the benefit of an employer for a minimum of 32 hours per workweek. See Advisory Bulletin # 9 (I) for more information on the executive or supervisor exemption.

Colorado Revised Statutes 8-4-101(8)(a) defines wages or compensation as “all amounts for labor or service performed by employees, whether the amount is fixed or ascertained by the standard of time, task, piece, commission basis, or other method…” (Italics added)

Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 provides the following: “All adult employees and emancipated minors, employed in any of the industries covered herein, whether employed on an hourly, piecework, commission, time, task, or other basis, shall be paid not less than $7.64 per hour…” (Italics added).

PIECE RATE DEFINITION

Piece rate work (also referred to as piece work) may be viewed as work paid for according to the number of units or products completed or produced. Piece rate plans may be determined by one individual’s work, or can also include a group of employees who share compensation based upon group completion of required tasks or products.

Piece rate pay can apply to many situations, and common examples of piece rate pay include:

- A technician paid by the number of telephone lines installed
- A mechanic paid per tune-up completed
- A factory worker paid for each widget assembled

For employees covered under Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28, piece rate pay methods are allowed if the following conditions are met:

- The employee’s total weekly compensation must meet or exceed the minimum wage for all hours during which the employee was subject to the control of the employer, including all the time the employee was suffered or permitted to work, whether or not required to do so, for the entire workweek.

- Overtime pay may be calculated using one of the following two methods:
  - The regular rate of pay is determined on a weekly basis by the amount of pieces completed. As piece rate production may vary per week, the overtime pay rate will vary accordingly. For overtime, in addition to the total weekly earnings, piece workers are entitled to a sum equivalent to one-half the regular rate of pay multiplied by the number of overtime hours worked. Only this additional halftime pay is required, as the employee has already received straight time compensation at piece rates for all hours worked.
Overtime pay is computed at piece rates not less than one and one-half times the piece rates applicable to the same work when performed during non-overtime hours.

See Advisory Bulletin # 10 (I) for more information on piece rate overtime calculations.

LODGING CREDIT TOWARDS MINIMUM WAGE

Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 allows employers to take a lodging credit towards the minimum wage obligation as follows: “The reasonable cost or fair market value for lodging (not to exceed $25.00 per week) furnished by the employer and used by the employee may be considered part of the minimum wage when furnished” (italics added).

LODGING DEDUCTIONS FROM PAYCHECK

Colorado wage law allows paycheck deductions for lodging pursuant to a written agreement between the employer and employee, as long as the agreement is enforceable and not in violation of the law.

TERMINATION OF OCCUPANCY PURSUANT TO A CONTRACT OF EMPLOYMENT

Employees who live on their employer’s premises may not necessarily have the traditional rights of a tenant regarding occupancy status. Once the employment relationship ends, the employee’s license to occupy the premises may be terminated. See Colorado Revised Statutes 8-4-123 for more information on this issue.

For individuals covered under Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28, the following sleep time policies apply:

Where an employee’s tour of duty is 24 hours or longer, up to 8 hours of sleeping time can be excluded from overtime compensation if the following conditions are met:

- An express agreement excluding sleeping time exists
- Adequate sleeping facilities for an uninterrupted night’s sleep are provided
- At least five hours of sleep are possible during the scheduled sleeping periods
- Interruptions to perform duties are considered time worked.

When said employee’s tour of duty is less than 24 hours, periods during which the employee is permitted to sleep are compensable work time, as long as the employee is on duty and must work when required.

COMMISSIONS AS WAGES
Colorado Revised Statutes 8-4-101 and Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 define wages or compensation as “all amounts for labor or service performed by employees, whether the amount is fixed or ascertained by the standard of time, task, piece, commission basis, or other method…No amount is considered to be wages or compensation until such amount is earned, vested, and determinable…” (Italics added).

C.R.S. 8-4-101 additionally defines commissions as wages or compensation when earned for labor or services performed in accordance with the terms of any agreement between an employer and employee.

PAYMENT OF COMMISSIONS UPON SEPARATION FROM EMPLOYMENT
C.R.S. 8-4-109 (1) and C.R.S. 8-4-109 (2) provide the following guidance on payments upon separation from employment:

When an interruption in the employer-employee relationship by volition of the employer occurs, the wages or compensation for labor or service earned, vested, determinable, and unpaid at the time of such discharge is due and payable immediately…Nothing in the section above requires the payment at the time employment is severed of compensation not yet fully earned under the compensation agreement between the employee and employer, whether written or oral.

GENERAL GUIDANCE FROM CASE LAW
(MAY OR MAY NOT APPLY)
Commissions are due at the time they are fully earned. At the time the employment relationship is severed, an employer need not pay, immediately, compensation not yet fully earned under a compensation agreement. But the implication is clear that such wages become immediately due at the time they are fully earned. (Hofer v. Polly Little Realtors, 1975).

If a sale closes after an employee’s termination, a prima facie case for entitlement to commissions is made where the employee has established that he would have been entitled to the commissions had he not been terminated (Schaefer v. Horton-Cavey, 1984).
Draws

Employees working on a commission basis are often provided with a “draw”. A draw may be defined as a fixed payment that is provided to an employee on a regular basis which is intended to be recoverable from future commissions.

Pursuant to an employment agreement, the employer typically may recover the total amount of the draw or portions thereof from future commissions. In the absence of an employment agreement to the contrary, the employer may not recover excess draws or advances on commissions in the instance where the future commissions do not equal the total amount of the draw. For example, if an employee is provided a monthly draw of $2000, and earns $1500 that month in commissions, the employer may not seek to recover the $500 in excess draw payment for that month until total earned commissions meet or exceed total draw payments.

Summary

Commissions, earned in accordance with the terms of any agreement, are viewed as wages or compensation. Upon separation from employment, commissions must be paid at the time they are earned, vested and determinable.

Commission Sales Exemption from Overtime

Colorado Wage Order Number 28 exempts sales employees of retail or service industries paid on a commission basis from its overtime provisions, provided that 50% of their total earnings in a pay period are derived from commission sales, and their regular rate of pay is at least one and one-half times the minimum wage. This exemption is only applicable for employees of retail or service employers who receive in excess of 75% of their annual dollar volume from retail or service sales.

INTERSTATE AND INTRASTATE DRIVERS, 22(I)

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE.
CONTACT AN ATTORNEY FOR LEGAL ADVICE.

INTERSTATE DRIVERS
Interstate drivers (drivers whose work takes them across state lines) are exempt from all of the provisions of Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28. Also exempt from the Wage Order are driver helpers, loaders or mechanics of motor carriers, and taxi cab drivers. Persons inquiring should contact the U.S. Department of Labor, as the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) may apply to employees involved in interstate commerce.

INTRASTATE DRIVERS
Drivers whose work travel is entirely within the State of Colorado are not specifically exempted from the provisions of Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28. Coverage and exemption determinations are made on a case-by-case basis in accordance with the provisions of the Wage Order.

For an intrastate driver to be covered by the Wage Order, the driver’s work must be performed for an employer categorized in one the four covered industries as specified by the Wage Order. See Advisory Bulletins # 9 (I) and # 30 (I) for more information on exemptions from the Wage Order.

DRIVERS AND COLORADO WAGE LAW
Interstate and intrastate drivers may be covered by Colorado wage law; such determinations are to be made in accordance with the provisions of C.R.S. 8-4-101 et seq.

Under Colorado wage law and Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 an employee whose physical disability has been certified by the director to significantly impair such disabled employee’s ability to perform the duties involved in the employment may be paid 15% below the current minimum wage, less any applicable lawful credits, for all hours worked. The employee must therefore presently earn at least $6.15 per hour, less any applicable lawful credits.

Depending upon the specific circumstances, hospitals and hospital employees in Colorado may or may not be covered by the provisions of Colorado wage law and Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28. For a hospital to be covered, the hospital must meet the formal definition of an employer; for a worker to be covered, the worker must meet the formal definition of an employee.

DEFINITION OF AN EMPLOYER

Colorado wage law defines an employer as every person, firm, partnership, association, corporation, migratory field labor contractor or crew leader, receiver, or other officer of court in Colorado, and any agent or officer thereof, of the above mentioned classes, employing any person in Colorado.

EXCLUDED FROM THE DEFINITION OF AN EMPLOYER

Colorado wage law excludes the following from its definition of an employer: The state or its agencies or entities, counties, cities and counties, municipal corporations, quasi-municipal corporations, school districts, and irrigation, reservoir, or drainage conservation companies or districts organized and existing under the laws of Colorado.

DETERMINATION OF HOSPITAL COVERAGE UNDER COLORADO WAGE LAW

Hospitals and hospital employees in Colorado are evaluated on a case-by-case basis to determine if they are covered by Colorado wage law. In general, private for-profit hospitals are covered by Colorado wage law and Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28, whereas state and government-operated hospitals are not covered by Colorado wage law and the Wage Order.

HEALTH AND MEDICAL INDUSTRY: COVERAGE UNDER MINIMUM WAGE ORDER NUMBER 28

Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 includes the health and medical industry as one of the four industries covered by its provisions. The health and medical industry is defined as: Any business or enterprise engaged in providing medical, dental, surgical, or other health services including but not limited to medical and dental offices, hospitals, home health care, hospice care, nursing homes, and mental health centers, and includes any employee who is engaged in the performance of work connected with or incidental to such business or enterprise, including office personnel.

