On behalf of the General Services Administration’s (GSA) Office of Citizen Services and Innovative Technologies, I welcome you to the 2014 Consumer Action Handbook. First published by the White House Office of Consumer Affairs in 1979 and transferred by Congress to GSA in 1997, the Handbook continues to be one of the most popular publications from the federal government. Whether you are looking for helpful tips on everyday consumer matters or you need trustworthy guidance for major purchases, the Consumer Action Handbook can help you.

It’s hard work being an informed consumer. The effort it takes to compare products, protect your identity, and stay abreast of the latest scams can be a full time job. The Handbook makes it easier, by compiling practical consumer information into one comprehensive resource. Each edition of the Handbook covers topics that matter to you, such as buying a home, paying for college, and choosing a car repair shop. This year, I am excited to introduce new information on over 20 new topics, such as getting free copies of specialty consumer reports, timeshare resale, and affinity fraud. The sample complaint letter and directory of corporate and government consumer protection agencies take the guesswork out of filing a complaint.

The Consumer Action Handbook isn’t the only source for reliable information from the government. Be sure to visit USA.gov and GobiernoUSA.gov (in Spanish) all year long to get answers to your questions. If you prefer speaking to a person, call 1-800-FED-INFO (333-4636) to get answers to your questions. You can also order or download electronic versions of this Handbook and hundreds of other government publications at Publications.USA.gov.

Please let me know what you think of the Consumer Action Handbook and if you have suggestions. I really am listening. Some content updates in this version are based on readers’ comments. You can email action.handbook@gsa.gov or reach us on social media at www.facebook.com/USAgov or twitter.com/USAgov.

Sincerely,
Marietta Jelks

Welcome to the 2014 edition of the U.S. General Services Administration’s (GSA) Consumer Action Handbook. The mission of GSA is to deliver the best possible value to the government and the American people. This handbook offers the American people the resources and advice that they will need to help them achieve those kinds of savings in their everyday lives.

Every day the women and men of GSA are committed to providing cost savings, efficiency, and excellent customer service -- both for our partners and for the American people. These are goals that everyone can relate to. Every American wants to get the most for their money. GSA is proud to offer this Handbook full of practical tips to help you achieve the same goals that we are working toward across government.

This Handbook will assist you in making informed choices when buying the products and services that matter to you. Topics such as loans, mobile phones and housing, along with information on the latest frauds and scams are all included. It also provides the resources you need to ensure that you are getting the support and protection you need as a consumer.

This Handbook, which is updated annually by GSA’s Office of Citizen Services and Innovative Technologies, is also available online with interactive features at USA.gov/consumer. I hope that you take advantage of this Handbook and the information it provides, and share it with your family and friends.

Sincerely,

Dan Tangherlini
Acting Administrator
QUICK CONSUMER TIPS

Quick Consumer Tips

As a savvy consumer, you should always be on the alert for shady deals and scams. To avoid becoming a victim, keep these things in mind:

1. A deal that sounds too good to be true usually is! Be wary of promises to fix your credit problems, low-interest credit card offers, deals that let you skip credit card payments, work-at-home job opportunities, risk-free investments, and free travel.
2. Don't share personal information with someone you don't trust. Learn how to recognize fraud.
3. Beware of payday and tax refund loans. Interest rates on these loans are usually excessive. A cash advance on a credit card may be a better option.
4. Read and understand any contract, legal document or terms of service before you sign or click "I Agree". Do not sign a contract with blank spaces or where the terms are incomplete. Some contracts include a clause that prohibits you from taking legal action and require you to engage in mandatory arbitration with a company in the case of a dispute.
5. Get estimates from several contractors for home or car repairs. Make sure the estimates are for the exact same repairs for a fair comparison.
6. Before you buy, make sure you understand and accept the store's refund, return and early termination/cancellation policies, especially for services and facilities that charge monthly fees.
7. When paying for your purchases, double-check the final price. If you think the price that has been charged is incorrect, speak up. Remember, when shopping online, your purchase may include additional fees, such as shipping, handling, and convenience fees that are not calculated until you check out.
8. When shopping online, look for the padlock icon in the bottom right-hand corner of your screen or a URL that begins with "https" to ensure that your payment information is transmitted securely.
9. Don't buy under stress. Avoid making big-ticket purchases during times of duress (e.g., coping with a death or debt).
10. If you are having difficulty making payments on loans, notify your lender immediately so that you can work out a payment plan.

BUYER BEWARE

BEFORE YOU BUY
To avoid problems and make better decisions, use this checklist BEFORE you make a purchase:

• Decide in advance exactly what you want and what you can afford.
• Do your research. Ask family, friends, and others you trust for advice based on their experience. Gather information about the seller and the item or service you are purchasing.
• Review product test results from consumer experts and comments from past customers. See Key Information Resources (p. 58).
• Get advice and price quotes from several sellers.
• Make sure the seller has all appropriate licenses. Doctors, lawyers, contractors, and other service providers must register with a state or local licensing agency.
• Check out a company’s complaint record with your local consumer affairs office (p. 107) and Better Business Bureau (p. 65).
• Get a written copy of guarantees and warranties.
• Get the seller’s refund, return, and cancellation policies.
• Ask whom to contact if you have a question or problem.
• Read and understand any contract or legal document you are asked to sign or give agreement to online (by clicking “I Agree”). Make sure there are no blank spaces or the terms are incomplete. Insist that any extras you are promised be put in writing.
• Consider paying by credit card. If you have a problem, you can dispute a charge made on your credit card (p. 13).
• Don’t buy on impulse or under pressure; this includes donating to charity.

SERVICE CONTRACTS AND EXTENDED WARRANTIES
Service contracts or “extended warranties” extend the guarantee or promise that a product will work, for an additional cost. Sellers offer these service contracts at the time of purchase. Third party firms may also try to sell you a warranty; some even make cold calls to you with high pressure sales tactics. Some extended warranties duplicate warranty coverage that you get automatically from a manufacturer or seller, so this add-on may not be worth the cost. Ask these questions before you agree to one of these contracts:

• Does the dealer, the manufacturer, or an independent company back the service contract?
• How are claims handled? Who will do the work, and where will it be done?
• What happens to your coverage if the dealer or administrator goes out of business?
• Do you need prior authorization for repair work?
• Are there any situations when coverage can be denied? You may not have protection from common wear and tear, or if you fail to follow recommendations for routine maintenance.

DRIP PRICING
Have you ever planned to make a purchase, only to find out that there are additional, sometimes mandatory, fees that were not included in the advertised price? If so, you have been the victim of drip pricing. Drip pricing makes it difficult for consumers to determine the full cost and compare similar options, when all the fees are not disclosed up front. You can protect yourself by reading the policies before completing the sale and asking questions of sales personnel. Also, if you have charged your purchase on your credit card, you may be able to dispute the extra fees if they are more than you had agreed to with the seller.

QUICK TIPS FOR AVOIDING FRAUD
There are many varieties of consumer fraud, but the most common ones are variations of fake check scams, credit repair, free trip offers, and sweepstakes. Here are some tips to help you avoid being a victim:

• Don’t give out personal information. Be suspicious of anyone you don’t know who asks for your Social Security number, birthdate, credit card number, bank account number, password, or other personal data.
• Don’t be intimidated. Be suspicious of calls or emails that want you to provide or verify personal information immediately. Answer that you are not interested and hang up or don’t reply to the email.
• Monitor your accounts. Review bank and credit card statements carefully, and report unauthorized transactions to your financial institution immediately.
• Use a shredder. Tear or shred credit offers, bank statements, insurance forms, and other papers with personal information.

www.USA.gov
To contact an organization, use the directory beginning on page 62.
PRODUCT SAFETY RECALLS
Before you buy a used or second-hand product, check to be sure that it has not been recalled for safety reasons. Some recalls ban the sale of an item, while others ask consumers to return the item for replacement or repair. Sometimes, a seller will provide a part that reduces the danger of using the product.

If you are buying a product for a child, such as toys, clothing, cribs, and costume jewelry, be especially careful. Visit the websites in the “Check Here for Recalls” box to find the latest safety recalls. You can also sign up for free email notifications at www.recalls.gov/list.html or download the mobile app from apps.usa.gov.

IDENTIFYING AND STOPPING FRAUD
Look for these warning signs to avoid fraud:
• You are asked for your bank account or credit card number.
• Someone you do not know offers you the chance to receive a credit card, loan, prize, lottery, or other valuable item, but asks you for personal data to claim it.
• The solicitation looks like a government document and suggests that contest winnings or unclaimed assets are yours for a small fee. (The government does not solicit money from citizens.)
• Someone you do not know asks you to send money or money orders to claim a prize, lottery, credit card, loan, or other valuable offer.
• An unknown caller claiming to be a lawyer or in law enforcement offers to help you get your money back (for a fee).
• The deal is only good “for today” or a short time.
• A “repair person” suddenly finds a dangerous defect in your car or home.
• You are given little or no time to read a contract.
• A sale item is suddenly unavailable, but a “much better item” is available for slightly more money.
• Someone is trying to scare you into making a purchase.
To learn more about avoiding identity theft and fraud, go to page 37.

SHOPPING FROM HOME
Late delivery, shipment of wrong or damaged items, and hidden costs are common complaints when consumers shop from home. To avoid problems and resolve them more easily, follow the advice in the Before You Buy checklist (p. 2). In addition, here are some general tips:
• Be wary of post office boxes and sellers in other countries. It may be difficult to find the seller to resolve a problem later.
• Know the total price. Make sure it includes all charges, shipping, handling, insurance, and taxes. Coupons and other discounts should be deducted properly.

CHECK HERE FOR RECALLS
• www.recalls.gov lists government-initiated recalls from federal agencies.
• www.nhtsa.gov publishes safety information on vehicles and equipment such as children’s car seats.
• www.fsis.usda.gov lists recalls that involve meat, poultry, or processed egg products.
• www.fda.gov lists recalls that involve food, medicines, medical devices, cosmetics, biologics, radiation emitting products, veterinary drugs and pet food.
• Report incidents and safety concerns with consumer products, search for incidents, reported by others at www.saferproducts.gov.

• Make sure you are clear on what you are buying. Watch for words such as “refurbished,” “reconditioned,” “closeout,” or “discontinued.”
• The security code on the back of your credit card offers you extra protections on online purchases.
• Keep a record of your purchase. Save any information the seller gives you, such as order confirmation number, product description, delivery date, cancellation policy, privacy policy and warranties.
• Keep track of your order. If it’s late, you have the right to cancel and demand a refund.

DYNAMIC PRICING
Have you ever viewed a product while shopping online, and noticed that the price had changed from when you looked at it yesterday? You have experienced dynamic pricing, when a retailer changes an item’s price multiple times over a few days, or even within hours.

Dynamic pricing practices are common with online retailers, airlines and tickets for professional sporting events. Retailers adjust prices based on their inventory, your shopping history on their site, and your online browsing behavior. Sports teams may adjust ticket prices based on how well the team is performing, ticket inventory and even the day of the week. Make dynamic pricing work to your advantage by:
• Using price tracker websites to compare the prices at different retailers.
• Using price predictor websites to track if the price is expected to go up or down.
• Clearing your Internet cookies so online retailers cannot use your browsing history to adjust prices.
Your Rights
When you order something by mail, phone, or online, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) requires the company to:

• Ship the merchandise within the time promised, or if no specific delivery time was stated, within 30 days of receiving your order.
• Notify you if the shipment cannot be made on time and give you the option of waiting longer or getting a refund.
• Cancel your order and return your payment if the new shipping date cannot be met, unless you agree to another delay.

If you cancel your order, your money must be refunded within seven days; if you charged the order on a credit card, your account must be credited within one billing cycle. The company cannot substitute a store credit. If you applied for a charge account with the merchant at the same time that you placed your order, the company has an extra 20 days to ship the merchandise to allow time for processing your credit application.

These FTC rules only apply to the first shipment of magazine subscriptions or other merchandise you receive repeatedly. Your state may also have rules that apply. Report suspected violations to your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 107) and to the FTC (p. 103).

GREY CHARGES
“What’s this charge?” may be your first thought when you see a small charge on your credit card statement that you cannot figure out. These are known as “grey charges” and there are several common types:

• Unintended subscriptions. You thought you made a one time purchase, but it was really a subscription.
• Zombie fees. Membership fees that you had cancelled, but the fees will not stop.
• Free trial to paid. When a free trial is over the seller converts it to a paid subscription.
• Negative option. You bought one product, but did not realize that you were buying others at the same time.

Take these steps to protect yourself from grey charges:

• Before you buy, read the terms of service. Disclosures about fees may be hidden or near the end, so read the entire document.
• Mark your calendar as a reminder to cancel free trials by a set date.
• Read your credit card statements closely. Pay attention to the names of companies and charges for small amounts.
• Contact the seller to have the grey charges removed.
• Dispute the charges with your credit card company.