EXEMPT EMPLOYEES WORKING MULTIPLE JOBS
If an employee is exempt from overtime under Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28, then the employer typically has discretion in the amount and type of work they assign the employee.

For example, a salaried executive or supervisor may be required by their employer to occasionally perform duties and tasks that are completely unrelated to their primary role as an executive or supervisor. In such circumstances it is understood that all of the employee's work hours are covered by their salary, as long as the salary is in excess of minimum wage for all of the hours worked in a workweek.

However, if an exempt employee is regularly assigned work that is completely different in nature from their primary duties, or the work is performed in a different location than the primary salaried work, and such work is categorized as a distinct and different job, it may be incumbent upon the employer to pay the employee an hourly wage for the second job which is unrelated to their salary for the primary job. Such a determination for the purposes of wages, compensation, and overtime will be made on a case-by-case basis by the Division of Labor in accordance with all relevant facts and applicable state laws and regulations.

NON-EXEMPT EMPLOYEES WORKING MULTIPLE JOBS
An employee working two non-exempt jobs at different hourly pay rates for the same employer within a specific workweek may be paid overtime using either of the following methods, provided that the employee is notified in advance which method will be used:

- Overtime is paid at time and one-half the regular rate of pay for the job during which the actual overtime occurs.

OR

- Overtime is paid at time and one-half the regular rate, which is computed as a weighted average based upon the rates for each position. In other words, the employee's regular rate for the workweek is determined by adding together all the wages and compensation for the workweek from both jobs, and then dividing this amount by the total amount of hours worked from both jobs.
For example, in one workweek, a non-exempt employee works 40 hours per week at $15 per hour, and then performs 10 hours of different duties at different times during the workweek at a rate of $10 per hour. The weighted average regular rate of pay for this employee would equal \([(40 \times 15) + (10 \times 10)] / 50 = $14\) per hour regular rate. Thus, using this calculation method, the employee would be owed overtime at a rate of $14 \times 1.5 = $21\) per hour for overtime work.

See Advisory Bulletin # 10 (I) for more information on overtime pay.

Employers and employees in Colorado may be covered by either federal wage law, state wage law, both state and federal law, or neither, depending upon the particular circumstances. Whenever employers are subject to both federal and Colorado law, the law providing greater protection for the employee or setting the higher standard shall apply.

FEDERAL WAGE LAW COVERAGE

The Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (FLSA) establishes minimum wage, overtime pay, recordkeeping, and child labor standards affecting full-time and part-time workers in the private sector and in Federal, State, and local governments.

The FLSA applies to employees of covered enterprises as defined by the law, as well as employees individually engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for interstate commerce. Coverage may apply in other circumstances as well.

All questions regarding federal law and the FLSA should be directed to the U.S. Department of Labor at (866) 487-9243.

COLORADO WAGE LAW COVERAGE

In order for individuals in Colorado to be covered by Colorado wage law, the following two conditions must be met:

- The worker must be formally classified as an “employee.” An “employee” means any person, including a migratory laborer, performing labor or services for the benefit of an employer in which the employer may command when, where, and how much labor or services shall be performed. An individual primarily free from control and direction in the performance of contracted labor or services, and who is customarily engaged in an independent trade, occupation, profession, or business related to the service performed is not an employee.

- The employer must meet the formal definition of an “employer” according to statute. “Employer” means every person, firm, partnership, association, corporation, migratory field labor contractor or crew leader, receiver, or other officer of court in Colorado, and any agent or officer thereof, of the above mentioned classes, employing any person in Colorado. The following are not classified as employers under Colorado wage law: the state, its agencies or entities, counties, cities and counties, municipal corporations, quasi-municipal corporations, school districts, and irrigation, reservoir, or drainage conservation companies or districts organized and existing under the laws of Colorado.

Agricultural Industry
Wage Order 28 does not apply to the agricultural industry.

Airline Industry
The Division of Labor does not have any authority over wage claims involving air carriers. Wage disputes involving airlines are typically resolved by either the U.S. Department of Labor or the National Mediation Board. See Advisory Bulletin # 32 (I) for more information.

Bakeries
A bakery that operates on a retail or wholesale basis and prepares and offers food for sale or consumption on or off its premises is covered by the Wage Order. See Wage Order 28, Section 2, Food and Beverage.

Casual Babysitters
Casual babysitters are exempt from all provisions of Wage Order 28 pursuant to Section 5. Individuals who perform day-care on a full time basis must be paid proper minimum wage and overtime premiums.

Commission Sales
Sales employees of retail or service industries paid on a commission basis, provided that 50% of their total earnings in a pay period are derived from commission sales, and their regular rate of pay is at least one and one-half times the minimum wage. This exemption is only applicable for employees of retail or service employers who receive in excess of 75% of their annual dollar volume from retail or service sales. See Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28, Section 6b.

Companion Services
Companions are exempt from all provisions of Wage Order 28 pursuant to Section 5. Companionship services may be generally defined in the following manner: services which provide fellowship, care and protection for a person, who due to advanced age or physical or mental conditions cannot care for his or her own needs. Such services may include meal preparation, bed changing, washing of clothes, and other similar services. The companion performs the service for the aged or infirm person and not generally to other persons.
CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY
Wage Order 28 does not apply to the construction industry.

DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITY COMMUNITY CENTERED BOARDS AND SERVICE AGENCIES
Community Centered Boards and service agencies that are planned, designed, organized, operated, and maintained to provide services to and for individuals with developmental disabilities as defined in C.R.S. 27-10.5-202 are exempt from all provisions of the Wage Order.

Inmates in correctional institutions are exempt from all provisions of Wage Order 28. See Advisory Bulletin # 34 (I) for more information.

INSURANCE INDUSTRY
Wage Order 28 does not apply to the insurance industry.

MANUFACTURING INDUSTRY
Wage Order 28 does not apply to the manufacturing industry.

MEDICAL TRANSPORTATION INDUSTRY

NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
Non-profit organizations are not specifically exempted from Wage Order 28; exemption status is determined in accordance with the provisions of the Wage Order and Colorado wage law.

RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE ORGANIZATIONS
Religious and charitable organizations are not specifically exempted from Wage Order 28; exemption status is determined in accordance with the provisions of the Wage Order and Colorado wage law.
RESIDENTIAL CAMPS
Adult seasonal staff (not year-round employees) of residential camps in Colorado licensed by the Colorado Department of Human Services pursuant to C.R.S. 26-6-101.4 et seq. are exempt from the overtime provisions of Wage Order 28. This overtime exemption only applies to a 16-week season beginning no earlier than May 15th and ending no later than September 15th each year. This exemption is granted subject to the following conditions:

- All allowable credits or other deductions from wages must be identified to the adult seasonal employee in writing.

- Year round employees, full time kitchen staff, or other employees not directly engaged in the supervision of the camp attendees are not exempted from the provisions of Wage Order 28.

- The camps are permitted a credit for the reasonable cost or fair market value for lodging not to exceed $15.00 per day.

Camps in Colorado that do not meet all of the criteria specified in the exemption as described above are evaluated on a case-by-case basis in accordance with all relevant facts and applicable Colorado Laws and Regulations.

RESPITE CARE WORKERS
Respite care workers who provide companion-type services to individuals (not to the general public or not to a facility open to the general public) are exempt from the Wage Order. See also the companions exemption under Wage Order 28.

SKI INDUSTRY
Employees of the ski industry performing duties directly related to ski area operations for downhill skiing or snowboarding, and those employees engaged in providing food and beverage services at on-mountain locations are exempt from the 40-hour overtime requirement under Wage Order 28. The 12-hour overtime requirement remains in effect for such workers. The partial ski industry exemption described above does not apply to ski area employees performing duties related to lodging. See Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28, Section 6c.

VETERINARY MEDICINE
Veterinary medicine is not included under the health and medical industry. Veterinary medicine is not classified within the health and medical industry for the purposes of Wage Order 28. The intent of the Wage Order is to cover the health and medical industry as it applies to humans.

Veterinary workers are exempt from Wage Order 28 when classified as agricultural workers. Veterinarians who spend the majority of their time employed on a farm or other agricultural facility are considered agricultural workers and not covered by Wage Order 28. Veterinary workers are covered by Wage Order 28 when classified under the retail and service category. Veterinarians who provide care for domestic animals or household pets in a clinic or hospital are classified as service workers, and are covered by Wage Order 28.
WESTERN STOCK SHOW ASSOCIATION

The Western Stock Show, presented and operated by the Western Stock Show Association, is exempt from the overtime requirements of Wage Order 28. This conclusion is based upon the fact that the stock show is predominantly a livestock exhibition conducted for educational purposes. The exemption is limited to the several hundred temporary employees of the Western Stock Show Association hired for the annual livestock exhibition, and does not apply to vendors, concessionaires, or contractors who conduct their operations at the Stock Show.

FLEXTIME SCHEDULING

Flextime scheduling may be defined as non-traditional work scheduling that may contain irregular hours of work. Flextime scheduling is permissible under Colorado labor law provided that employees are always compensated appropriately for their regular and overtime hours as required.