3-Day Cooling-Off Rule
This federal law protects consumers in their homes during door-to-door sales pitches or at sales in temporary business locations. According to the FTC, the 3-Day Cooling-Off Rule does NOT apply to the purchase of new automobiles or items sold online. It only applies when a company is selling something that costs $25 or more at a location other than its regular place of business.

To comply with the 3-Day Cooling-Off Rule, a seller must inform buyers of their right to cancel the sale and receive a full refund within three business days.

Be aware that there are situations in which the Cooling-Off Rule does not apply:

• You made the purchase entirely by mail, online, or telephone.
• The sale was the result of prior contact you had at the seller’s permanent business location.
• You signed a document waiving your right to cancel.
• Your purchase is not primarily for personal, family, or household use.
• You were buying real estate, insurance, securities, or a motor vehicle.
• You cannot return the item in a condition similar to how you received it.

Remember, if you paid by credit card and are having difficulty getting your refund, you may also be able to dispute the charge with your credit card company under the Fair Credit Billing Act. See Credit Card Billing Disputes (p. 13).

Online Shopping
Online shopping websites often offer great deals, variety, and convenience. However, consumers need to be careful and make informed decisions about their purchases. Some tips for shopping safely online:

• Stick to websites that are known or recommended.
• Compare prices and deals, including free shipping, extended service contracts, or other offers.
• Search for online coupons, known as promo codes, which may offer discounts or free shipping.
• Get a complete description of the item and parts included, and the price, including shipping, delivery time, warranty information, return policy, and complaint procedure.

BUYING TICKETS ONLINE
When buying tickets online, be mindful of convenience or venue fees that can raise the price. Also, be mindful of the fine print. Some tickets are tied to your credit card, restricting your ability to donate, give them as gifts or resell them if you cannot attend because the same credit card must be shown at the event venue to enter.
ONLINE SHOPPING TIPS

- Read reviews from other consumers and independent experts.
- Pay with a credit card. Federal law protects you if you need to dispute charges, but it does not apply to debit cards, checks, cash, money orders, or other forms of payment.
- Use a secure browser. Look for a URL that starts with “https” rather than “http.” Also look for a closed padlock icon, usually in the lower right-hand corner of the screen.
- Avoid making online purchases on public Wi-Fi hotspots; these may not be secure, and your payment information could be stolen over the network. See Wi-Fi (p. 40) for more information.
- Print or save your purchase order with details of the product and your confirmation number.

For more information, go to www.onguardonline.gov for more on online shopping.

• Read past customers’ ratings and comments to determine if the seller is reputable and delivers quality products, as promised.
• Only bid on an item if you intend to buy. If you are the highest bidder, you have bought it. Auction companies often bar those who back out of a deal from future bidding.
• If the seller cannot accept payment by credit card, use an escrow service. A third party holds your money until you get your purchase and approve release of your payment to the seller.

For more tips, visit the Federal Trade Commission’s website at www.consumer.ftc.gov.

AFTER YOU BUY

Even careful buyers can run into unforeseen problems later on. To minimize them, follow these steps after you buy:

- Save all papers that come with your purchase. Keep all contracts, sales receipts, canceled checks, owner’s manuals, and warranty documents.
- Read and follow product and service instructions. The way you use or take care of a product might affect your warranty rights.

If you have a problem with the item you purchased, file a complaint (p. 54).

Online Auctions and Sellers

Many people sell items on the Internet through auctions and classified ads. Review the Internet section (p. 40) as well as the general tips on shopping from home (p. 3) to prevent being a victim of online fraud. When participating in an online auction, remember to:

- Check how the auction works. Can you cancel a bid? Don’t assume that the rules one auction site uses apply to another. Some sites offer step-by-step instructions that will take you through the bidding process.
- Find out what protections you have. Does the site provide free insurance or guarantees for items that are not delivered or are not what the seller claimed?
- Follow the strategies used in any auction. Learn the value of the item before you begin bidding, then establish your top price and stick to it.

Choose a bank is a major decision, and there is no one right choice for all consumers. When you shop for a bank, you have to consider the actual products and services it provides as well as the location of branches, size of the bank, fees, and interest rates. Even if you conduct most transactions online or at automated teller machines, you want to choose a bank with quality customer service. Also, consider the variety of products that the bank provides; some banks may specialize in checking and savings accounts, while others are full-service banks, offering loans and CDs. You do not have to maintain all of your accounts at one bank; you can have relationships with several to get the best rates on different services.

CHOOSING A BANK

- Consider what products and services you want and need.
- Make a list of the products and services you require.
- Research the fees charged by banks for services you want.
- Look for good customer service.
- Examine the size of the bank.
- Decide on the location of your bank branches.
- Look for an easy-to-use ATM network.
- Look for good interest rates.
- Consider using an online or mobile banking service.

Visit www.consumer.ftc.gov for more on online shopping.
SAVINGS AND CHECKING

When it comes to finding a safe place to put your money, there are a lot of options. Savings accounts, checking accounts, certificates of deposit (CD), and money market accounts are popular choices. Each has different rules and benefits that fit different needs. The bank must provide you with the account terms and conditions when you open your account. When choosing the one that is right for you, consider:

Minimum deposit requirements. Some accounts can only be set up with a minimum dollar amount. If your account goes below the minimum, the bank may not pay you interest on the money you deposited and you may be charged extra fees.

Limits on withdrawals. Can you take money out whenever you want? Are there any penalties for doing so?

Interest. How much (if anything) is paid and when? Daily, monthly, quarterly, yearly? You can check with banks or credit unions to see and compare their current published rates.

Deposit insurance. Make sure your bank is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). This agency protects the money in your checking and savings accounts, certificates of deposit (CDs), and Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) up to $250,000.

Credit unions. A credit union is a nonprofit, cooperative financial institution owned and run by its members. Like the FDIC does for banks, the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund (NCUSIF) insures a person’s savings up to $250,000.

Convenience. How easy is it to put money in and take it out? Are there branches or ATMs close to where you work and live? Can you bank by phone or Internet?

If you are considering a checking account or another type of account with check-writing privileges, add these items to your list of things to think about:

Number of checks. Is there a maximum number of checks you can write per month without incurring a charge?

Check fees. Is there a monthly fee for the account or a charge for each check you write?

Holds on checks. Is there a waiting period for checks to clear before you can withdraw the money from your account?

Debit card fees. Are there fees for using your debit card?

Account fees. Banks can charge fees on your checking or savings account to cover things like maintenance, withdrawals, or minimum balance rules. However, the bank must inform you of the fees up front as part of your account agreement and notify you when changes occur. Practices vary from bank to bank, but each must inform you of the fee change on your statement, or in a separate letter.

Overdrafts and bounced checks. What happens if you try to cash a check, withdraw money, or use your debit card for an amount greater than the amount of money in your account? Will the bank assess a bounced check or overdraft fee? Will your bank pay for the item, even though there were insufficient funds in the account?

NEW RULES FOR REMITTANCES

If you send money to family or friends in another country, you have new consumer protections. You now have the ability to compare offers, cancel the transaction and file a complaint. Your rights include:

Written estimate for comparison. A remittance company must give you a written estimate that includes the transfer amount, taxes, fees, exchange rate, and the amount the recipient will receive.

Receipt. After you choose an offer, the remittance company must give you a receipt that confirms the details of the transaction.

The right to cancel. You have 30 minutes to change your mind and cancel the remittance for a full refund. This is also stated on the receipt.

Handle disputes or file a complaint. The receipt must include contact information for the company if you need to dispute an error. It must also include contact information for filing a complaint with your state regulator and the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (p. 93).
ATM/DEBIT CARDS

With a debit card and personal identification number (PIN), you can use an Automated Teller Machine (ATM) to withdraw cash, make deposits, or transfer funds between accounts. Some ATMs charge a fee if you are not a member of the ATM network or are making a transaction at a remote location. Retail purchases can also be made with a debit card. You enter your PIN or sign for the purchase. Although a debit card looks like a credit card, the money for the purchase is transferred immediately from your bank account to the store’s account. When you use a debit card, federal law does not give you the right to stop payment; you must resolve problems directly with the seller.

If you suspect your debit card has been lost or stolen, call the card issuer immediately. While federal law limits your liability for a lost or stolen credit card to $50, your liability for unauthorized use of your ATM or debit card can be much greater, depending on how quickly you report the loss.

• If you report a debit card missing before it is used, you are not responsible for any unauthorized withdrawals.
• Your liability is limited to $50 if you report the loss within two business days after you realize your debit card is missing and increases to $500 if you report the loss between two and 60 days.
• If you have not reported an unauthorized use of a debit or ATM card within 60 days after your bank mails the statement documenting the unauthorized use, you could lose all of the money in your bank account as well as the unused portion of your line of credit established for overdrafts.

Check the policies of your card issuer; some offer more generous limits on a voluntary basis.

If your bank offers an overdraft service, you must opt-in to this service for most ATM and debit card transactions before the bank may impose any fees. Banks must disclose this option, the amount of the overdraft coverage fee, and the customer’s right to cancel this service. For more information, go to www.fdic.gov/consumers/overdraft.

PHISHING SCAMS

“Phishing” is the use of fraudulent email designed to steal identities as well as vital personal information such as credit card numbers, bank account PINs, and passwords. Phishing emails often ask you to verify this type of information. Scammers also go “smishing,” or phishing using text messages, by asking you to verify or confirm sensitive information. Legitimate companies never ask for your password or account number via email. If you are not sure whether the email is trustworthy, call the company directly and forward the email to spam@uce.gov. If you believe you have received a phishing email, don’t hit reply! The email may even threaten to disable your account. Don’t believe it!

PROTECT YOUR PIN

Beware of “shoulder surfers.” Be suspicious of anyone lurking around an ATM or watching over your shoulder while you use your debit or ATM card. Some thieves even put a device over the card slot of an ATM to read the magnetic strip and record your PIN; this is known as “skimming.” If you suspect criminal activity, walk away and use a different ATM.

UNSOLICITED CHECKS AND CREDIT OFFERS

If you cash an unsolicited check, you could be agreeing to pay for products or services you do not want or need. In addition, those “guarantees” for credit cards or loans, without consideration of credit history, are probably a scam. Legitimate lenders never guarantee credit. Legitimate offers of credit often come in the form of “convenience checks,” which credit card companies enclose with your monthly statement. However, convenience checks may carry higher fees, a higher interest rate, and other restrictions. If you do not want the checks, be sure to shred them to protect yourself from “dumpster divers” and identity thieves.

Watch out for checks from someone in a foreign country who claims that you won a foreign lottery. Also beware of accepting foreign checks for investment opportunities or to pay for an item you sold online. These could be scams. Even if you deposit the check, the check may not be legal. Don’t rely on money from a check, especially foreign or unsolicited, until your bank says the check has cleared or if you know and trust the person who sent it to you.

PREPAID CARDS

Prepaid cards, also known as prepaid debit, stored value, or gift cards, are convenient ways to pay for your purchases. Banks and retailers issue them to offer consumers a way to make payments and conduct other financial transactions. You do not need to have a bank account or a credit history to use a prepaid card. Be sure you understand the card’s terms and conditions BEFORE you buy.

Many cards carry protections similar to credit and debit cards. To obtain these benefits, you must follow the instructions for registering and activating your card. Be sure to record your card information, including the customer service telephone number listed on the back of the card in a separate place, so you can get a replacement if yours is lost or stolen. Some prepaid card issuers may charge fees for card activation, maintenance, and cash withdrawals.
If you have a problem with a prepaid card, first contact the customer service number. If the problem still is not resolved, file a complaint with the proper authorities:

- For cards issued by retailers, contact the FTC (p. 103). You may also file a complaint with your local consumer protection office (p. 107).
- For cards issued by national banks, contact the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (p. 101).
- For cards issued by state banks, contact the FDIC (p. 103) or state banking authority (p. 120).

For more information, visit the Network Branded Prepaid Card Association at www.nbpca.com.

Government Benefits on Prepaid Cards

Many government agencies deliver financial benefits using prepaid cards. All Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits are paid via electronic benefit cards. All Social Security benefits must be paid via direct deposit or a prepaid debit card, which comes with federal consumer protections.

CARS

Whether you are buying or leasing a vehicle, these tips will help you get the best deal and avoid problems:

- Decide what kind of vehicle best suits your needs and budget.
- Check out the seller. For car dealers, check with your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 107) and Better Business Bureau (p. 65). If you are buying from an individual, check the title to make sure you are dealing with the vehicle's owner.
- Take a test drive. Drive at different speeds and check for smooth right and left turns. On a straight stretch, make sure the vehicle does not pull to one side.
- Handle trade-ins and financing separately from your purchase to get the best deal on each. Get a written price quote before you talk about a trade-in or dealer financing.
- Shop in advance and compare financing options at your credit union, bank, or finance company. Look at the total finance charges and the Annual Percentage Rate (APR), not just the monthly payment.
- Read and understand every document you are asked to sign.
- Don’t take possession of the car until all paperwork is final.
- Choose an auto insurance policy that is right for you (p. 30).

GOVERNMENT FUEL ECONOMY WEB PAGES

- www.epa.gov/greenvehicles The Green Vehicle Guide tool helps you find the cleanest and most fuel-efficient vehicles to meet your needs.
- www.fueleconomy.gov compares the miles-per-gallon ratings of different vehicle models manufactured since the mid-1980s and calculates annual fuel estimates.
- www.epa.gov/carlabel allows you to compare the fuel economy of different types of vehicles (diesel, hybrid, electric, gasoline).
BUYING A NEW CAR
Do your research first and compare vehicles.

• Research the dealer’s price for the car and options. It is easier to get the best price when you know what the dealer paid for a vehicle. The dealer invoice price is available on a number of websites and in printed pricing guides. Try to locate the wholesale price; this figure factors in dealer incentives from a manufacturer and is a more accurate estimate of what a dealer is paying for a vehicle.

• Find out whether the manufacturer is offering rebates that will lower the cost.

• Get price quotes from several dealers. Find out if the amounts quoted are the prices before or after rebates are deducted.

• Avoid low-value extras such as credit insurance, extended warranties, auto club memberships, rustproofing, and upholstery finishes. You do not have to purchase credit insurance to get a loan. See Service Contracts and Extended Warranties (p. 2).

• Hybrid cars are popular among consumers interested in fuel economy and reducing their negative impact on the environment. These cars combine the benefits of gasoline engines and electric motors and can be configured to achieve different objectives, such as improved fuel economy, increased power, or additional auxiliary power. Also look for the Smartway logo to identify cleaner, more fuel-efficient cars and trucks; visit www.epa.gov/smartwaylogistics/vehicles/smartway-certified.htm for more information. For more information about hybrids, electric vehicles, and alternative fuels, visit www.fueleconomy.gov.

BUYING A USED CAR

• To learn what rights you have when buying a used car, contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 107).

• Find out in advance what paperwork you will need to register a vehicle. Contact your state’s motor vehicle department. Visit www.usa.gov/Topics/Motor_Vehicles.shtml.

• Check prices of similar models using the NADA Official Used Car Guide (www.nadaguides.com) published by the National Automobile Dealers Association or the Kelley Blue Book (www.kbb.com). These guides are usually available at local libraries.

• Research the vehicle’s history. Ask the seller for details concerning past owners, use, and maintenance; you should also find out whether the car has been damaged in a flood, crash, or labeled a “lemon”. Also visit www.vehiclehistory.gov to buy vehicle history reports gathered from state motor vehicle departments and other sources. These reports are helpful but do not guarantee that a vehicle is accident-free.

• Your state motor vehicle department can research the car’s title history.

• The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration’s (NHTSA) website (www.safercar.gov) lets you search an online database of manufacturer technical service bulletins and review crash test ratings.

• The Center for Auto Safety (www.autosafety.org) provides information on safety defect recalls, complaints and technical service bulletins.

CHOOSE A SAFE VEHICLE
Crash tests can help you determine how well a vehicle will protect you in a crash. These organizations perform crash tests and rate vehicles:

• The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Each year, NHTSA (www.nhtsa.gov) crashes vehicles head-on into a wall and bashes them broadside to test their ability to protect their occupants. NHTSA focuses on evaluating vehicle restraints such as air bags and safety belts.

• The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. A different test by the IIHS (www.hwysafety.org) uses offset-frontal car crashes to assess the protection a vehicle’s structure provides.

• Consumer Reports. The annual auto issue of Consumer Reports (www.consumerreports.org) rates vehicles in terms of overall safety. Its safety score combines crash test results with a vehicle’s accident-avoidance factors — emergency handling, braking, acceleration, and even driver comfort.

• The National Motor Vehicle Title Information System. The NMVTIS (www.vehiclehistory.gov) provides information about a vehicle’s history and condition, including information about its title, odometer reading, brand history, and, in some cases, theft. You can also report safety risks to NHTSA (www.nhtsa.gov).

• Safercar.gov (www.safercar.gov) allows you to identify and report problems with your vehicle, tires, equipment or car seats.

To find out whether a manufacturer has recalled a car for safety defects, contact NHTSA (p. 101). If a vehicle has been recalled, ask the dealer for proof that the defect has been repaired. Used vehicles should also have a current safety inspection sticker if your state requires one.
• Make sure any mileage disclosures match the odometer reading on the car.
• Check the warranty. If a manufacturer’s warranty is still in effect, contact the manufacturer to make sure you can use the coverage.
• Ask about the dealer’s return policy. Get it in writing and read it carefully.
• Have your mechanic inspect the car. Talk to the seller and agree in advance that you will pay for the examination if the car passes inspection, but the seller will pay if significant problems are discovered. A qualified mechanic should check the vehicle’s frame, tires, air bags, and undercarriage as well as the engine.
• Examine dealer documents carefully. Make sure you are buying—not leasing—the vehicle. Leases use terms such as “balloon payment” and “base mileage” disclosures.

DEALER VERSUS PRIVATE-PARTY PURCHASES

The FTC requires dealers to post a Buyer’s Guide in the window of each used car or truck on their lot. This guide specifies whether the vehicle is being sold “as is” (in the vehicle’s current condition, without a warranty) or with a warranty, and what percentage of repair costs a dealer will pay under the warranty. Keep in mind that private sellers generally have less responsibility than dealers do for defects or other problems. FTC rules do not apply to private-party sales.

Expect to pay higher prices at a dealer than if you buy from an individual. Many dealers inspect their cars and provide an inspection report with each one. However, this is no substitute for your own inspection. Some dealers provide limited warranties, and most sell extended warranties. Watch out for dealer warranties that are “power train” warranties only, and not “bumper-to-bumper,” full-coverage warranties. It is best to compare warranties that are available from other sources.

Some dealers sell “certified” cars. This generally means that the cars have had a more thorough inspection and come with a limited warranty. Prices for certified cars are generally higher. Be sure to get a list of what was inspected and what is covered under the warranty.

In general, buying a used car from a dealer is a safer option because you are dealing with an institution, which means you are better protected by law. Purchasing a car from a private seller may save you money, but there are risks. The car could be stolen, damaged, or still under a finance agreement. If a private seller lies to you about the condition of the vehicle, you may sue the individual if you have evidence and you can find him or her. An individual is very unlikely to provide a written warranty.

FINANCING

Most car buyers today need some form of financing to purchase a new vehicle. Many use direct lending, that is, a loan from a finance company, bank, or credit union. In direct lending, a buyer agrees to pay the amount financed, plus an agreed-upon finance charge, over a specified period. Once a buyer and a vehicle dealership enter into a contract to purchase a vehicle, the buyer uses the loan proceeds from the direct lender to pay the dealership for the vehicle.

Another common form is dealership financing, which offers convenience, financing options, and sometimes special, manufacturer-sponsored, low-rate deals. Before you make a financing decision, it is important to do your research:

- Decide in advance how much you can afford to spend and stick to your limit.
- Get a copy of your credit report and correct any errors before applying for a loan.
- Check buying guides to identify price ranges and best available deals.

More information about vehicle financing, deciding what you can afford, and consumer protections is available at www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0056-understanding-vehicle-financing. If you need to file a complaint about your auto loan, visit www.consumerfinance.gov.

LEASING

When you lease, you pay to drive someone else’s vehicle. Monthly payments for a lease may be lower than loan payments, but at the end of the lease, you do not own or have any equity in the car. To get the best deal, follow this advice in addition to the general suggestions for buying a car (p. 8):

- To help you compare leasing versus owning, the Consumer Leasing Act requires leasing companies to give you information on monthly payments and other charges.
- Shop around to compare lease offers from multiple dealers.
- Find out what the down payment, or capitalized cost reduction, is for the lease. Consumers with better credit scores qualify for the low down payments and rates that are advertised in commercials.
- Calculate the total cost over the life of the lease, and include down payment. A lease with a higher down payment and low monthly payments may be a better deal for you.

• Consider using an independent agent rather than the dealer; you might find a better deal. Most financial institutions that offer auto financing also offer leasing options.

• Ask for details on wear and tear standards. Dings that you regard as normal wear and tear could be billed as significant damage at the end of your lease.

• Find out how many miles you can drive in a year. Most leases allow 12,000 to 15,000 miles a year. Expect a charge of 10 to 25 cents for each additional mile.

• Check the manufacturer’s warranty; it should cover the entire lease term and the number of miles you are likely to drive.

• Ask the dealer what happens if you give up the car before the end of your lease. There may be extra fees for doing so.

• Ask what happens if the car is involved in an accident.

• Get all of the terms in writing. Everything included with the car should be listed on the lease to avoid your being charged for “missing” equipment later.

You can get more information about auto leases from the website www.consumerfinance.gov/askcfpb.

RECALLS, “LEMON” LAWS, AND SECRET WARRANTIES

Sometimes a manufacturer makes a design or production mistake on a motor vehicle. A technical service bulletin notifies the dealer of the problem and how to resolve it. Because these free repairs are not publicized, they are called “secret warranties.” The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration maintains a database of technical service bulletins filed by manufacturers.

If you have a problem with a vehicle that is a safety hazard, check whether the manufacturer has recalled your vehicle. You can find information about technical service bulletins, recalls, and other safety defects in NHTSA’s database at www-odi.nhtsa.dot.gov/recalls/recallsearch.cfm or call DOT’s Vehicle Safety Hotline at 1-800-424-9393. You should report hazards that are not listed to your dealer, the manufacturer of the vehicle (p. 63), and NHTSA at www-odi.nhtsa.dot.gov/ivoq. If a safety-related defect exists, the maker must fix it at no cost to you—even if your warranty has expired.

If you have a vehicle with a unique problem that just never seems to get fixed, you may have a “lemon.” Some states have laws concerning “lemons” that require a refund or replacement if a problem is not fixed within a reasonable number of tries. These laws might also go into effect if you have not been able to use your vehicle for a certain number of days. Contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 107) to learn whether you have such protections and what steps you must take to get your problem solved. If you believe your car is a “lemon”:

• Give the dealer a list of the problems every time you bring it in for repairs.

• Get and keep copies of the repair orders listing the problems, the work done, and the dates the car was in the shop.

• Contact the manufacturer, as well as the dealer, to report the problem. Check your owner’s manual or the directory for the auto manufacturer (p. 63).

The Center for Auto Safety (p. 105) gathers information and complaints concerning safety defects, recalls, technical service bulletins, and state “lemon” laws.

RENTING

Before renting a car:

• Ask what the total cost will be after all fees are included. There may be an airport surcharge or fees for drop-off, insurance, fuel, mileage, taxes, additional-drivers, underage-drivers (younger than 25), and equipment rental (for items such as ski racks and car seats). See drip pricing on page 2.

• Ask whether the rental company checks the driving records of customers when they arrive at the counter. If so, you could be rejected, even if you have a confirmed reservation.

• Check in advance to be sure you are not duplicating insurance coverage. If you decline coverage, make sure to get it in writing to prevent surprise charges. If you are traveling on business, your employer may have insurance that covers accidental damage to the vehicle. You might also have coverage through your personal auto insurance (p. 30), a motor club membership, or the credit card you use to reserve the rental.

• Review your rental receipt to make sure that you were not mistakenly charged for services you did not request, such as GPS or equipment rental insurance.

• Carefully inspect the vehicle and its tires before renting and when you return it. Try to return the car during regular hours so you and the rental staff can look at the car together to verify that you did not damage it.

• Check refueling policies and charges. Some rental companies, particularly at airports, may require you to refuel within a 10 mile radius of the airport or show a fuel receipt when you return the car.

• Pay with a credit card rather than a debit card, to avoid holds on the funds in your checking account. See “Credit Card Blocking” on page 47.

• Ask the rental company whether a deposit is required or if a block is placed on your credit card. If so, ask for a clear explanation of the deposit refund policies and procedures.

For more information about renting a car and the insurance options, visit www.insureuonline.org/consumer_auto_car_rental_insurance.htm.
Some states have laws to address your rights with short-term car and truck rentals. Contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 107) for information or to file a complaint.

REPAIRS

Whenever you take a car to the repair shop:

- Choose a reliable repair shop. Family, friends, or an independent consumer-rating organization should be able to help you. Look for shops that display various certifications that are current. You should also check out the shop’s record with your state or local consumer protection office (p. 107) or the Better Business Bureau (p. 65).
- Describe the symptoms. Don’t try to diagnose the problem.
- Make it clear that work cannot begin until you have an estimate (in writing, preferably) and you give your okay. Never sign a blank repair order. If the problem cannot be diagnosed on the spot, insist that the shop contact you for authorization once it has found the problem.
- Ask the shop to return the old parts to you.
- Follow the warranty instructions if a repair is covered under warranty.
- Get all repair warranties in writing.
- Keep copies of all paperwork.