One type of unique flextime scheduling involves schedules where an employee has an extra day off every other week. In this instance it is crucial to determine when the workweek actually begins and ends. For example, an extra-day-off schedule may have the employee work nine hours per day Monday through Thursday and four hours Friday Morning. If the employee starts work on Friday morning at 8:00, then at 12:00 noon on Friday the first workweek ends. The second workweek then begins at noon on Friday, with the employee working four more hours on Friday and then nine hours per day on the following Monday through Thursday. This schedule ensures that the employee works only forty hours per week and gets the second Friday off.

See Advisory Bulletin # 10 (I) for more information on overtime pay.

TELECOMMUTING

Telecommuting, or telework, is a work arrangement by which an employee performs job duties from an alternate location that is outside the traditional workplace. Telecommuters are still subject to the control and direction of their employer, and are classified as employees; the fact that a telecommuter does not report to an office is not sufficient to allow the employer to categorize the telecommuter as an independent contractor.

As with more traditional employees, telecommuters must be paid for all of the work they perform. Allowing non-exempt employees to telecommute may raise special issues for the employer. The employer should devise, install, or utilize some method to track employee work in an accurate and timely fashion. If the employer does not use a formal tracking system for time worked (for example, login time on a computer), then the employer may be obligated to pay for all time worked as recorded and submitted by the employee.

See Advisory Bulletin # 6 (I) for more information on independent contractors.

In Leonard v. McMorris (Colo. 2003) the Colorado Supreme Court clarified that Colorado wage law does not impose civil liability on officers and agents of a corporation to pay wages and compensation that the corporation owes under its employment contract with an employee but has failed to pay. The Colorado Supreme Court concluded that the Colorado legislature did not intend to impose personal liability on officers and agents that is equal to the corporation’s liability.

SHOW-UP TIME, 36(I)

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE.
CONTACT AN ATTORNEY FOR LEGAL ADVICE.

Colorado wage law does not require that an employer pay an employee for what is commonly referred to as “show-up time” or “reporting time pay”. Employers are only required to pay employees for actual time worked, services rendered, or the time during which the employee was suffered or permitted to work, whether or not required to do so.

For example, if an hourly employee arrives at work as directed by the employer, and the employer then immediately sends the employee home without the employee performing any work or waiting to perform work, the employer does not have to provide any compensation to the employee. Moreover, employers are not required by Colorado wage law to provide a certain amount of hours of work. For example, if an hourly employee shows up as scheduled for an 8-hour shift, only works for one hour and is then immediately sent home as directed by the employer, the employee is only owed for the one hour of actual work.

However, informal, contractual, or other agreements between the employer and employee may require show-up payment to the employee; persons inquiring should consult with an attorney if such an agreement is believed to exist.

See Advisory Bulletin # 11 (I) for more information regarding on call and waiting time.

Termination of Employment - Employee Leaves Work
An employer shall not terminate an employee who is a volunteer firefighter and who leaves work to respond to an emergency summons, if:

- The employer does not deem the employee to be essential to the operation of the employer’s daily enterprise;

BACKGROUND
The Division of Labor permits the use of the fluctuating workweek method of salary payment as generally described in the federal Fair Labor Standards Act regulations. Although the Colorado Wage Act and Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 do not explicitly address the use of the fluctuating workweek method, it is the enforcement position of the Division that employees in Colorado may be compensated in such a manner under state law, provided that all relevant requirements described below are met.

FLUCTUATING WORKWEEK OVERVIEW
Non-exempt salaried employees in Colorado who are covered by Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 may be paid a fixed salary for a fluctuating workweek provided that their overtime hours are additionally compensated at a rate which is at least half of their regular rate of pay. This method applies to situations where the employee works hours that fluctuate from week to week, and is paid a fixed salary that is intended to cover all hours worked during the workweek. The employee’s regular rate of pay may vary each workweek, and is calculated by dividing the salary (plus any other applicable remuneration) by the actual amount of hours worked during the week. As the salary covers all “straight-time” pay, overtime hours must be paid at only one-half the regular rate.

FLUCTUATING WORKWEEK METHOD REQUIREMENTS (MUST MEET ALL 5)
1. The employee and employer must have a clear mutual understanding that the salary is intended to cover all hours worked (apart from overtime).
2. The employee must receive the entire salary as straight-time pay, regardless of how many hours are worked during the workweek, whether few or many.
3. The amount of the salary must meet or exceed minimum wage for all hours worked.
4. Compensation for all overtime hours worked must be at a rate not less than one-half the employee’s regular rate of pay. Employers may, of course, pay more than the one-half overtime premium requirement for the overtime hours.
5. In accordance with Section 4 of Minimum Wage Order 28, the half-time overtime premium must be paid for any work in excess of (1) forty hours per workweek, (2) twelve hours per workday, or (3) twelve consecutive hours without regard to the starting and ending time of the workday, whichever calculation results in the greater payment of wages.
FLUCTUATING WORKWEEK CALCULATION EXAMPLES

Note: These examples are intended to highlight common issues with the fluctuating workweek method in Colorado; calculations will vary depending upon case-specific factors and other circumstances. All examples assume that the requirements in Section III above are met.

Over 40 hours worked in the workweek

- The employee is promised a weekly salary of $500 for all hours worked.
- The employee works 42 hours in the workweek.
- To determine the employee’s regular rate, divide the salary by the hours worked ($500 / 42 = $11.90). The employee’s regular rate is $11.90 per hour.
- The half-time overtime pay rate is equal to one-half of the regular rate of $11.90 ($11.90 / 2 = $5.95).
- The employee is entitled to the half-time pay multiplied by overtime hours worked ($5.95 X 2 overtime hours worked over 40 = $11.90).
- The employee is owed the salary of $500 plus the overtime premium for the 2 overtime hours ($500 + $11.90 = $511.90).

Over 12 hours worked in a workday

- The employee is promised a weekly salary of $500 for all hours worked.
- The employee works 15 hours on Monday, 10 hours on Tuesday, and 10 hours on Wednesday, for a total of 35 hours during the workweek.
- To determine the employee’s regular rate, divide the salary by the hours worked ($500 / 35 = $14.29). The employee’s regular rate is $14.29 per hour.
- The half-time overtime pay rate is equal to one-half of the regular rate of $14.29 ($14.29 / 2 = $7.15).
- The employee is entitled to the half-time pay multiplied by overtime hours worked ($7.15 X 3 hours of overtime for the 3 hours worked over 12 on Monday = $21.45).
- The employee is owed the salary of $500 plus the overtime premium for the 3 overtime hours ($500 + $21.45 = $521.45).

Over 40 hours in the workweek and over 12 hours on workdays

- The employee is promised a weekly salary of $500 for all hours worked.
- The employee works 15 hours on Monday, 10 hours on Tuesday, and 18 hours on Wednesday, for a total of 43 hours during the workweek.
- To determine the employee’s regular rate, divide the salary by the hours worked ($500 / 43 = $11.63). The employee’s regular rate is $11.63 per hour.
- The half-time overtime pay rate is equal to one-half of the regular rate of $11.63 ($11.63 / 2 = $5.82).
- The employee is entitled to the half-time pay multiplied by overtime hours worked ($5.82 X 9 hours of overtime = $52.38). The 9 hours of overtime is determined by adding the 3 hours over 12 on Monday plus the 6 hours over 12 on Wednesday. Since the employee will receive more overtime using the 12-hour requirement (9 hours) as compared to the 40-hour requirement (only worked 3 hours over 40), the employer must pay for 9 hours total of overtime.
The employee is owed the salary of $500 plus the overtime premium for the 9 overtime hours ($500 + $52.38 = $552.38).

The following section reproduces the text of federal regulations on the fluctuating workweek method. For official text of federal law, and guidance in the application of federal law, you must contact the United States Department of Labor (720-264-3250 or www.dol.gov).

FLSA REGULATION 29 C.F.R. §778.114: FIXED SALARY FOR FLUCTUATING HOURS

(a) An employee employed on a salary basis may have hours of work which fluctuate from week to week and the salary may be paid him pursuant to an understanding with his employer that he will receive such fixed amount as straight time pay for whatever hours he is called upon to work in a workweek, whether few or many. Where there is a clear mutual understanding of the parties that the fixed salary is compensation (apart from overtime premiums) for the hours worked each workweek, whatever their number, rather than for working 40 hours or some other fixed weekly work period, such a salary arrangement is permitted by the Act if the amount of the salary is sufficient to provide compensation to the employee at a rate not less than the applicable minimum wage rate for every hour worked in those workweeks in which the number of hours he works is greatest, and if he receives extra compensation, in addition to such salary, for all overtime hours worked at a rate not less than one-half his regular rate of pay. Since the salary in such a situation is intended to compensate the employee at straight time rates for whatever hours are worked in the workweek, the regular rate of the employee will vary from week to week and is determined by dividing the number of hours worked in the workweek into the amount of the salary to obtain the applicable hourly rate for the week. Payment for overtime hours at one-half such rate in addition to the salary satisfies the overtime pay requirement because such hours have already been compensated at the straight time regular rate, under the salary arrangement.

(b) The application of the principles above stated may be illustrated by the case of an employee whose hours of work do not customarily follow a regular schedule but vary from week to week, whose overtime work is never in excess of 50 hours in a workweek, and whose salary of $250 a week is paid with the understanding that it constitutes his compensation, except for overtime premiums, for whatever hours are worked in the workweek. If during the course of 4 weeks this employee works 40, 44, 50, and 48 hours, his regular hourly rate of pay in each of these weeks is approximately $6.25, $5.68, $5, and $5.21, respectively. Since the employee has already received straight-time compensation on a salary basis for all hours worked, only additional half-time pay is due. For the first week the employee is entitled to be paid $250; for the second week $261.36 ($250 plus 4 hours at $2.84, or 40 hours at $5.68 plus 4 hours at $8.52); for the third week $275 ($250 plus 10 hours at $2.50, or 40 hours at $5 plus 10 hours at $7.50); for the fourth week approximately $270.88 ($250 plus 8 hours at $2.61 or 40 hours at $5.21 plus 8 hours at $7.82).

(c) The “fluctuating workweek” method of overtime payment may not be used unless the salary is sufficiently large to assure that no workweek will be worked in which the employee's average hourly earnings from the salary fall below the minimum hourly wage rate applicable under the Act, and unless the employee clearly understands that the salary covers whatever hours the job may demand in a particular workweek and the employer pays the salary even though the workweek is one in which a full schedule of hours is not worked. Typically, such salaries are paid to employees who do not customarily work a regular schedule of hours and are in amounts agreed on by the parties as adequate straight-time compensation for long workweeks as well as short ones, under the circumstances of the employment as a whole. Where all the legal prerequisites for use of the “fluctuating workweek” method of overtime payment are present, the Act, in requiring that “not less than” the prescribed premium of 50 percent for overtime hours worked be paid, does not prohibit paying more. On the other hand, where all the facts indicate that an employee is being paid for his overtime hours at a rate no greater than that which he receives for non-overtime hours, compliance with the Act cannot be rested on any application of the fluctuating workweek overtime formula.

BACKGROUND
Section 5 of Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 ("Wage Order 28") defines several exemptions, including the Executive or Supervisor Exemption. Among other tests set forth in section 5(b) of Wage Order 28 is the requirement that the “executive or supervisor must spend a minimum of 50% of the workweek in duties directly related to supervision.” The Division of Labor, which is charged with interpreting and enforcing Wage Order 28, has received several inquiries concerning the meaning of the phrase “duties directly related to supervision.” Accordingly, the Division issues the following advisory bulletin setting forth the Division of Labor’s interpretation of that phrase.

DEFINITION OF “DUTIES DIRECTLY RELATED TO SUPERVISION”

MANAGEMENT TIME
An employee is engaged in duties directly related to supervision any time the employee is performing a management function or otherwise engaged in the primary duty of managing the employee’s store, facility, restaurant or office. Examples of management functions include, but are not limited to, interviewing, selecting, and training employees; setting and adjusting their rates of pay and hours of work; directing the work of employees; leading by example; maintaining production or sales records; appraising employees’ productivity or efficiency (whether formally or informally); handling employee complaints and grievances; disciplining employees; planning work; determining the techniques to be used; apportioning work among the employees; determining the type of materials, supplies, machinery, equipment or tools to be used or merchandise to be bought, stocked and sold; controlling the flow and distribution of materials or merchandise and supplies; providing for the safety and security of the employees or the property; planning and controlling the budget; and monitoring or implementing legal compliance measures.

PRIMARY DUTY
Any time for which the employee’s primary duty is the management of their store, facility, restaurant or office is counted as time performing duties directly related to supervision. This includes but is not limited to time spent as manager on duty.

CONCURRENT DUTIES
Time spent performing concurrent duties (some of which are typically considered exempt time and some of which are typically considered non-exempt time) usually counts as time spent engaged in duties directly related to supervision if the decision regarding when to perform the otherwise non-exempt tasks rests with the employee. Generally, exempt executives make the decision regarding when to perform non-exempt duties and remain responsible for the success or failure of business operations under their management while performing the non-exempt work.
In contrast, the non-exempt employee generally is directed by a supervisor to perform the exempt work or performs the exempt work for defined time periods.

For example, an assistant manager in a retail establishment may perform work such as serving customers, cooking food, stocking shelves and cleaning the establishment, but performance of such non-exempt work is considered time spent performing duties directly related to supervision if the assistant manager’s primary duty is management. An assistant manager can supervise employees and serve customers at the same time without losing the exemption. An exempt employee can also simultaneously direct the work of other employees and stock shelves.

TACKING OF EXEMPTIONS

Employees who perform a combination of exempt duties for executive, administrative, professional, and outside sales may qualify for exemption. Time spent in any exempt duty may be considered time spent engaged in duties directly related to supervision. For example, time spent performing administrative functions such as collecting or analyzing information, exercising discretion, performing audits, and formulating or implementing policies may count as time spent engaged in duties directly related to supervision.

CASE BY CASE ANALYSIS

The determination of whether an employee spends 50% or more of the employee’s workweek engaged in duties directly related to supervision is an individualized inquiry that must be analyzed on a case by case basis. The key inquiry is how each individual employee spends his or her actual work time, and whether 50% or more of their time is or is not spent engaged in duties directly related to supervision. Job descriptions and company policies will rarely materially aid this inquiry, because job descriptions and policies are often imperfect predictors of how employees spend their actual work time.

STATE MINIMUM WAGE

Background

Article XVIII, Section 15, of the Colorado Constitution requires the Colorado state minimum wage to be adjusted annually for inflation. This bulletin describes the minimum wage and inflation adjustment process for the new state minimum wage effective January 1, 2012.

2012 Colorado State Minimum Wage

In November of 2011, the Colorado Division of Labor initiated the rulemaking process to implement the new state minimum wage. A public hearing was held at the Division on November 4, 2011, to receive comments regarding the new state minimum wage.

Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 was adopted by the Division on November 8, 2011, and an opinion issued by the Office of the Colorado Attorney General on November 23, 2011, indicated that there was no apparent constitutional or legal deficiency in the form or substance of the rules.

The new inflation adjusted state minimum wage, effective January 1, 2012, is $7.64 per hour and $4.62 per hour for tipped employees. Colorado Minimum Wage Order Number 28 may be found at: www.coloradolaborlaw.gov.

No more than $3.02 per hour in tip income may be used to offset the Colorado minimum wage of tipped employees.

Inflation Adjustment Process

In accordance with the Colorado Constitution, the Colorado minimum wage is adjusted annually for inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index used for Colorado. The inflation adjustment is based on the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers (CPI-U), All Items, for the Denver-Boulder-Greeley combined metropolitan statistical area as published by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS).

The CPI-U increased 3.8 percent from the first half of 2010 to the first half of 2011, which results in the new Colorado minimum wage of $7.64 per hour effective January 1, 2012. The August 18, 2011, BLS press release provides additional details on the Consumer Price Index data used in the minimum wage adjustment.

Subsequent annual Colorado minimum wage calculations will be identical and will compare changes in the CPI-U from the first half of the preceding year with the first half of the current year to calculate a new state minimum wage for the next year.

For example, changes observed in the CPI-U from the first half of 2011 to the first half of 2012 will be used to calculate the new state minimum wage effective January 1, 2013. It is anticipated that data for future state minimum wage adjustments, as provided by the BLS, will be available to the public in mid-August preceding each January adjustment.

Who Must Receive Minimum Wage

The state minimum wage shall be paid to employees who receive the state or federal minimum wage. Article XVIII, Section 15, of the Colorado Constitution has not altered the coverage of employers, or the exemption of certain employees, from state or federal wage and hour laws.

Text of Colorado Constitution, Article XVIII, Section 15

Effective January 1, 2007, Colorado's minimum wage shall be increased to $6.85 per hour and shall be adjusted annually for inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index used for Colorado. This minimum wage shall be paid to employees who receive the state or federal minimum wage. No more than $3.02 per hour in tip income may be used to offset the minimum wage of employees who regularly receive tips.

State Minimum Wage Versus Federal Minimum Wage

If an employee is covered by federal and Colorado state minimum wage laws, then the employer must pay the higher minimum wage. As of January 1, 2012, federal minimum wage remains $7.25 per hour, which is lower than the Colorado State minimum wage of $7.64. Therefore, covered employers in Colorado will have to pay their employees the higher value of $7.64 per hour under Colorado law.

COLORADO STATE TIPPED MINIMUM WAGE VERSUS FEDERAL TIPPED MINIMUM WAGE

If an employee is covered by federal and Colorado state minimum wage laws, then the employer must pay the higher minimum wage for tipped employees. As of January 1, 2012, federal tipped minimum wage remains $2.13 per hour, which is lower than the Colorado tipped minimum wage of $4.62. Therefore, covered employers in Colorado have to pay their employees the higher value of $4.62 per hour under Colorado law. If an employee’s tips combined with the employer’s cash wage of at least $4.62 per hour do not equal the minimum hourly wage, the employer must make up the difference in cash wages.

FEDERAL MINIMUM WAGE

The federal minimum wage is $7.25 per hour effective July 24, 2009. In cases where an employee is subject to both state and federal minimum wage laws, the employee is entitled to the higher minimum wage.

Federal Minimum Wage History

- $7.25 per hour effective July 24, 2009
- $6.55 per hour effective July 24, 2008
- $5.85 per hour effective July 24, 2007

DEFINITION OF EMPLOYMENT-AT-WILL
Colorado follows the legal doctrine of “employment-at-will” which provides that in the absence of a contract to the contrary, neither an employer nor an employee is required to give notice or advance notice of termination or resignation. Additionally, neither an employer nor an employee is required to give a reason for the separation from employment. In Continental Airlines Inc. v. Keenan (1987), the Colorado Supreme Court recognized at-will employment in Colorado, and noted that there may be certain exceptions to the presumption of at-will employment.