Some states, cities, and counties have special laws that deal with auto repairs. For information on the laws in your state, contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 107). A consumer guide to auto repair is available at www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0211-auto-repair-basics.

CARS

CAR REPOSSESSIONS

When you borrow money to buy a car or truck, the lender can take your vehicle back if you miss a payment or in some other way violate the contract. You should also be aware that the lender:

- Can repossess with cause without advance notice
- Can insist you pay off the entire loan balance to get the repossessed vehicle back
- Can sell the vehicle at auction
- Might be able to sue you for the difference between the vehicle’s auction price and what you owe
- Cannot break into your home or physically threaten someone while taking the vehicle

If you know you are going to be late with a payment, talk to the lender. If you and the lender reach an agreement, be sure to get the agreement in writing. Contact your state or local consumer protection office (p. 107) to find out whether your state gives you any additional rights.

CREDIT

Like everything else you buy, it pays to comparison shop for credit. Shop online personal finance websites for up-to-date interest rate reports on mortgages, auto loans, credit cards, home equity loans, and other banking products. The Equal Credit Opportunity Act protects you when dealing with anyone who regularly offers credit, including banks, finance companies, stores, credit card companies, and credit unions. When you apply for credit, a creditor may not:

- Ask about or consider your sex, race, national origin, or religion.
- Ask about your marital status or your spouse—unless you are applying for a joint account or relying on your spouse’s income, or you live in a community property state (Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Washington, or Wisconsin).
- Ask about your plans to have or raise children.
- Refuse to consider public assistance income or regularly received alimony or child support.
- Refuse to consider income because of your sex or marital status or because it is from part-time work or retirement benefits.

You have the right to:

- Have credit in your birth name, your first name and your spouse/partner’s last name, or your first name and a combined last name.
- Have a co-signer other than your spouse if one is necessary.
- Keep your own accounts after you change your name or marital status or if you retire, unless the creditor has evidence that you are unable or unwilling to pay.
- Know why a credit application is rejected—the creditor must give you the specific reasons or tell you where and how you can get a copy of the credit report it used to determine its rejection, if you ask within 60 days.
- Have accounts shared with your spouse reported in both of your names.
- Know how much it will cost to borrow money.
The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) provides useful information for consumers on selecting a credit card appropriate for their needs. See “How do I Shop for a Credit Card,” on the CFPB website, www.consumerfinance.gov/blog/how-do-i-shop-for-a-credit-card.

Complaints
To complain about a problem with your credit card company, call the number on the back of your card or try to resolve it with the CFPB (p. 93). If you fail to resolve the issue, ask for the name, address, and phone number of the card company’s regulatory agency. See the chart on page 8 to find the best federal or state regulatory agency to contact.

To complain about a credit bureau, contact the CFPB; for complaints about a department store that offers credit, or other Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC)-insured financial institution, write to the agency’s Consumer Response Center (p. 103). You may also file a complaint with the FTC at www.consumer.ftc.gov.

Credit Card Billing Disputes
Under the Fair Credit Billing Act, you have the right to dispute charges on your credit card that you did not make, are incorrect, or are for goods or services you did not receive.

• Send a letter to the creditor within 60 days of the statement date of the bill with the disputed charge.
• Include your name and account number, the date and amount of the disputed charge, and a complete explanation of why you are disputing the charge. To ensure it is received, send your letter by certified mail, with a return receipt requested.

CREDIT CARD SURCHARGES
Retailers are permitted to charge or surcharge on your credit card purchases, up to 3%, of your total purchase. If a retailer charges a surcharge, it must be clearly disclose this in the store and on your receipt.
These checkout fees may also come in the form of a discount to consumers that pay with cash. Retailers in CA, CO, CT, FL, KS, MA, ME, NY, OK, and TX are not permitted to charge credit card surcharges.
Retailers are also allowed to set a $10 minimum purchase amount for credit card purchases. However, they cannot charge fees or set minimum purchase amounts on debit card purchases. For more information on credit card surcharges, visit www.knowyourcard.org.

For more on your credit rights, visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0347-your-equal-credit-opportunity-rights. Other sources of information include the HUD Housing Counseling Clearinghouse at 1-800-569-4287, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau and the FTC.

There are many types of credit cards with various features, but there is no one best credit card. The card you use depends entirely on how you plan to use it. Are you going to use it for everyday purchases or larger purchases? Do you plan to pay your balance off each month?

When you apply for a credit card, consider:
• Annual Percentage Rate (APR). If the interest rate is variable, how is it determined, and when can it change?
• Periodic rate. This is the interest rate used to determine the finance charge on your balance each billing period.
• Annual fee. While some cards have no annual fee, others expect you to pay an amount each year for being a cardholder.
• Rewards programs. Can you earn points for flights, hotel stays, and gift certificates to your favorite retailers? Use online tools to find the card that offers the best rewards for you.
• Grace period. This is the number of days you have to pay your bill before finance charges start. Without this period, you may have to pay interest from the date you use your card or the date the purchase is posted to your account.
• Finance charges. Most lenders calculate finance charges using an average daily account balance, which is the average of what you owed each day in the billing cycle. Look for offers that use an adjusted balance, which subtracts your payment from your beginning balance. This method usually has the lowest finance charges. Check whether there is a minimum finance charge.
• Other fees. Ask about fees when you get a cash advance, make a late payment, or go over your credit limit. Some credit card companies also charge a monthly fee. Be careful: sometimes companies may also try to upsell by offering other services such as credit protection, insurance, or debt coverage. Visit www.federalreserve.gov/creditcard/fees.html for more information.

The Fair Credit and Charge Card Disclosure Act requires credit and charge card issuers to include this information on credit applications. You can also do your own research. There are many websites available to help you compare credit cards; some provide free credit card tips, reviews of credit cards, and calculators.

To view an interactive version of a sample credit card bill, visit www.federalreserve.gov/creditcard.
CREDIT CARDS DENIED IN ERROR

When your credit card issuer suspects fraudulent activity on your credit card, it triggers a red flag to deny the charge. In general, that is a great protection. But if it is you making the purchase and not a thief, it can be frustrating. Some purchase patterns that could cause your purchase to be denied include:

- A purchase for a small dollar amount, followed by a large purchase amount. Credit card thieves sometimes make a small dollar “test purchase” followed by a big ticket item, so this raises a red flag.
- Multiple purchases back-to-back in a short span of time.
- Making purchases in a new city, in a different part of town, or in stores where you do not normally shop.

• The creditor or card issuer must acknowledge your letter in writing within 30 days of receiving it and conduct an investigation within 90 days of receiving your letter. You do not have to pay the amount in dispute during the investigation.
• If there was an error, the creditor must credit your account and remove any fees.
• If the bill is correct, you must be told in writing what you owe and why. You must then pay it, along with any related finance charges.

If you do not agree with the creditor’s decision, file a complaint with the FTC. You may also file a lawsuit against the creditor.

CREDIT REPORTS AND SCORES

A credit report contains information on where you work and live, how you pay your bills, and whether you have been sued or arrested or have filed for bankruptcy. Credit reporting agencies (CRAs) gather this information and sell it to creditors, employers, insurers, and others. The most common type of CRA is the credit bureau. There are three major credit bureaus:

  To place a fraud alert on your credit report, call 1-888-766-0008.
- TransUnion: 1-877-322-8228 or www.transunion.com or fraud alert 1-800-680-7289.

FICO

The information in your credit report is used to calculate your FICO score, a number generally between 300 and 850. The acronym stands for Fair, Isaac and Company. The higher your score, the less risk you pose to creditors. A high score, for example, makes it easier for you to obtain a loan, rent an apartment, or lower your insurance rate. Your FICO score is available from www.myfico.com for a fee. Free credit reports do not contain your credit score, although you can purchase it when you request your free annual credit report through www.annualcreditreport.com.

Tips for Building a Better Credit Score

- Pay your bills on time. Delinquent payments and collections negatively affect your score.
- Keep balances low on credit cards and other “revolving credit.” High outstanding debt lowers your score.
- Apply for and open new credit accounts only as needed. Don’t open an account just to have a better credit mix; it probably will not raise your score.
- Pay off debt instead of moving it around.

You do not rebuild your credit score; you rebuild your credit history. Time is your ally in improving credit. There is no “quick fix” for a bad credit score, so be suspicious of any deals that offer you a fast, easy solution.

Negative Information in Your Credit Report

Negative information concerning your use of credit can be kept in your credit report for seven years. A bankruptcy can be kept for 10 years, paid tax liens for seven years and unpaid tax liens indefinitely. Information about a lawsuit or an unpaid judgment against you can be reported for seven years or until the statute of limitations runs out, whichever is longer. Inquiries remain on your report for two years.

If a company denies you credit, housing, insurance, or a job as a result of a credit report it must give you the name, address, and telephone number of the CRA that provided the report. Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), you have the right to request a free report within 60 days if a company denies you credit based on the report.

If there is inaccurate or incomplete information in your credit report:

- Contact the CRA and the company that provided the information.
- Tell the CRA in writing what information you believe is inaccurate. Keep a copy of all correspondence.

Under the FCRA, the information provider is required...
ORDER YOUR FREE CREDIT REPORTS

You can request a free credit report once a year from each of the three major credit reporting agencies—Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. You may want to request your credit reports one at a time, every four months, so you can monitor your credit throughout the year without having to pay for a report. (If you ask the credit bureaus directly, they will charge you a fee to obtain your report.) To order your free report, you must go through www.annualcreditreport.com or call 1-877-322-8228. Also, find out about getting free copies of specialty consumer reports (p. 38).

to investigate and report the results to the CRA. If the information is found to be incorrect, the FCRA requires that company to notify all nationwide CRAs to correct your file. If the investigation does not solve your dispute, ask that your statement concerning the dispute be included in your file. A notice of your dispute must be included whenever the CRA reports the negative item.

If the information is accurate, only time, hard work, and a personal debt repayment plan will improve your credit history. Credit repair companies advertise that they can erase bad credit for a hefty fee. Don’t believe it. Under the Credit Repair Organizations Act, credit repair companies cannot require you to pay until they have completed promised services. They must also give you:
• A copy of the “Consumer Credit File Rights Under State and Federal Law” before you sign a contract
• A written contract that spells out your rights and obligations
• Three days to cancel without paying any fees
Some credit repair companies promise to help you establish a whole new credit identity. You can be charged with fraud if you use the mail or telephone to apply for credit with false information. It is also a federal crime to make false statements on a loan or credit application, to give a false Social Security number, or to obtain an Employer Identification Number from the Internal Revenue Service under false pretenses. If you have lost money to a credit repair scam, contact your state or local consumer affairs office (p. 107).

DEALING WITH DEBT

If you want to reduce your amount of debt, you can do some work on your own. First, develop a realistic budget so you can see your income and expenses in one place and look for ways to save money. For help in creating a budget, visit www.mymoney.gov or www.consumer.gov/articles/1002-making-budget#Iwhat-it-is. Also, contact your creditors and inform them that you are having difficulty making payments; they may be able to modify your payment plan.

Debt Collection

The Fair Debt Collection Practices Act applies to those who collect debts owed to creditors for personal, family, and household expenditures. These debts include car loans, mortgages, charge accounts, and money owed for medical bills. A debt collector is someone hired to collect money you owe.

Within five days after a debt collector first contacts you, the collector must send you a written notice that tells you the name of the creditor, how much you owe, and what action to take if you believe you do not owe the money. If you owe the money or part of it, contact the creditor to arrange for payment. If you believe you do not owe the money, contact the creditor in writing and send a copy to the collection agency with a letter telling it not to contact you.

A debt collector may not:
• Contact you at unreasonable times, for example, before 8 am or after 9 pm, unless you agree.
• Contact you at work if you tell the debt collector your employer disapproves.
• Contact you after you write a letter telling the collector to stop, except to notify you if the collector or creditor plans to take a specific action.
• Contact your friends, relatives, employer, or others, except to find out where you live and work.
• Harass you with repeated telephone calls, profane language, or threats to harm you.
• Make any false statement or claim you will be arrested.
• Threaten to have money deducted from your paycheck or to sue you, unless the collection agency or creditor intends to do so and it is legal.

To file a complaint about a debt collection company, contact the FTC (p. 103) and your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 107).

Credit Counseling Services

Counseling services are available to help people budget money and pay bills. Credit unions, extension offices, military family service centers, and religious organizations are among those that may offer free or low-cost credit counseling.