BASIS OF EMPLOYMENT-AT-WILL
The general principle behind the concept of employment-at-will is that the doctrine promotes efficiency and flexibility in the employment context. Employment-at-will allows employees to seek out the position best suited for their talents and allows employers to seek out the best employees for their needs.

POTENTIAL EXCEPTIONS TO EMPLOYMENT-AT-WILL
There are many exceptions to employment-at-will, including various exceptions created by the legislature and the courts. While not all-inclusive, listed below are common exceptions to employment-at-will. Persons inquiring should consult with an attorney for guidance.

DISCRIMINATION
An employer may not discriminate in terminating an employee. It is discriminatory to discharge an employee based upon disability, race, creed, color, sex, age, religion, sexual orientation, national origin, and ancestry. Inquiries regarding discrimination should be made to the Colorado Civil Rights Commission (303-894-2997) or the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (303-866-1300).

VIOLATION OF PUBLIC POLICY
An employee cannot be terminated for reasons violating public policy. Examples include discharging an employee for: filing a worker’s compensation claim; bringing or threatening a lawsuit; serving on a jury; engaging in lawful off-duty activities; refusing to commit perjury; whistleblower situations, etc.
CONTRACT LAW

If an employer has an established policy for termination, in a manner that constitutes a contract, whether expressed or implied, the policy must be followed in the same way for each employee covered. Since a company policy can be viewed as creating a contract, an employee seeking to enforce the policy should consult an attorney for advice.

Union contracts typically contain provisions that govern the termination process. Employees covered by such a contract should consult their union representative.

Independent contractors are governed by the terms of their contract. If they are terminated prior to the contract end date, it may be considered a breach of contract and they should consult an attorney.

The phrase “right to work” is often confused with the doctrine of “employment-at-will”. See Advisory Bulletin # 4 (II) for information on employment-at-will.

DEFINITION OF RIGHT TO WORK
The phrase “right to work” is applied to certain state laws which prohibit collective bargaining contracts containing an all-union agreement. Such agreements may also be known as union shop, agency shop, or union security clauses. In most states, collective bargaining agreements may contain a term or clause requiring all members of the bargaining unit to join, or pay agency fees to, the union which represents the bargaining unit. Failure to do so may result in termination. Such a term or clause in a collective bargaining agreement creates the all-union agreement.

In states with a right to work law, such all-union agreements are illegal. Members of the bargaining unit still have the right to join a labor union; however those employees who choose not to join may not be terminated for exercising that choice.

COLORADO HAS A MODIFIED RIGHT TO WORK LAW
Colorado law is unique and provides a specific procedure for the conduct of elections when an all-union agreement is sought. If employees seek to be represented by a union under the National Labor Relations Act, and they wish to bargain for an all-union agreement, at least 75% of employees voting in election must agree to an all-union agreement, or a majority of all the employees eligible to vote must agree to an all-union agreement, whichever is greater. If the vote in favor of the all-union agreement is less than 75%, there can be no all-union agreement in the collective bargaining agreement, just as there would be none in a right to work state. Even if the vote supports the right to bargain for an all-union agreement, Colorado is what is considered an “agency shop” state. Employees operating under an “all-union” agreement must pay union fees, but are not required to be members of the union in order to work for the employer.

The Colorado Department of Labor and Employment conducts the elections required by the statute.

COMPENSATION AND JURY DUTY
All regularly employed trial or grand jurors shall be paid regular wages, but not to exceed fifty dollars per day unless by mutual agreement between the employee and employer, by their employers for the first three days of juror service or any part thereof. Regular employment shall include part-time, temporary, and casual employment if the employment hours may be determined by a schedule, custom, or practice established during the three-month period preceding the juror’s term of service.

JOB PROTECTION AND JURY DUTY
State law protects a juror’s job; an employer shall not threaten, coerce, or discharge an employee for reporting for juror service as summoned. An employer shall make no demands upon any employed juror which will substantially interfere with the effective performance of jury service.

EMPLOYEE PARTICIPATION IN OTHER LEGAL ACTIONS
Employees are not entitled to compensation by their employers for their participation in other unrelated areas of the legal system. For example, an employer does not have to compensate an employee for time spent: serving as a witness in a case, responding to a subpoena, or acting as a plaintiff or defendant in the courts.

Eligible electors that are employees in Colorado are permitted to exercise their voting rights under Colorado law in the following manner:

EMPLOYEE ENTITLEMENT TO VOTE DURING WORK HOURS

Eligible electors entitled to vote at an election shall be entitled to absent themselves for the purpose of voting from any service or employment in which they are engaged or employed on the day of the election for a period of two hours during the time the polls are open (see the exception listed below). Any such absence shall not be sufficient reason for the discharge of any person from service or employment.

Eligible electors, who so absent themselves shall not be liable for any penalty, nor shall any deduction be made from their usual salary or wages, on account of their absence. Eligible electors who are employed and paid by the hour shall receive their regular hourly wage for the period of their absence, not to exceed two hours. Application shall be made for the leave of absence prior to the day of the election. The employer may specify the hours during which the employee may be absent, but the hours shall be at the beginning or end of the work shift, if the employee so requests.

EXCEPTION TO EMPLOYEE ENTITLEMENT TO VOTE DURING WORK HOURS

The above sections do not apply to any person whose hours of employment on the day of the election are such that there are three or more hours between the time of opening and the time of closing of the polls during which the elector is not required to be on the job.

NON-COMPETE AND NONSOLICITATION AGREEMENTS, 8(II)

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE.
CONTACT AN ATTORNEY FOR LEGAL ADVICE.

Non-Compete Agreements
Colorado recognizes a strong public policy protecting the right of its citizens to earn a living. Colorado law forbids the use of non-compete covenants that restrict the right of any person to receive compensation for performance of skilled or unskilled labor for any employer.

It is very important to seek legal counsel on this topic, but generally speaking, there are four specific exceptions where the use of non-compete agreements may be permitted. Non-compete agreements in the following four categories may be enforceable if the agreements are reasonable in purpose, duration, and geographic scope:

- A contract for the purchase or sale of a business.
- A contract to protect trade secrets.
- A contract allowing an employer to recover the expense of educating and training an employee who has served for a period of less than two years.
- A contract that applies to executive and management personnel and officers and employees who constitute professional staff to executive and management personnel.

In Phoenix Capital, Inc. v. Dowell (2007) the Colorado Court of Appeals found that the phrase “professional staff to executive and management personnel” is limited to those persons who, while qualifying as “professionals” and reporting to managers or executives, primarily serve as key members of the manager’s or executive staff in the implementation of management or executive functions. Contact an attorney for more information on this topic.

Non-Solicitation Agreements
Non-solicitation agreements are often used to limit the ability of current and former employees to contact clients for the purpose of soliciting business, or to contact coworkers for the purpose of enticing them to leave their jobs.

All persons inquiring should refer to legal counsel for advice, but generally speaking, non-solicitation agreements may be easier to enforce than non-compete agreements because they do not substantially limit the employee’s ability to earn a living. However, overly broad non-solicitation agreements may risk violating Colorado’s non-compete statute.

Employers are required by law to process many different types of wage withholding orders. Two common wage withholding orders are garnishments and income assignments.

GARNISHMENTS
A garnishment is one method for creditors to collect monies owed from a judgment. More specifically, garnishment is a process that allows for the withholding of the earnings of an employee for payment of a judgment regarding an overdue debt (for example, past due child support).

Federal law, Title III of the Consumer Credit Protection Act, may limit the amount of wages that may be garnished. For more information about the amount garnished or termination related to the garnishment, contact the U.S. Department of Labor at 720-264-3250. Persons inquiring about all other topics related to garnishments should contact the court or agency handling the order.

INCOME ASSIGNMENTS
Income assignments are current and ongoing support obligations for dependents. Deductions from income are used to pay current child support, medical support, past due child support, or spousal maintenance.

It is illegal to refuse to hire, discipline, or discharge an employee because of an income assignment for child support or insurance premiums. Persons inquiring about termination as a result of a garnishment may contact the U.S. Department of Labor at 720-264-3250.

DEDUCTIONS FOR THE COST OF WITHHOLDING EARNINGS
Colorado law allows an employer to extract a processing fee of up to $5.00 per month from the remainder of the employee’s earnings after child support has been already withheld. There is no processing fee permitted for health insurance premium (HIP) withholding.

Persons inquiring about garnishments and income assignments should contact the court or agency that is handling the order.

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE.
CONTACT AN ATTORNEY FOR LEGAL ADVICE.

PERSONNEL FILES
Colorado law does not require access to employee personnel files in the private sector. Personnel records are the property of the employer, and employee access to their own personnel records is typically at the employer’s discretion.

Governmental employees may have rights in certain circumstances to access their personnel files in accordance with federal law. Persons inquiring should consult with the U.S. Department of Labor (866-487-9243) or an attorney for guidance.

ACCESS TO DIVISION OF LABOR RECORDS
The investigative reports, labor claims, and case records of the Colorado Division of Labor are not available for public review. Absent a directive from the Director, the Division of Labor will not provide information to the public on specific employers, employees, or employment-related disputes.

The Division of Labor may gather and distribute general statistical information and data for use by other state departments and the public.