Some local nonprofit agencies provide educational programs on money management and can help you develop debt payment plans. Make certain that the agency is accredited by the Council on Accreditation (COA) or the International Organization for Standardization (ISO). The counselor should also be certified by the Association of Independent Consumer Credit Counseling Agencies (AICCCA) or the National Foundation for Credit Counseling (NFCC).
Typically, a counseling service will negotiate lower payments with your creditors, and then make the payments using money you send to it each month. The cost of setting up this debt-management plan is paid by the creditor, not you. Ask these questions to find the best counselor for you:

• What services do you offer? Look for an organization that offers budget counseling and money management classes as well as debt-management planning.
• Do you offer free information? Avoid organizations that charge for information or make you provide a lot of details about your problem first.
• What are your fees? Are there set-up and/or monthly fees? Beware of agencies that charge large up-front fees.
• How will the debt-management plan work? What debts can be included in the plan, and will you get regular reports on your accounts?
• Can they get creditors to lower or eliminate interest and fees. If the answer is yes, contact your creditors to verify this.
• Are the fees mandatory or is it possible to get services for a reduced price or for free? If an organization will not help you because you cannot afford to pay, go somewhere else for help.
• Will the counselor help you prevent future debt problems? Getting a plan for avoiding future debt is as important as solving the immediate debt problem.
• Ask for a contract. All verbal promises should be in writing before you pay any money.
• Are your counselors accredited or certified? Legitimate credit counseling firms are affiliated with the NFCC (p. 138) or the Association of Independent Consumer Credit Counseling Agencies (p. 136).

Check with your local consumer protection agency (p. 107) and the Better Business Bureau (p. 65) to see whether any complaints have been filed about the counseling service you are considering.

If you have concerns about approved credit counseling agencies or credit counseling providers, please contact the U.S. Trustee Program at www.justice.gov/ust or call 202-514-4100.

Personal Bankruptcy
Bankruptcy generally is considered the debt management option of last resort because the results are long-lasting and far-reaching. The Bankruptcy Abuse and Prevention Act of 2005 established more stringent rules for consumers and attorneys.

The filing process may be difficult for debtors:

• Debtors must file documents, including itemized statements of monthly net income, proof of income (pay stubs) for the last 60 days, and tax returns for the preceding year (four years for Chapter 13 bankruptcies).
• Debtors must take a pre-filing credit counseling and post-filing education course to have debts discharged. To find an approved credit counseling provider, visit www.justice.gov/ust.

• Debtors face increased filing fees, plus fees for credit counseling/education.
• The bankruptcy petition and process are complicated, so it is very difficult to file without an attorney. However, attorneys are more apprehensive about filing bankruptcy because of sanctions.

The filing process for lawyers:

• An attorney’s signature on a petition certifies that the attorney has performed reasonable investigation into circumstances giving rise to the petition.
• Attorneys must carefully review documents such as tax returns and pay stubs and ask clients for credit reports.

LOANS
There are different types of loans. Some are secured loans, where you pledge collateral. Collateral is an item you already own, such as a house or car, that you promise to forfeit to the lender if you are unable to repay the loan. If you cannot pay back the loan, the lender will take your collateral to get their money back. Other types of loans, unsecured loans, do not use property as collateral. Lenders consider these as more risky than secured loans, so they charge a higher interest rate for them. Most credit cards are unsecured loans, although some consumers have secured credit cards. Two very common secured loans are home equity and installment loans.

Home Equity Loans
A home equity loan is a form of credit where your home is used as collateral for the loan. This type of loan is often used to pay for major expenses, such as education, medical bills, and home repairs. Consider carefully before taking out a home equity loan. If you are unable to make payments on time, you could lose your home.

Home equity loans can be either a revolving line of credit or a lump sum. Revolving credit lets you withdraw funds when you need them. A lump sum is a one-time, closed-end loan for a particular purpose, such as remodeling or tuition. Apply for a home equity loan through a bank or credit union first. These loans are likely to cost less than those offered by finance companies.

See Housing (p. 26) for helpful information about buying, leasing, renting, or repairing a home.

Installment Loans
Installment loans are loans that are repaid over time with a set number of scheduled payments; the most common installment loans are home or car loans. Before you sign an agreement for a loan to buy a house, a car, or other large purchase, make sure you fully understand all of the lender’s terms and conditions, including:

• The dollar amount you are borrowing.
• The payment amounts and when they are due.
• The total finance charge, including all interest and fees you must pay to get the loan.
• The APR, the rate of interest you will pay over the full term of the loan.
• Penalties for late payments.
• What the lender will do if you cannot pay back the loan.
• Penalties if you pay the loan back early.

The Truth in Lending Act requires lenders to give you this information so you can compare different offers.

The U.S. Department of Education’s website, www.studentaid.ed.gov, provides information on preparing for and funding education beyond high school with details on federal aid programs. Another source of information on financial assistance is www.finaid.org. Both sites offer calculators to help you determine how much school will cost, how much you need to save, and how much aid you will need.

There are steps you can take as you plan for college expenses. Check the Department of Education’s graphic that shows how to apply for financial aid and college at studentaid.gov/sites/default/files/financial-aid-process.png.

The Federal Work-Study Program (FWS) is a federally funded source of financial assistance used to offset financial education costs. Students who qualify earn money by working while attending school. This money does not have to be repaid.

• Loans. Funds are borrowed and must be repaid with interest. As a general rule, federal student loans have more favorable terms and lower interest rates than traditional consumer loans do.

• Scholarships. Funds are offered by the school, local/community organizations, private institutions, and trusts. Scholarships do not have to be repaid and are generally awarded based on specific criteria.

Applying for Aid
You must complete and submit a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA®) to apply for federal student aid. FAFSA on the Web is the quickest and easiest method of applying. Go to www.fafsa.gov to apply.

1-800-FED-INFO (800-333-4636) 2014 Consumer Action Handbook
Education Tax Benefits
The federal government allows you to receive tax credits, deductions, and savings plans that can help with your expenses for higher education. The tax credits can reduce the amount of income tax you have to pay, while deductions reduce the amount of your income that is taxable. Visit www.irs.gov/uac/Tax-Benefits-for-Education:-Information-Center for information on specific types of credits and deductions.

Federal Student Aid Information Center
The Federal Student Aid Information Center (FSAIC) can answer your federal student financial aid questions and can give you all the help you need for free. You can also use the FSAIC automated response system to find out whether your FAFSA℠ has been processed and to request a copy of your Student Aid Report (SAR). For FSAIC contact information, see page 94.

Federal Loan Program Repayment Information
• Public Service Loan Forgiveness Program. Offers forgiveness for outstanding federal loans for individuals working full time in public service jobs.
• Income-Based Repayment Plan. Helps to make repaying education loans more affordable for low-income borrowers.

Both programs offer generous benefits, but the rules may seem complex, so it is important to get all of the details. For more information on these programs as well as other repayment options:
• U.S. Department of Education/Federal Student Aid: www.studentaid.ed.gov/repay-loans
• National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators: www.nasfaa.org

Comparing Student Loans
The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) has a Know Before You Owe Student Loan website, www.consumerfinance.gov/paying-for-college/compare-financial-aid-and-college-cost. This financial aid tool lets you compare financial aid offers from multiple colleges.

Defauling on Student Loans
You can take steps to avoid defauling on your student loan. Before you get the loan, determine how much money you need to borrow and only borrow that amount. When you get the loan, make certain that you understand the details such as the payment terms and what type of loan you have. Once your student loan becomes due:
• Maintain accurate records of your loan, including the loan agreement, interest rates, and account numbers.
• Track your loans to stay updated on how much you owe.
• Make certain that the loan servicer has your current contact and bank account information (if payments are withdrawn automatically).

If you default, it means you failed to make payments on your student loan as scheduled. Your loan becomes delinquent the first day after you miss a payment. However, the loan is not in default until 270 days have passed without a payment. The consequences of default can be severe, including:
• The entire unpaid balance of your loan and any interest is immediately due and payable.
• Your loan account is assigned to a collection agency.
• The loan will be reported as delinquent to credit bureaus, damaging your credit rating.
• Your federal and state taxes may be withheld through a tax offset. This means that the Internal Revenue Service can take your federal and state tax refund to collect any of your defaulted student loan debt.
• Your employer can withhold money from your pay and send the money to the government. This process is called wage garnishment.

If you are having difficulty making your payments, contact your loan servicer immediately. The servicer may be able to help by changing your repayment plan, switching the due date, getting a deferment or forbearance, or consolidating your student loans.

For information to help you avoid defaulting, visit www.studentaid.ed.gov/repay-loans/default.

BEWARE: SCHOLARSHIP AND FINANCIAL AID SCAMS

Some companies offer to help you find scholarships, for a fee. If the company asks you for money up front, but does not deliver on its promises to find scholarships, it could be a scam. Red flags include:
• A “money-back guarantee.” Unscrupulous companies attach conditions that make it impossible to get the refund.
• “Secret scholarships.” Beware if a company claims to have inside knowledge of scholarship resources.

- Companies that charge ongoing “monthly” or “weekly” fees for their services.

Remember, you can get free scholarship information from a school counselor, the library and the Department of Education (p. 94).

Learn more about financial aid scams at www.studentaid.ed.gov/types/scams. If you have been the victim of a financial aid scam, report it to the Federal Trade Commission at www.ftc.gov/complaint.

EDUCATION EMPLOYMENT

Times have changed for job searching, and numerous websites are now available that post private industry jobs. Many companies also offer a way to apply online. However, these sites and new methods do not replace traditional and proven job-hunting approaches such as networking, personal contacts, business organizations, and interviewing.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES AND RECRUITERS

If you are looking for a job, you may come across ads from employment agencies or receive calls from recruiters that promise wonderful opportunities. While some companies honestly want to help you, others are more interested in taking your money. Be wary of:

• Promises to get you a job and a guaranteed income
• Up-front fees, even when you are guaranteed a refund if you are dissatisfied
• Employment agencies whose ads read like job ads
• Promotions of “previously undisclosed” government jobs. All federal jobs are announced to the public at www.usajobs.gov.

Get a copy of the employment agency contract and review it carefully before you pay any money. Check with your local consumer protection agency (p. 107) and the Better Business Bureau (p. 65) to see whether any complaints have been filed about a company.

The Federal Trade Commission (p. 103) investigates businesses that fraudulently advertise employment openings and guarantee job placement. Contact the FTC if you have a complaint.

WORK-AT-HOME COMPANIES

Not all work-at-home opportunities deliver on their promises. Some classic work-at-home schemes are medical billing, envelope stuffing, and assembly or craftwork. Ads for these businesses say, “Be part of one of America's Fastest-Growing Industries. Earn thousands of dollars a month from your home!” Legitimate work-at-home program sponsors should tell you, in writing, what is involved in the program they are selling. Here are some questions you might ask a promoter:

• What tasks will I have to perform? (Ask the program sponsor to list every step of the job.)
• Will I be paid a salary, or will my pay be based on commission?
• Who will pay me?
• When will I get my first paycheck?
• What is the total cost of the work-at-home program, including supplies, equipment, and membership fees? What will I get for my money?

The answers to these questions may help you determine whether a work-at-home program is appropriate for your circumstances and whether it is legitimate.

Multilevel Marketing

Some multilevel marketing plans are legitimate; however, others are illegal pyramid schemes. In pyramids, commissions are based on the number of distributors recruited, rather than actual products that are sold.

If you are thinking about joining what appears to be a legitimate multilevel marketing plan, take time to learn about the plan:

• What is the company's track record?
• What products does it sell?
• Does it sell products to the public at large?
• Does it have the evidence to back up the claims it makes about its product?
• Is the product competitively priced?
• Is it likely to appeal to a large customer base?
• How much does it cost to join the plan?
• Are monthly minimum sales required to earn a commission?
• Will you be required to recruit new distributors to earn your commission?

PRE-EMPLOYMENT CREDIT CHECKS

Potential employers are not just reading your résumé; they are also reviewing your credit history to find out:

• If you pay your bills on time.
• How much money you owe.
• If someone has sued you.

Potential employers must notify you and ask your permission before they request or use your credit report.

Be proactive and get a copy of your report before you begin your job search so you will know beforehand what companies see and correct inaccuracies.

If a company decides not to hire you because of your credit report, it must tell you so, as well as your rights to get a free report, and your rights to dispute the accuracy of the report.
Net-Based Business Opportunities
Many Internet business opportunities are scams that promise more than they can possibly deliver. These companies lure would-be entrepreneurs with false promises of big earnings for little effort. Some tips for finding a legitimate opportunity:

• Consider the promotion carefully.
• Study the business opportunity’s franchise disclosure document.
• Get earnings claims in writing and compare them with the experience of previous franchise and business opportunity owners.
• Visit previous franchise and business opportunity owners in person, preferably at their places of business.
• Check out the company with the local consumer protection agency (p. 107) and Better Business Bureau (p. 65) to see whether there have been any complaints.
• If the business opportunity involves selling products from well-known companies, verify the relationship with the legal department of the company whose merchandise you would promote.
• Consult an attorney, accountant, or other business advisor before you put any money down or sign any papers.
• Take your time. Promoters of fraudulent business opportunities are likely to use high-pressure sales tactics to get you to buy in. If the business opportunity is legitimate, it will still be around when you are ready to decide.

Unemployment
The government’s Unemployment Insurance Program provides benefits to eligible workers who become unemployed through no fault of their own and who meet other eligibility requirements. Each state administers its own program under federal guidelines. Eligibility requirements, benefit amounts, and length of benefits are determined by the states. For more information, go to www.dol.gov/dol/topic/unemployment-insurance/index.htm.

In addition, some states are extending unemployment benefits for eligible recipients for up to 13 additional weeks. Visit www.workforcesecurity.doleta.gov for the latest information regarding your state’s benefit programs.

Healthy Food Choices
To help you make healthy food choices, the federal government posts dietary guidelines at www.health.gov/dietaryguidelines. Federal regulations also require many foods to identify fat content, fiber, and nutrients on their labels. For more information about food labels, visit www.fda.gov/Food/ResourcesForYou/Consumers.

Check out these resources for advice, tips, and information on food shopping and nutrition:
• U.S. Department of Agriculture (p. 93)
• U.S. Food and Drug Administration (p. 97)
• Nutrition.gov (www.nutrition.gov)
• MedlinePlus.gov (www.medlineplus.gov)
• Center for Nutrition Policy and Promotion (www.cnpp.usda.gov)
• Choose My Plate (www.choosemyplate.gov)

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)
The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) helps low-income people buy the food they need to maintain good health. To receive these benefits, you must apply for benefits in your state. The availability of benefits may vary from state to state. You may qualify if you are:
• Working for low wages or working part time
• Unemployed
• Receiving welfare or other public assistance payments
• Elderly or disabled and low-income
• Homeless

Benefits are distributed on a prepaid electronic benefit card (EBT) with a PIN. Use this card at approved food stores. For more information about applying for benefits in your state, visit www.fns.usda.gov/snap/supplemental-nutrition-assistance-program-snap.
FOOD SAFETY

Food safety in the home revolves around three main functions: food storage, food handling, and cooking. By practicing a few simple rules for cleaning, separating, cooking, and chilling, you can prevent most food-borne illness in the home. The website www.foodsafety.gov is your gateway to government food safety information, including publications you can download or request. You can also visit www.recalls.gov for the latest food safety alerts and recalls.

For more information, here are some additional resources:

- Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (p. 96)
- FDA's Food Information Hotline, 1-888-723-3366
- Partnership for Food Safety Education, www.fightbac.org
- USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline, 1-888-674-6854

SAVING MONEY ON GROCERIES

It can be a challenge to make healthy food choices and stay within your food budget. Here are some tips to help you get the most from your grocery budget:

- Take an inventory of the food you already have in your home. Plan your meals for the week, keeping in mind what you already have.
- Make a shopping list and stick to it.
- Use apps to compare prices between grocery stores so that you can get the best deal.
- Compare unit prices (cost per ounce or pound) to get the best deal.
- Buy the generic store brand versions of foods.
- Take advantage of store loyalty savings programs as well as clipping coupons and online discounts. Remember that stores retain your purchase habits and use them for marketing purposes. See Protecting Your Privacy (p. 37) for more information.

- Only take advantage of the deal if you know you will eat the discounted item. It is not a deal if the food goes to waste.
- Check the amount of food in the packaging. Some food manufacturers have reduced the amount of food in the can or box of food, but charge the same price. This is basically the same as a price increase.
- Visit your local farmer’s market to find fresh produce. Arrive early to get the best selection or late to get the best deals. Fresh food spoils quickly, so do not buy more than you can eat or freeze. Find your local farmers market at search.ams.usda.gov/farmersmarkets.
- Shop for foods that are in season. When the supply is plentiful, the prices tend to be lower.
- Bring bags. Some stores charge a fee to customers who do not bring their own bags.

ORGANIC FOODS

Buying organic food is a way to eat in a healthy manner and protect the environment. These foods are grown and processed according to USDA regulations and follow specific rules concerning pest control, raising animals, and the use of additives. Keep in mind that organic and natural foods tend to be more expensive than conventionally grown foods, and that the USDA does not claim that organic food is safer or more nutritious than other foods.

To make sure a product is certified organic, look for the USDA organic seal. You can also tell whether produce was grown organically by checking the price look up code (PLU); if the first number starts with a 4, then the food was grown conventionally, if it starts with a 9, it was grown organically.

Other common labels that help you choose certain types of food products include:

- Free-Range or Cage-Free. This means the flock was provided shelter in a building, room, or area with unlimited access to food, fresh water, and the outdoors.
- Natural. As required by the USDA, meat, poultry, and egg products labeled as “natural” must be minimally processed and contain no artificial ingredients.
- Grass-Fed. Grass-fed animals receive a majority of their nutrients from grass throughout their life, while organic animals’ pasture diet may be supplemented with grain.

For more information about organic foods, visit www.ams.usda.gov.
“Going Green” means practicing an environmentally friendly and ecologically responsible lifestyle as well as making decisions to help protect the environment and sustain natural resources. There are lots of reasons to consider going green—too much trash, greenhouse gases, air and water pollution, damage to the ozone layer, and saving money. For example, switching all of the light bulbs in a home from conventional incandescent light bulbs to compact fluorescent light (CFL) bulbs could save about $40 over the life of the bulb. Other examples include:

- Turn your thermostat down two degrees in winter and up two degrees in summer.
- Make sure your walls and ceilings are well insulated.
- Replace bathroom and kitchen faucets with low-flow models.

For more ideas to help the environment and your wallet, check the EPA Pick 5 at www.epa.gov/pick5.

BUYING GREEN

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has a green products web portal (www.epa.gov/greenerproducts) to help you navigate the complex world of green products. The EPA also has a number of eco-labeling partnership programs to help you identify greener, safer, and more efficient products. Look for these EPA program labels when buying:

- Energy Star—For energy-efficient electronics and appliances (www.energystar.gov)
- WaterSense—For water-efficient products (www.epa.gov/watersense)
- Design for the Environment (DfE)—For household cleaners and other products that have been determined to be safer for both your health and the environment (www.epa.gov/dfe)
- SmartWay Certified Vehicle—For cleaner, more fuel efficient cars and trucks (www.epa.gov/smartway)

You can also choose to buy organic or locally produced food and eco-friendly clothing. For more information about national standards covering organic food, go to the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Agricultural Marketing Service at www.ams.usda.gov/AMSv1.0. There are no national standards for organic clothing, but some fabrics to consider include organic cotton, bark cloth, bamboo, and organic wool.

By making greener product choices, you are saving money on utilities and fuel, and protecting the public health and the environment.

REUSING AND RECYCLING

You can make a big impact by using the products you buy in ways that respect and protect the environment:

- Use fewer products and follow instructions for product use.
- Conserve energy, water, and materials.
- Recycle items made of materials such as glass, metal, plastic, or paper.
- Dispose of products properly.

Many utility companies offer curbside recycling programs that provide U.S. households with a responsible and convenient way to recycle materials. To locate information on recycling services and efforts in your area, check with your local government.

It is easy to dispose of many products safely. Others, such as car batteries, cell phones, televisions, paints, oils, and solvents, require special handling. You can dispose of these products responsibly through your local household hazardous waste (HHW) collection facility or at your local government’s annual HHW collection day. Some items may be given to charitable organizations or even dropped off at electronics retailers. Contact the EPA (p. 102) to help you make the right decisions about the best way to dispose of potentially hazardous waste.

ENERGY STAR APPLIANCES

ENERGY STAR-qualified appliances use about 33% less energy than standard units. You can find the ENERGY STAR logo on TVs, clothes washers and dryers, water heaters, furnaces, and many other products.

Home electronics that have earned the ENERGY STAR rating deliver exceptional features while using less energy. Saving energy helps you save money on utility bills and helps to protect the environment by reducing greenhouse gas emissions to counter climate change. For more information, visit www.energystar.gov.
HEALTH CARE

There are plenty of resources available to help you make health care decisions. Be wary of websites sponsored by companies that are trying to sell you a particular treatment. It is better to contact reputable associations or visit sites run by government agencies and recognized organizations such as the Mayo Clinic or the American Medical Association (AMA). This information should complement, not replace, what you receive from a doctor. Here are some sites that are generally recognized as reliable information sources:

- HealthFinder.gov (www.healthfinder.gov) provides information and tools to help you stay healthy.
- Mayo Clinic (www.mayoclinic.com) offers an index of diseases and much more.
- Medical Library Association (www.mlanet.org) links to websites suggested by librarians.
- MedlinePlus® (www.medlineplus.gov) provides information on illnesses, diseases, and wellness issues.

CHOOSING A DOCTOR

When searching for a primary care doctor, dentist, specialist, or other health care professional:

- Find out whether the health care professional is licensed in your state. A state or local occupational and professional licensing board will be able to give you this information.
- Ask how often the health care professional has done the procedure you need or has treated your condition. You may be able to find some of this information online.
- Check whether there have been any complaints or disciplinary actions taken against the provider you are researching. Visit www.docboard.org for more information. There are also pay-for-use sites with similar information. Visit www.healthfinder.gov and www.ahroc.gov/consumer for more advice on identifying providers.
- Find out what doctors participate in your health insurance plan. If you are having surgery, check that all providers (radiologists, anesthesiologists) are also covered by your plan, to avoid surprise bills.

Consider these questions regarding your health care provider and his or her practice:

- Does the doctor participate in your insurance plan?
- Is the office in an area that you can get to easily or does it have hours during times when you can make an appointment?
- Does the doctor have privileges to practice medicine at the hospital you prefer?
- Do you get along well with the doctor? Do you feel that you communicate well with each other and that he or she listens to your concerns and explains diagnoses and benefits of new treatments and prescriptions clearly?
- What is the doctor’s appointment cancellation policy? Will you have to pay for a cancelled appointment?

Filing a Complaint

If you have a complaint about the medical services you received from a physician, you may file a complaint with your state medical board. For a complete directory from the Federation of State Medical Boards, visit www.fsmb.org/directory_smb.html. You can also call the Federation at 817-868-4000 to get the phone number of your state’s medical board.

CHOOSING A HEALTH CARE FACILITY

Online report cards can help you compare health care facilities. Compare doctors and health care facilities at www.healthgrades.com. In addition, www.usnews.com rates hospitals based on information collected from Medicare records and other sources. The Affordable Care Act requires all hospitals to report performance publically. When determining the best health care facility for you, consider these factors:

- Does the facility accept payment from your insurance plan?
- Does your doctor have practice privileges to provide treatment to patients at the facility?
- What is the quality of the facility?
- Does the facility specialize in services and procedures that fit with your medical needs?
- Is the facility in an area you can travel to and from easily? Find health care facilities in your area at findahealthcenter.hrsa.gov/Search_HCC.aspx.

Elder Care

The need for services for seniors has become more important. The Eldercare Locator (www.eldercare.gov), a public service of the Administration for Community Living, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, is a nationwide service that connects older Americans and their caregivers with information on senior services. Visit acl.gov/Get_Help/Help_Older_Adults/Index.aspx for a list of resources to connect older persons, caregivers, and professionals with important federal, national, and local programs.

The Joint Commission accredits hospitals as well as nursing homes and other health care organizations. Specially trained investigators assess whether these organizations meet set standards. At www.qualitycheck.org, you can check on a local facility, including how it compares with others. The Joint Commission also accepts consumer complaints. You can post a complaint on its website, www.jointcommission.org.

If you are looking for a nursing home or other assisted-living facility, these organizations can help:

- Nursing Home Compare, operated by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, will help you compare the facilities in many states. Go to www.medicare.gov/nhcompare/home.asp or call 1-800-633-4227.
- Eldercare Locator (www.eldercare.gov) provides information and referral services for those seeking local and state support resources for the elderly.
- LeadingAge's (www.leadingage.org) Consumer Hub helps you locate nonprofit organizations that meet the needs of the elderly.
- The Assisted Living Federation of America (www.alfa.org) represents both for-profit and nonprofit assisted-living facilities; call 703-894-1805.
- The Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (www.carf.org) gives its seal of approval to qualifying facilities; call 1-888-281-6531 (p. 137).

PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

Your pharmacist oversees an important part of your health care by providing the medications prescribed by other health care professionals. It is important that you are proactive and communicate honestly with your pharmacist.

- Know the important dates: the open enrollment period for 2014 ran from Oct 1, 2013– March 31, 2014. If you signed up before or after those dates, it likely was a fraud. The proposed open enrollment for 2015 runs from Nov. 15, 2014– Jan. 15, 2015.
- Ask questions if anything is unclear. Double check information that is confusing.