RETENTION OF DIVISION OF LABOR RECORDS
The Division of State Archives and the Department of Labor and Employment have prepared the following general retention and disposition schedules for the Division of Labor that provide the legal authorization to retain and dispose of common records.

Labor Standards Investigative Files
Original investigative files must be retained for 3 years plus current. No active files may be destroyed. Duplicate copies shall be retained until no longer active.

Labor Standards Labor Claims
Original labor claims must be retained for 3 years plus current. Duplicate copies shall be retained until no longer needed.
ACCESS TO CLAIM INFORMATION

Access to specific claim information is granted solely to the claimant, employer, and designated representatives (e.g., attorneys) involved in the dispute. Other interested parties (e.g., spouse, relatives, or friends) must obtain written consent from the claimant or employer in order to obtain access to claim information.

It is the policy of the Division of Labor that Compliance Officer notes (for example, notes in the Division’s eCOMP database system) are protected work product information. Absent an order from the courts or a directive from the Director, the Division will not provide such notes to employers, employees, the public, or other interested parties.

WAGES AS A PREFERRED CLAIM

When the business of any person, corporation, company, or firm is suspended by the action of creditors or put into the hands of a receiver or trustee, the debts owing to laborers, servants, or employees, which have occurred by reason of their labor or employment shall be considered and treated as preferred claims. Such laborers or employees shall be preferred creditors and shall first be paid in full. If there are not sufficient funds to pay them in full, they shall be paid from the proceeds of the sale of the property seized.

STATEMENT OF PREFERRED CLAIM

Any laborer, servant, or employee desiring to enforce his claim for wages under this article shall present a statement under oath showing the amount due, the kind of work for which the wages are due, and when performed to the officer, person, or court charged with the property within twenty days after the seizure thereof on any execution or writ of attachment or within sixty days after same has been placed in the hands of any receiver or trustee, and thereupon it is the duty of the person or court having or receiving such statement to pay the amount of the claim to the person entitled thereto.

The Colorado Division of Labor will investigate disputes where an employee has not been fully compensated in a timely manner for all work performed.

The Colorado Division of Labor does not have the authority to recover expenses (for example, bounced check fees) that are incurred as a result of checks, drafts, or orders that are not paid upon presentment to a bank or other financial institution.

Employees may complete a formal notice of dishonored instrument, which serves to notify the employer that the individual is demanding full payment of the amount of the invalid paycheck. Once the formal notice of dishonored instrument has been delivered, the employer may be liable for three times the amount of the check plus court costs, attorney fees, and actual damages caused by the nonpayment of the paycheck including associated late fees if the employee has not been fully compensated within 15 days of the notice.

See Advisory Bulletins # 1 (I) (methods of payment) and # 2 (I) (pay periods) for additional information.

The mechanics’ lien law is intended to benefit and protect those who supply labor, materials, or services which enhance the value or condition of another’s property.

Mechanics’ liens are used to obtain unpaid wages from land and property owners who have failed to properly pay for work performed.

Individuals who have performed labor for the construction, alteration, improvement, addition to, or repair of a structure may file a mechanics’ lien. Individuals who have added value to a structure by furnishing laborers, machinery, tools, or equipment may also file a mechanics’ lien.

The Division of Labor does not provide assistance in mechanics’ lien disputes. All persons inquiring should consult with an attorney for guidance.

Colorado Revised Statutes 24-34-402.5, commonly referred to as the “smokers’ rights” statute, makes it a discriminatory or unfair employment practice for an employer to terminate the employment of any employee due to that employee’s engaging in any lawful activity off the premises of the employer during nonworking hours, unless such a restriction:

Relates to a bona fide occupational requirement or is reasonably and rationally related to the employment activities and responsibilities of a particular employee or a particular group of employees, rather than to all employees of the employer.

Or:

Is necessary to avoid a conflict of interest with any responsibilities to the employer or the appearance of such a conflict of interest.

WORKER ADJUSTMENT AND RETRAINING NOTIFICATION ACT (WARN)

The following information is reproduced from the United States Department of Labor’s website, www.dol.gov/compliance/laws/comp-warn.htm:

The Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act (WARN) is a (federal) law that protects workers, their families, and communities by requiring most employers with 100 or more employees to provide notification 60 calendar days in advance of plant closings and mass layoffs.

Employees entitled to notice under WARN include managers and supervisors, as well as hourly and salaried workers. WARN requires that notice also be given to employees' representatives, the local chief elected official, and the state dislocated worker unit.

Advance notice gives workers and their families some transition time to adjust to the prospective loss of employment, to seek and obtain other jobs, and, if necessary, to enter skill training or retraining that will allow these workers to compete successfully in the job market.

DOL (United States Department of Labor) has no enforcement role in seeking damages for workers who did not receive adequate notice of a layoff or received no notice at all. However, they can assist workers in finding a new job or learning about training opportunities that are available.

Persons inquiring about WARN should contact the U.S. Department of Labor at 1-877-872-5627. For inquiries concerning the enforcement of WARN, consult with an attorney.

For information concerning layoff transition services, contact Barbara McBride with the Colorado Department of Labor at 303-318-8840 or barbara.mcbride@state.co.us.

If an employee is covered under both Colorado and federal laws, then the employer must follow the law which provides the greater protection to employees.

Workplace Accommodations for Nursing Mothers

Colorado State Law
Effective August 5, 2008, public and private employers who have one or more employees shall provide reasonable unpaid break time or permit an employee to use paid break time, meal time, or both, each day to allow the employee to express breast milk for her nursing child for up to two years after the child’s birth.

Federal Law
The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (“PPACA”) requires that employers provide “reasonable break time for an employee to express breast milk for her nursing child for 1 year after the child’s birth each time such employee has need to express the milk,” effective March 23, 2010.

For information about coverage under federal law, contact the U.S. Department of Labor at 720-264-3250.

Accommodations

Colorado State Law
An employer shall make reasonable efforts to provide a room or other location in close proximity to the work area, other than a toilet stall, where an employee can express breast milk in privacy.

Reasonable efforts means any effort that would not impose an undue hardship on the operation of the employer’s business.

Undue hardship means any action that requires significant difficulty or expense when considered in relation to factors such as the size of the business, the financial resources of the business, or the nature and structure of its operation, including consideration of the special circumstances of public safety.

Federal Law
The location provided must be “a place, other than a bathroom, that is shielded from view and free from intrusion from coworkers and the public, which may be used by an employee to express breast milk.”
COVERAGE AND ENFORCEMENT

Colorado State Law
§ 8-13.5-101, C.R.S., applies to all public and private employers employing one or more employees in the state.

Before an employee may seek litigation for a violation of this section, there shall be nonbinding mediation between the employer and the employee. Persons inquiring may need to contact an attorney for legal advice.

Federal Law
Only employees who are not exempt from the overtime pay requirements of the Fair Labor Standards Act (“FLSA”) are entitled to breaks to express milk.

An employer that employs less than 50 employees may not be subject to the FLSA break time requirements, if such requirements would impose an undue hardship by causing the employer significant difficulty or expense when considered in relation to the size, financial resources, nature, or structure of the employer's business.

Persons inquiring about federal break time requirements should contact the U.S. Department of at 720-264-3250.

GENETIC INFORMATION NONDISCRIMINATION ACT OF 2008 (GINA), 34(II)

THE COLORADO DIVISION OF LABOR DOES NOT GIVE LEGAL ADVICE. PERSONS INQUIRING SHOULD BE ADVISED TO SEEK LEGAL COUNSEL.

The following information is courtesy of the National Human Genome Research Institute website, located at: http://www.genome.gov/:

May 21 2008 — The President has signed into law the Genetic Information Nondiscrimination Act (GINA) that will protect Americans against discrimination based on their genetic information when it comes to health insurance and employment.

Regulations interpreting the law are currently being drafted and will be available within 12 months (by May 2009).

The health insurance provisions of GINA take effect in May 2009, while the employment provisions take effect six months later in November 2009.

In the employment context, GINA:

Prohibits employers from using a person’s genetic information in making employment decisions such as hiring, firing, job assignments, or any other terms of employment.

Prohibits employers from requesting, requiring, or purchasing genetic information about a person or his or her family members.

The following information is reproduced from the United States Department of Labor’s website located at: http://www.dol.gov/ebsa/compliance_assistance.html:

The Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) is a federal law that sets minimum standards for retirement and health benefit plans in private industry. ERISA does not require any employer to establish a plan. It only requires that those who establish plans must meet certain minimum standards.

ERISA covers retirement, health and other welfare benefit plans (e.g., life, disability and apprenticeship plans). Among other things, ERISA provides that those individuals who manage plans (and other fiduciaries) must meet certain standards of conduct. The law also contains detailed provisions for reporting to the government and disclosure to participants. There also are provisions aimed at assuring that plan funds are protected and that participants who qualify receive their benefits.

ERISA has also been expanded to include new health laws. The Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (COBRA) amended ERISA to provide for the continuation of health care coverage for employees and their beneficiaries (for a limited period of time) if certain events would otherwise result in a reduction in benefits. The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) amended ERISA to make health care coverage more portable and secure for employees.

Persons inquiring about the act should contact the U.S. DOL at 1-866-487-9243 for more information.