If you suspect fraud, file a complaint with your local police department and with the FTC at www.ftc.gov/complaint. Also, contact the Health Insurance Marketplace at 1-800-318-2158 so your situation can be handled. For more information about health insurance related scams, read this resource from the FTC: www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/pdf-0120-suspect-a-health-care-scam.pdf.

Make certain that your pharmacy has your current health and prescription insurance on record so you get the best price possible.

If you have difficulty paying for your medications, contact the manufacturer; some pharmaceutical companies have patient assistance programs to help you afford your medication.

You may decide to replace a trip to the pharmacy with a visit to an online pharmacy. While there are legitimate online pharmacies, there are also some fraudulent ones that advertise prescription drugs for low prices. Beware: they can cause you more harm than good, by selling you medications that are counterfeit and do not treat your condition.

Fraudulent online pharmacies can also hurt your wallet. They may not have security processes in place to protect your personal information (ex. credit card numbers and your home address), putting your privacy at risk. They may also charge you for medicines you never received. Be suspicious if an online pharmacy:

- allows you to buy medication without a prescription from your doctor.
MEDICAL IDENTITY THEFT

Medical identity theft can occur when someone steals your personal information number to obtain medical care, buy medication, or submit fake claims to your insurer or Medicare in your name. To prevent medical identity theft, you can:

- Guard your Social Security, Medicare, and health insurance identification numbers. Only give your number to your physician or other approved health care providers.
- Review your explanation of benefits or Medicare Summary Notice to make sure that the claims match the services you received. Report questionable charges to your health insurance provider or Medicare.
- Request and carefully review a copy of your medical records for inaccuracies and conditions that you don’t have.

If you believe you have been a victim of medical identity theft, file a complaint with the FTC at 1-877-438-4338 or www.ftccomplaintassistant.gov and your health insurance company’s fraud department. If you suspect that you have been the victim of Medicare fraud, contact the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services’ Inspector General at 1-800-447-8477 or by email at HHSTips@oig.hhs.gov.

For more information about Medicare fraud, visit www.stopmedicarefraud.gov.

- offers medication at deep discounts that seem too good to be true.
- is not licensed and has no physical address in the U.S.
- sends unsolicited emails (spam) offering cheap drugs.
- does not have a licensed pharmacist available to answer your questions.

You can check FDA’s database of safe online pharmacies and get more tips to protect yourself at www.fda.gov/BeSafeRx or call 1-888-463-6332. If you suspect that a pharmacy is fake, report it to the Food and Drug Administration at www.fda.gov/Safety/ReportaProblem/ucm059315.htm.

MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE

Medicare offers prescription drug coverage to help senior citizens and others who need medical assistance get the prescription drugs they need, under Part D of the program (or Part C if you are enrolled in the Medicare Advantage Plan). Everyone with Medicare can join a drug plan to get this coverage. Not all Medicare drug plans are the same, however. If you are not sure whether a drug plan is approved by Medicare, call 1-800-633-4227. Look for the “Medicare Approved” seal on drug discount cards to make sure you are getting the best deal.

Medicare prescription drug coverage pays expenses up to $2,850; once your prescription costs exceed that amount, you will no longer have coverage and will be responsible for the full cost of your drugs. However, once your out-of-pocket spending reaches $4,550, your prescription coverage will kick back in. Any amount of prescription drug spending between $2,850 and $4,550 is called the coverage gap or Medicare “donut hole.” In 2014, if you reach the coverage gap, you will automatically get a 52.5% discount on covered brand-name drugs and a 28% discount on generic drugs. If you have limited income and resources, you may get extra help to cover prescription drugs for little or no cost.

For more information, contact the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (p. 96).

For more information about Medicare, go to www.medicare.gov.

ADVANCE MEDICAL DIRECTIVES

We all face the possibility that we may become incapacitated sometime during our lifetime. This often happens when nearing death, but it can also be the result of a temporary condition. Many people assume their spouses or children will automatically be allowed to make financial and/or medical decisions for them, but this is not necessarily true.

Advance directives are written documents that tell your doctors what kind of treatment you want if you become unable to make medical decisions (for example, if you are in a coma). Forms and laws vary from state to state, so it is a good idea to understand the laws of the state where you live when you write advance directives. It is also a good idea to make them before you are very ill. Federal law requires hospitals, nursing homes, and other institutions that receive Medicare or Medicaid funds to provide written information regarding advance medical directives to all patients upon admission.

A living will is one type of advance directive that goes into effect when a person is terminally ill. A living will does not give you the opportunity to select someone to make decisions for you, but it does allow you to specify the kind of treatment you want in specific situations. For example, you might choose to specify that you do not want to be treated with antibiotics if death is imminent. You can, if you choose, include an advance directive that you do not wish to be resuscitated if your heart stops or if you stop breathing. In this case, a Do Not Resuscitate (DNR) order would be entered on your medical chart.

Naming a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care

A durable power of attorney for health care (sometimes called a durable medical power of attorney) specifies the person you have chosen to make medical decisions for you.

- Request and carefully review a copy of your medical records for inaccuracies and conditions that you don’t have.

You can check FDA’s database of safe online pharmacies and get more tips to protect yourself at www.fda.gov/BeSafeRx or call 1-888-463-6332. If you suspect that a pharmacy is fake, report it to the Food and Drug Administration at www.fda.gov/Safety/ReportaProblem/ucm059315.htm.
It is activated when you are unconscious, or unable to make medical decisions. You need to choose someone who meets the legal requirements in your state for acting as your agent. State laws vary, but most states disqualify anyone under the age of 18, your health care provider, or employees of your health care provider. The person you choose as your agent must:

- Be willing to speak and advocate on your behalf
- Be willing to deal with conflict among friends and family members, if it arises
- Know you well and understand your wishes
- Be willing to talk with you about these issues
- Be someone you trust with your life

When choosing among housing options, there are many decisions you must make. Should you rent or buy? If you buy, what sort of financing should you choose, and what type of mortgage is best for you? The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funds housing counseling agencies throughout the country to help you make these decisions. These organizations can give you advice on buying a home, renting, defaults, foreclosures, credit issues, and reverse mortgages. To contact the agency nearest you, call 1-800-569-4287 or visit www.hud.gov. Homeowners with problems that could result in default on their mortgage or foreclosure on their property are encouraged to immediately contact a HUD-approved housing counseling agency.

If you believe you are being discriminated against during your housing search because of your race, color, nationality, religion, sex, familial status, or disability, contact HUD’s Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity (p. 98).

Buying a home is one of the most complex financial decisions you will ever make. In addition to the financial and legal issues involved, real estate agents and lenders may not be acting in your best interest.

- Real estate agents represent the seller, not the buyer. Consider hiring a buyer’s agent who works for you, not for the seller.
- Get prices on other homes. Knowing the price of other homes in a neighborhood will help you avoid paying too much.
- Have the property inspected. Use a licensed home inspector to inspect the property carefully before you agree to buy it.
- Check to see if a particular home requires you to pay any ongoing homeowners association or condo fees.

Mortgages

When shopping for a home mortgage, make sure you obtain all of the relevant information:

- Research current interest rates. Check the real estate section of your local newspaper, use the Internet, or call several lenders for information.
- Check the rates for 15-year, 20-year, and 30-year mortgages. You may be able to save thousands of dollars in interest charges by getting the shortest-term mortgage you can afford.
- Ask for details on the same loan amount, loan term, and type of loan from multiple lenders so you can compare the information. Be sure to get the APR, which takes into account not only the interest rate, but also points, broker fees, and other credit charges expressed as a yearly rate.
- Ask whether the rate is fixed or adjustable. The interest rate on adjustable-rate mortgages (ARMs) can vary a great deal over the lifetime of the mortgage. An increase of several percentage points might raise payments by hundreds of dollars per month.
- If a loan has an adjustable rate, ask when and how the rate and loan payment can change.
- Find out how much of a down payment is required. Some lenders require 20% of the home’s purchase price as a down payment. But many lenders now offer loans that require less. In these cases, you may be required to purchase private mortgage insurance (PMI) to protect the lender if you fall behind on payments.

Mortgage Refinancing

Refinancing your mortgage can help you save money. Some factors that make it a good idea, include:

- a decrease in interest rates.
- a change in the length of your mortgage.
- a change in the type of mortgage (fixed vs adjustable).

For an overview, review the Federal Reserve's publication www.federalreserve.gov/pubs/refinancings/default.htm.
• If PMI is required, ask what the total cost of the insurance will be. How much will the monthly mortgage payment be when the PMI premium is added, and how long you will be required to carry PMI?
• Ask whether you can pay off the loan early, and whether there is a penalty for doing so.

There is a long list of sources for mortgage loans: mortgage banks, mortgage brokers, banks, thrifts and credit unions, home builders, real estate agencies, and Internet lenders.

For more information on home buying and mortgages, visit www.hud.gov. Other good sources include the Mortgage Bankers Association at www.homeloanlearningcenter.com and NeighborWorks America’s home ownership website at www.keystomyhome.org.

Mortgage Transfers

Mortgage companies must notify you when your loan is sold to another company. The rules ensure that you know who owns your loan, which is important information if you have questions or payment disputes or want to discuss loan modifications. Under these rules, the company that takes over your loan must send you a notice within 30 days of acquiring it. Even with a new loan owner, the company that “services” or handles your loan might not change, and you might continue to send your mortgage payments to the same address. If that loan servicer changes, you will receive a separate notice.

Fixed-rate and adjustable-rate mortgages are the two main types of mortgages, but there is a wide variety of other mortgage products available. Below are pros and cons of some of the mortgage products you want to consider:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>TYPE OF MORTGAGE</th>
<th>PROS</th>
<th>CONS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Adjustable-rate (ARM) or variable-rate mortgage</td>
<td>Usually offers a lower initial rate of interest than fixed-rate loans.</td>
<td>After an initial period, rates fluctuate over the life of the loan. When interest rates rise, generally so do your loan payments.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Balloon mortgage</td>
<td>Usually a fixed-rate loan with relatively low payments for a fixed period.</td>
<td>After an initial period, the entire balance of the loan is due immediately. This type of loan may be risky for some borrowers.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Federal Housing Administration (FHA) loans</td>
<td>Allows buyers who may not qualify for a home loan to obtain one with a low down payment.</td>
<td>The size of your loan may be limited.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fixed-rate mortgage</td>
<td>No surprises. Interest rate stays the same over the entire term, usually 15, 20, or 30 years.</td>
<td>If interest rates fall, you could be stuck paying a higher rate.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Interest-only</td>
<td>Borrower pays only the interest on the loan in monthly payments for a fixed term.</td>
<td>After an initial period, the balance of the loan is due. This could mean higher payments, paying a lump sum, or refinancing.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reverse mortgage</td>
<td>Allows seniors to convert equity in their homes to cash; you don’t have to pay back the loan and interest as long as you live in the house.</td>
<td>Subject to aggressive lending practices and false advertising promises, particularly by lenders that prey on seniors. Check to make sure the loan is Federally insured.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Veterans Administration (VA) loan</td>
<td>Guaranteed loans for eligible veterans, active duty personnel, and surviving spouses. Offers competitive rates, low or no down payments.</td>
<td>The size of your loan may be limited.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
AVOIDING FORECLOSURE

If you miss your mortgage payments, foreclosure may occur. This is the legal means your lender can use to repossess your home. If you owe more than your property is worth, a deficiency judgment is pursed. A deficiency judgment would require you to pay the difference between the amount you owe and your home’s value. Both foreclosures and deficiency judgments have a negative impact on your credit history.

These steps can help:

• Do not ignore letters from your lender. If you are having problems making your payments, call or write to your lender’s Loss Mitigation Department immediately. Explain your situation. Be prepared to provide financial information, such as your monthly income and expenses. Without this information, the lender may not be able to help you.

• Stay in your home for now; you may not qualify for assistance if you abandon your property.

• Contact a HUD-approved housing counselor. Call 1-800-569-4287 or TDD 1-800-877-8339 for the housing counseling agency nearest you. These agencies are valuable resources.

• Contact Making Home Affordable for help. Call 1-888-995-4673, or 1-877-304-9709 for hearing-impaired homeowners, to talk to a HUD-approved credit counselor who will guide you through your options for free.

HUD counselors frequently have information on services and programs offered by government agencies as well as private and community organizations that could help you. The housing counseling agency may also offer credit counseling. These services are usually free of charge.

For more information, contact The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (p. 98).

Additional advice, resources, and tips for homeowners can be found under Home Equity Loans (p. 16) and Homeowners/Renters Insurance (p. 32).

MOVING COMPANIES

Not all moving companies are the same. Although many are legitimate, some attempt to take advantage of their clients. Follow these guidelines to help you choose the right mover:

Get a written estimate from several movers. Be wary of very low estimates. Some companies quote a low price to get a contract and later ask for more money before they will remove your belongings from their truck.

Make sure the mover has an operating license. For moves from one state to another, visit www.protectyourmove.gov to verify a mover’s license. For moves within a state, check your state, county, or local consumer affairs agency (p. 107).