PARENTAL INVOLVEMENT IN K-12 EDUCATION ACT OVERVIEW
Effective August 5, 2009, public and private Colorado employers who have at least 50 employees shall provide unpaid leave to non-supervisory and non-executive employees for the purpose of attending parent-teacher conferences or other academic activities. An employer may limit the ability of an employee to take leave in certain situations. The employer and employee may also agree to allow the employee to take paid leave and then make up the work time in the same week. The leave is limited to 6 hours per month and 18 hours per academic year.

EMPLOYER COVERAGE
The law applies to employers who are defined as such in the federal Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 (“FMLA”), as amended. Therefore, in general, the law applies to employers who employed 50 or more employees in 20 or more workweeks in the current or preceding calendar year.

EMPLOYEE COVERAGE
Employees covered by the law are defined as any person working for another for hire in the state of Colorado in a non-executive or non-supervisory capacity who is the parent or legal guardian of a child enrolled in a public or private school or in a nonpublic home-based educational program pursuant to section 22-33-104.5, C.R.S., in Colorado in any grade from kindergarten through twelfth grade.

Independent contractors, domestic servants employed in and about private homes, seasonal workers, and farm and ranch labor are not covered by the law.

PERMISSIBLE ACADEMIC LEAVE
Academic activities which qualify for leave under the law include the following meetings or conferences regarding the employee's child or any child for whom the employee has primary legal responsibility: parent-teacher conferences, or meetings related to special education services (as defined in § 22-20-103, C.R.S.), responses to intervention (as defined in § 22-2-133(4)(b), C.R.S.), dropout prevention, attendance, truancy, or disciplinary issues.

LEAVE TIME
Employees are entitled to take up to 6 hours of leave in any 1-month period, with a maximum of 18 hours in any academic year, for the purpose of attending an academic activity for or with the employee's child. In the alternative, an employer and employee may agree to an arrangement... allowing the employee to take paid leave to attend an academic activity and to work the amount of hours of paid leave taken within the same work week.

An employer may require that the leave be taken in no longer than three-hour increments. Employees who work part-time are entitled to a prorated amount of leave based upon the percent of a full-time schedule which the employee works.

REQUESTING LEAVE

An employer may require that the employee provide written verification from the school or school district of the academic activity. In order to take leave under the law, an employee shall provide the employer with notice of the need for leave at least one calendar week in advance of the academic activity, and the notice shall include the written verification if required by the employer.

In the case of an emergency where the employee is not aware of the need for the leave one calendar week in advance, the employee shall provide the employer with notice of the leave as soon as possible once he or she becomes aware of the need for the leave and shall provide the employer with written verification upon return to work.

LIMITATIONS ON LEAVE

An employer may limit the ability of an employee to take leave pursuant to the law in cases of emergency or other situations that may endanger a person's health or safety or in a situation where the absence of the employee would result in a halt of service or production. An employer may require that the leave be taken in no longer than three-hour increments and that the employee provide written verification from the school or school district of the academic activity.

DISPUTES ON THE LAW

The law does not provide for State governmental assistance or intervention regarding disputes involving the law. Contact a private attorney for assistance.

REPEAL OF THE LAW

The law is set to expire on September 1, 2015.

In addition to reviewing the restrictions under the CYEOA, the restrictions under the FLSA should be reviewed. When both federal and state laws apply, the more stringent standard must be observed. Motor Vehicle Operation
The Colorado Youth Employment Opportunity Act provides that any minor sixteen years of age or older shall be permitted employment in any occupation which involves the use of a motor vehicle if the minor is licensed to operate the motor vehicle for such purpose pursuant to Colorado Revised Statutes, Title 42, Article 2. However, such motor vehicle use is subject to the work hour and hazardous occupation limitations as described in the CYEOA and Advisory Bulletins 7 (III) and 4 (III). In addition, Colorado law provides the following restrictions on minor drivers (See Colorado Revised Statutes 42-2-101 et seq.):

No person under the age of eighteen years shall drive any motor vehicle used to transport explosives or inflammable material or any motor vehicle used as a school bus for the transportation of pupils to or from school. No person under the age of eighteen years shall drive a motor vehicle used as a commercial, private, or common carrier of persons or property unless such person has experience in operating motor vehicles and has been examined on such person’s qualifications in operating such vehicles. The examination shall include safety regulations of commodity hauling, and the driver shall be licensed as a driver or a minor driver who is eighteen years of age or older.

No person under seventeen years of age shall drive any motor vehicle between the hours of 12 midnight and 5 a.m. unless accompanied by a parent, guardian, or other responsible adult as referenced in 42-2-108 or unless driving to the person’s place of employment or from the person’s place of employment to his or her residence. A person who is under seventeen years of age and who is driving to the person’s place of employment or from the person’s place of employment to his or her residence between the hours of 12 midnight and 5 a.m. shall have in his or her possession, in addition to a valid minor driver’s license, a statement signed by his or her employer or parent, guardian, or other responsible adult stating the time that such person arrives at and leaves his or her place of employment. This curfew is not applicable in a city, county, or city and county that has enacted its own curfew.
All persons inquiring about motor vehicle operation and minors must contact the U.S. Department of Labor at (866) 487-9243 for information on federal law and additional restrictions that may apply.

The retail and service industry offers goods or services that will not be made available for resale. It also includes amusement and recreation, public accommodations, banks, credit unions, savings and loans, and includes any employee who is engaged in the performance of work connected with or incidental to such business or enterprise, including office personnel.

Commercial support service also includes temporary help firms which provide employees to any business or enterprise covered by this wage order. Any employee, including office personnel, engaged in the performance of work connected with or incidental to such business or enterprise, is covered by the provisions of this wage order.

(C) Food and Beverage: any business or enterprise that prepares and offers for sale, food or beverages for consumption either on or off the premises. Such business or enterprise includes but is not limited to: restaurants, snack bars, drinking establishments, catering services, fast-food businesses, country clubs and any other business or establishment required to have a food or liquor license or permit, and includes any employee who is engaged in the performance of work connected with or incidental to such business or enterprise, including office personnel.

(D) Health and Medical: any business or enterprise engaged in providing medical, dental, surgical or other health services including but not limited to: medical and dental offices, hospitals, home health care, hospice care, nursing homes, and mental health centers, and includes any employee who is engaged in the performance of work connected with or incidental to such business or enterprise, including office personnel.

Director: the director of the division of labor.

Division: the division of labor in the Colorado Department of Labor and Employment.

Emancipated Minor: any individual less than eighteen years of age who:

a) has the sole or primary responsibility for his or her own support.

b) is married and living away from parents or guardian.

c) is able to show that his or her well-being is substantially dependent upon being gainfully employed.

Emergency: an unpredictable or unavoidable occurrence at unscheduled intervals requiring immediate action with regard to the employment of minors in overtime situations.

Employee: any person performing labor or services for the benefit of an employer in which the employer may command when, where, and how much labor or services shall be performed. For the purpose of this order, an individual primarily free from control and direction in the performance of contracted labor or services, and who is customarily engaged in an independent trade, occupation, profession, or business related to the service performed is not an employee.

Employer: every person, firm, partnership, association, corporation, receiver, or other officer of court in Colorado, and any agent or officer thereof, of the above-mentioned classes, employing any person in Colorado, except that the provisions of this order shall not apply to state, federal and municipal governments or political sub-divisions thereof, including; cities, counties, municipal corporations, quasi-municipal corporations, school districts, and irrigation, reservoir, or drainage conservation companies or special districts organized and existing under the laws of Colorado.

Full Time Employee: for the purpose of the exemption described in section 5(b) of this wage order, a full time employee is one who performs work for the benefit of an employer for a minimum of 32 hours per work week.

Regular Rate of Pay: the regular rate of pay actually paid to employees for a standard, non-overtime workweek. The regular rate of pay shall include all compensation paid to employees including the set hourly rate, shift differential, minimum wage tip credit, non-discretionary bonuses, production bonuses, and commissions used for the purpose of calculating the overtime hourly rate for non-exempt employees. Business expenses, bonafide gifts, discretionary bonuses, employer investment contributions, vacation pay, holiday pay, sick leave, jury duty, or other pay for non-work hours may be excluded from the regular rate of pay.
Time Worked: the time during which an employee is subject to the control of an employer, including all the time the employee is suffered or permitted to work whether or not required to do so. Requiring or permitting employees to remain at the place of employment awaiting a decision on job assignment or when to begin work or to perform clean up or other duties “off the clock” shall be considered time worked and said time must be compensated.

a) Travel Time: all travel time spent at the control or direction of an employer, excluding normal home to work travel, shall be considered as time worked.

b) Sleep Time: where an employee’s tour of duty is 24 hours or longer, up to 8 hours of sleeping time can be excluded from overtime compensation, if: (1) an express agreement excluding sleeping time exists; and (2) adequate sleeping facilities for uninterrupted night’s sleep are provided; and (3) at least five hours of sleep are possible during the scheduled sleeping periods; and (4) interruptions to perform duties are considered time worked. When said employee’s tour of duty is less than 24 hours, periods during which the employee is permitted to sleep are compensable work time, as long as the employee is on duty and must work when required. Only actual sleep time may be excluded up to a maximum of eight (8) hours per work day. When work related interruptions prevent five (5) hours of sleep, the employee shall be compensated for the entire work day.

Tipped Employee: any employee engaged in an occupation in which he or she customarily and regularly receives more than $30.00 a month in tips. Tips include amounts designated as a “tip” by credit card customers on their charge slips. Nothing herein contained shall prevent an employer covered hereby from requiring employees to share or allocate such tips or gratuities on a pre-established basis among other employees of said business who customarily and regularly receive tips. Employer-required sharing of tips with employees who do not customarily and regularly receive tips, such as management or food preparers, or deduction of credit card processing fees from tipped employees, shall nullify allowable tip credits towards the minimum wage authorized in section 3(c).

Wages or Compensation: all amounts due employees for labor or service; whether the amount is fixed or ascertained by the standard of time, task, piece, commission basis, or other method of calculating the same, or whether the labor or service is performed under contract, subcontract, partnership, subpartnership, station plan, or other agreement, provided that the labor or service is performed personally by the person demanding payment.

Workday: any consecutive twenty-four (24) hour period starting with the same hour each day and the same hour as the beginning of the workweek. The workday is set by the employer and may accommodate flexible work shift scheduling.

Work Shift: the hours an employee is normally scheduled to work within a work day.

Workweek: any consecutive seven (7) day period starting with the same calendar day and hour each week. A workweek is a fixed and recurring period of 168 hours, seven (7) consecutive twenty-four (24) hour periods.

3. Minimum Wage and Allowable Credits:

Minimum Wage: all adult employees and emancipated minors, employed in any of the industries covered herein, whether employed on an hourly, piecework, commission, time, task, or other basis, shall be paid not less than $7.64 effective January 1, 2012, less any applicable lawful credits for all hours worked.

Allowable Credits: the only allowable credits that may be taken by an employer toward the minimum wage are as follows:

a) Lodging: the reasonable cost or fair market value for lodging (not to exceed $25.00 per week) furnished by the employer and used by the employee may be considered part of the minimum wage when furnished.

b) Meals: the reasonable cost or fair market value of meals provided to the employee may be used as part of the minimum hourly wage. No profits to the employer may be included in the reasonable cost or fair market value of such meals furnished. The meal must be consumed before deductions are permitted.

c) Tips: employers of “tipped employees” must pay a cash wage of at least $4.62 per hour if they claim a tip credit against their minimum hourly wage obligation. If an employee’s tips combined with the employer’s cash wage of at least $4.62 per hour do not equal the minimum hourly wage, the employer must make up the difference in cash wages.

Exception: employees whose physical disability has been certified by the director to significantly impair such disabled employee’s ability to perform the duties involved in the employment, and un-emancipated minors under 18 years of age, may be paid 15% below the current minimum wage less any applicable lawful credits, for all hours worked.

4. Overtime Hours:

Overtime Rate: employees shall be paid time and one-half of the regular rate of pay for any work in excess of: (1) forty (40) hours per workweek; (2) twelve (12) hours per workday, or (3) twelve (12) consecutive hours without regard to the starting and ending time of the workday (excluding duty free meal periods), whichever calculation results in the greater payment of wages. Hours worked in two or more workweeks shall not be averaged for computation of overtime. Performance of work in two or more positions at different pay rates for the same employer shall be computed at the overtime rate based on the regular rate of pay for the position in which the overtime occurs, or at a weighted average of the rates for each position, as provided in the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Note: the requirement to pay overtime for work in excess of twelve (12) consecutive hours will not alter the employee’s established workday or workweek, as previously defined.

Exception: in the event of a bonafide emergency situation, an employer may require minors, subject to the Colorado youth employment opportunity act, to work in excess of eight (8) hours in a twenty-four (24) hour period or in excess of forty (40) hours per week. Said minors shall be compensated at time and one-half the regular rate of pay for all hours worked in excess of eight (8) hours in any twenty-four (24) hour period, or for all work in excess of forty (40) hours per week, whichever calculation results in the greater payment of wages. The employer shall keep specific records to substantiate the existence of a bonafide emergency.

Note: a person under eighteen (18) years of age who has received a high school diploma or a passing grade on a General Education Development (GED) examination, is not considered a minor.

Also exempt are: students employed by sororities, fraternities, college clubs, or dormitories, and students employed in a work experience study program and employees working in laundries of charitable institutions which pay no wages to workers and inmates, or patient workers who work in institutional laundries.

Exemption Definitions:

a) Administrative Employee: a salaried individual who directly serves the executive, and regularly performs duties important to the decision-making process of the executive. Said employee regularly exercises independent judgment and discretion in matters of significance and their primary duty is non-manual in nature and directly related to management policies or general business operations.

Said employee must supervise the work of at least two full-time employees and have the authority to hire and fire, or to effectively recommend such action. The executive or supervisor must spend a minimum of 50% percent of the workweek in duties directly related to supervision.

c) Professional: a salaried individual employed in a field of endeavor who has knowledge of an advanced type in a field of science or learning customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study. The professional employee must be employed in the field in which they are trained to be considered a professional employee.

d) Outside Salesperson: any person employed primarily away from the employer’s place of business or enterprise for the purpose of making sales or obtaining orders or contracts for any commodities, articles, goods, real estate, wares, merchandise or services. Such outside sales employee must spend a minimum of 80% of the workweek in activities directly related to their own outside sales.

6. Exemptions from Overtime:

The following employees are exempt from the overtime provisions of Minimum Wage Order No. 28:

a) Salespersons, parts-persons, and mechanics employed by automobile, truck, or farm implement (retail) dealers; salespersons employed by trailer, aircraft and boat (retail) dealers.

b) Commission Sales Exemption: sales employees of retail or service industries paid on a commission basis, provided that 50% of their total earnings in a pay period are derived from commission sales, and their regular rate of pay is at least one and one-half times the minimum wage. This exemption is only applicable for employees of retail or service employers who receive in excess of 75% of their annual dollar volume from retail or service sales.

c) Ski Industry Exemption: employees of the ski industry performing duties directly related to ski area operations for downhill skiing or snow boarding, and those employees engaged in providing food and beverage services at on-mountain locations, are exempt from the forty (40) hour overtime requirement of this wage order. The daily overtime requirement of one and one-half the regular rate of pay for all hours worked in excess of twelve (12) in a workday shall apply. This partial overtime exemption does not apply to ski area employees performing duties related to lodging.

d) Medical Transportation Exemption: employees of the medical transportation industry who are scheduled to work twenty-four (24) hour shifts, are exempt from the twelve (12) hour overtime requirement provided they receive overtime wages for hours worked in excess of forty (40) hours per work week.

    Note: a hospital or nursing home may seek an agreement with individual employees to pay overtime pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act “8 and 80 rule”, whereby employees are paid time and one-half their regular rate of pay for any work performed in excess of eighty (80) hours in a fourteen (14) consecutive day period and for any work in excess of eight (8) hours per day.

7. Meal Periods:

3/31/12
Employees shall be entitled to an uninterrupted and “duty free” meal period of at least a thirty minute duration when the scheduled work shift exceeds five consecutive hours of work. The employees must be completely relieved of all duties and permitted to pursue personal activities to qualify as a non-work, uncompensated period of time. When the nature of the business activity or other circumstances exist that makes an uninterrupted meal period impractical, the employee shall be permitted to consume an “on-duty” meal while performing duties. Employees shall be permitted to fully consume a meal of choice “on the job” and be fully compensated for the “on-duty” meal period without any loss of time or compensation.

8. Rest Periods:

Every employer shall authorize and permit rest periods, which, insofar as practicable, shall be in the middle of each four (4) hour work period. A compensated ten (10) minute rest period for each four (4) hours or major fractions thereof shall be permitted for all employees. Such rest periods shall not be deducted from the employee’s wages. 11. Wearing of Uniforms:

Where the wearing of a particular uniform or special apparel is a condition of employment, the employer shall pay the cost of purchases, maintenance, and cleaning of the uniforms or special apparel. If the uniform furnished by the employer is plain and washable and does not need or require special care such as ironing, dry cleaning, pressing, etc., the employer need not maintain or pay for cleaning. An employer may require a reasonable deposit (up to one-half of actual cost) as security for the return of each uniform furnished to employees upon issuance of a receipt to the employee for such deposit. The entire deposit shall be returned to the employee when the uniform is returned. The cost of ordinary wear and tear of a uniform or special apparel shall not be deducted from the employee’s wages or deposit.

Exception: clothing accepted as ordinary street wear and the ordinary white or any light colored plain and washable uniform need not be furnished by the employer unless a special color, make, pattern, logo or material is required.

12. Record Keeping:

Every employer shall keep at the place of employment or at the employer’s principal place of business in Colorado, a true and accurate record for each employee which contains the following information:

18. Recovery of Wages:

An employee paid less than the legal minimum wage is entitled to recover in a civil action the unpaid balance of the full amount of such minimum wage, together with costs of the suit, pursuant to § 8-6-118 C.R.S.

19. Reprisals:

Employers shall not threaten, coerce, or discharge any employee because of participation in any investigation or hearing relating to the minimum wage act. 21. Posting Requirements:

Every employer subject to this wage order must display a wage order poster in an area frequented by employees where it may be easily read during the work day. If the work site or other conditions make this unpractical, the employer shall keep a copy of this wage order and make it available to employees upon request.

22. Dual Jurisdiction:

Whenever employers are subjected to both federal and Colorado law, the law providing greater protection or setting the higher standard shall apply. For information on the federal law contact the nearest office of the U.S. Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division.