Make sure the mover has insurance. If furniture is damaged during the move, the mover’s insurance should cover it. Ask how to file a complaint if there are limits to the coverage. For more information about the levels of mover’s insurance coverage, visit www.protectyourmove.gov/consumer/awareness/valuation/valuation-insurance.htm.

Check the mover’s record. Contact your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 107) or the Better Business Bureau (p. 65) to see whether there is a history of complaints.

If you have a dispute with a moving company, you can file a complaint with the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration by calling 1-888-368-7238 or by visiting www.fmcsa.dot.gov.

HOME IMPROVEMENT AND REPAIRS

Home improvements and repairs can cost thousands of dollars and are the subject of frequent complaints. When selecting a contractor:

• Get recommendations and references. Talk to friends, family, and others who have used the contractor for similar work.

• Get at least three written estimates. Insist the contractors come to your home to evaluate what needs to be done. Be sure the estimates are based on the same work so you can make meaningful comparisons.

• Check contractor complaint records with your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 107) or the Better Business Bureau (p. 65).

• Make sure the contractor meets licensing and registration requirements. Your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 107) can help you determine the necessary requirements.

• Get the names of suppliers and ask them whether the contractor makes timely payments.

• Contact your local building inspection department to check for permit and inspection requirements. Be wary if the contractor asks you to get the permit; it could mean the firm is not licensed.

• Be sure your contractor is insured. The contractor should have personal liability, property damage, and workers’ compensation insurance for workers and subcontractors. Also check with your insurance company to find out whether you are covered for any injury or damage that might occur.

- Insist on a written contract that states exactly what work will be done, the quality of materials that will be used, warranties, timetables, the names of any subcontractors, the total price of the job, and the schedule of payments.
- Try to limit your down payment. Some states have laws limiting the amount of down payment required.
- Understand your payment options. Compare the cost of getting your own loan versus contractor financing.
- Don’t make a final payment or sign a final release until you are satisfied with the work and know that subcontractors and suppliers have been paid. Some state laws allow unpaid subcontractors and suppliers to put a lien on your home for bills the contractor failed to pay.
- Pay by credit card when you can. You may have the right to withhold payment to the credit card company until problems are corrected (p. 13).

Be especially cautious if the contractor:

- Comes door-to-door or seeks you out.
- Happens to have material left over from a recent job.
- Offers you discounts for finding other customers.
- Quotes a price that is out of line with other estimates.
- Pressures you for an immediate decision.
- Can only be reached by leaving messages with an answering service.
- Has no physical address for the business.
- Has out-of-state license plates.
- Asks you to pay for the entire job up front.

With most home improvements, federal law gives you three business days to cancel without penalty. See the 3-Day Cooling-Off Rule (p. 4). Of course, you would be liable for any benefit already received. State laws may also provide some protection. And remember, if you finance home improvements with a home equity loan (p. 16) and do not make your payments, you could lose your home.

RENTING/LEASING

A lease is an agreement that outlines the obligations of the owner and the tenants of a house or apartment. It is a legally binding document that courts will generally uphold in legal proceedings, so it is important for you to know the exact terms of the lease agreement before you sign it. Before agreeing to lease an apartment to you, a landlord may review your credit report, so you may want to get a copy before you start your apartment search. Some things to look for in a lease:

- Clauses that allow the landlord to change the terms of the lease after it is signed.
- Requirements/responsibilities of the tenants to do routine repairs such as lawn maintenance, cleaning, or notification about needed repairs.
- Restrictions that would prevent you from living normally or comfortably in the home.

GET YOUR FREE RENTAL HISTORY REPORT

Are you thinking about moving to a new apartment? Be sure to order a free copy of your tenant history report. Your new landlord will use one to help determine if they will rent a home to you. Find out how in the “Get Your Free Specialty Consumer Report” box on p. 38.

- Terms of the lease and any important dates such as when the rent is due or garbage pickup days.
- Extra fees for parking spaces or storage, garbage collection, and pets.
- Information regarding utility providers, how to arrange for service and whether the landlord or tenant is responsible for paying the bills (see Utilities, page 50).

Read the lease carefully and discuss anything you do not understand or any issues you might have. All landlord responsibilities should be stated clearly. Always get a copy of the signed lease to keep in your records. Any clause or terms in the agreement affects ALL parties who sign.

Check with the Better Business Bureau (p. 65) or your local consumer protection office (p. 107) to determine if your prospective landlord has any existing complaints from previous tenants.

The Fair Housing Act protects tenants who lease or rent property. If you think your rights have been violated, you may write a letter to or call the HUD office nearest you (p. 98). You have one year after the alleged violation to file a complaint with HUD, but you should file as soon as possible.

Each state has its own set of tenant rights, laws, and protections. For a state-by-state directory, visit www.hud.gov/local. You can also find available public housing at www.hud.gov. HUD (p. 98) offers several housing assistance programs for tenants and landlords as well as information on rights of residents and displaced tenants.

The best way to win over a prospective landlord is to be prepared by:

- Bringing a completed rental application with you; written references from previous landlords, employers, friends, and colleagues; and a current copy of your credit report and rental history report (see “Specialty Consumer Reports” box, page 38).
- Carefully review the lease before you sign.
- Get all promises in writing.
- Know your rights to live in a habitable rental unit—and don’t give them up.
- Keep communication open with your landlord.
- Purchase renters insurance to cover your valuables. See more information under Homeowners/Renters Insurance (p. 32).
• Make sure the security deposit refund procedures are spelled out in your lease or rental agreement.

INSURANCE

General sources of insurance information include the American Council of Life Insurers (p. 136), the Insurance Information Institute (p. 137), the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (p. 138), and your state insurance department (p. 124). You can also visit www.insure.com.

When buying any type of insurance (home, life, auto, rental, or other), you should:

• Find out whether your state insurance department (p. 124) offers any information concerning insurance companies and rates.
• Check several sources for the best deal. Try getting quotes online, but be aware that many online services may provide prices for just a few companies. An independent insurance agent who works with several insurers in your area may be able to get you a better deal.
• Make sure the insurance company is licensed and covered by the state’s guaranty fund. The fund pays claims in case the company defaults. Your state insurance department (p. 124) can provide this information.
• Check the financial stability and soundness of the insurance company. Ratings from A.M. Best (www.ambest.com), Standard & Poor’s (www.standardandpoors.com), and Moody’s Investors Service (www.moodys.com) are available online and at most public libraries.
• Research the complaint record of the company. Contact your state insurance department (p. 124), or visit the website of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (www.naic.org), which has a database of complaints filed with state regulators.
• Find out what others think about the company’s customer service. Consumers can rate homeowner insurance companies at www.jdpower.com/insurance.
• Once you pay your first insurance premium, make sure you receive a written policy. This tells you that the agent forwarded your premium to the insurance company. If you do not receive a policy within 60 days, contact your agent and the insurance company.

If you suspect fraud, call the National Insurance Crime Bureau’s hotline, 1-800-835-6422. For more information, check out www.insurancefraud.org.

AUTO INSURANCE

Auto insurance requirements vary from state to state. Check with your state insurance regulator (p. 124) to learn more about individual requirements as well as insurers you may be considering for your policy.

To get the best coverage at the best price, get several quotes from insurance companies; it may save you hundreds of dollars a year. Other ways to reduce your insurance premium include:

• Raise your deductible on collision and comprehensive coverage. If you have an older car, you might want to drop this coverage altogether.
• Take advantage of discounts. You may be eligible for a discount based on the number of miles you drive; your age (turning 25 or 50); your good grades if you are a student; your driving record (no moving vehicle violations or accidents in three years); or if you have taken a safe-driving course. You might also be able to get discounts if you insure more than one vehicle, insure your vehicle and your home with the same company, have anti-theft devices, or have safety features such as air bags or anti-lock brake system.

You can also find valuable information about car ownership in Cars (p. 8), as well as information about insurance for rental cars (p. 11).

DISABILITY INSURANCE

Disability insurance helps you replace lost income, if you are unable to work due to sickness or injury. Many employers offer some type of disability insurance coverage for employees, or you can get an individual disability insurance policy. There are two types of disability policies: short-term disability (STD) and long-term disability (LTD). Short-term disability policies have a maximum benefit of two years, while long-term disability policies have benefits that can last the rest of your life.

GET A COPY OF YOUR INSURANCE REPORTS

Are you thinking about purchasing a new homeowner’s or auto insurance policy? Be sure to order a free copy of your insurance claim reports that your insurer will use to determine if they will sell you a policy. Find out how in the “Get Your Free Specialty Consumer Report” box (p. 38).
When purchasing disability insurance, ask:

- How is disability defined? Some policies consider you disabled if you are unable to perform the duties of any job. Better plans pay benefits if you are unable to do the usual duties of your own occupation.
- When do benefits begin? Most plans have a waiting period after an illness before payments begin.
- How long do benefits last? After the waiting period, payments are usually available until you reach age 65, though shorter or longer terms are also available.
- What dollar amount is promised? Can benefits be reduced by Social Security disability and workers’ compensation payments? Are the benefits adjusted for inflation? Will the policy provider continue making contributions to your pension plan so you have retirement benefits when the disability coverage ends?

For more information on disability insurance, visit www.iii.org.

HEALTH INSURANCE

Affordable Care Act

The Affordable Care Act (ACA) put comprehensive health insurance reforms in place, beginning in 2010. The law is intended to lower health care costs, provide more health care choices, and enhance the quality of health care for all Americans. Major provisions affecting consumers include:

- Coverage for seniors who hit the Medicare Prescription Drug “donut hole,” (p. 25) including a rebate for those who reach the gap in drug coverage.
- Expanded coverage for young adults, allowing them to stay on their parents’ plan until they are 26 years old.
- Providing access to insurance for uninsured Americans with pre-existing conditions.
- Expanded preventive care (for example, wellness visits and mammograms) to Medicare and Medicaid participants.
- Medical coverage to children not eligible for care under Medicaid.

For more information about the law as well as basic information about health insurance, go to www.hhs.gov/healthcare/facts/index.html.

Group Policies

Many consumers have health care coverage from their employers. Others have medical care paid through a government program such as Medicare (p. 96), Medicaid (p. 96), or the Veterans Health Administration (p. 102).

If you have lost your group coverage from an employer as the result of unemployment, death, divorce, or loss of “dependent child” status, you may be able to continue your coverage temporarily under the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (COBRA). You, not the employer, pay for this coverage. When one of these events occur, you must be given at least 60 days to decide whether you wish to purchase the coverage.

Medicare and Medicaid

There are also health insurance programs for people who are seniors, disabled, or have low incomes.

- Medicaid provides health insurance for people with low incomes, children, and pregnant women. Eligibility is determined by your state.
- Medicare provides health insurance for people who are 65 years or older, some younger people with disabilities, and those with kidney failure.

Contact the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (p. 96) for more information on benefits.

Most states also offer free or low-cost coverage for children who do not have health insurance. Visit www.insurekidsnow.gov or call 1-877-543-7669 for more information.

HEALTH CARE PLANS

When purchasing health insurance, your choices typically will fall into one of three categories:

- Traditional fee-for-service health insurance plans are usually the most expensive choice, but they offer you the most flexibility in choosing health care providers.
- Health maintenance organizations (HMOs) offer lower co-payments and cover the costs of more preventive care, but your choice of health care providers is limited. The National Committee for Quality Assurance evaluates and accredits HMOs. You can find out whether one is accredited in your state by calling 1-888-275-7585. You can also get report cards on HMOs, by visiting www.ncqa.org.
- Preferred provider organizations (PPOs) offer lower co-payments like HMOs, but give you more flexibility in selecting a provider. A PPO gives you a list of providers you can choose from.

WARNING: If you go outside the HMO or PPO network of providers, you may have to pay a portion or all of the cost.

When choosing among different health care plans, you will need to read the fine print and ask lots of questions, such as:

- Do I have the right to go to any doctor, hospital, clinic, or pharmacy I choose?
- Are specialists such as eye doctors and dentists covered?

HEALTHCARE.GOV

Healthcare.gov is your best source for information about the Health Care Insurance Marketplace. You can learn how the Marketplace works, who can apply for insurance, how to get insurance, how to lower your costs, and more. When you are ready to apply and enroll in a health plan, Healthcare.gov is the place for that too.
• Does the plan cover special conditions or treatments such as pregnancy, psychiatric care, and physical therapy?
• Does the plan cover home care or nursing home care?
• Will the plan cover all medications my physician may prescribe?
• What are the deductibles? Are there any co-payments? Deductibles are the amount you must pay before your insurance company will pay a claim. These differ from co-payments, which are the amount of money you pay when you receive medical services or a prescription.
• What is the most I will have to pay out of my own pocket to cover expenses?
• If there is a dispute about a bill or service, how is it handled? In some plans, you may be required to have a third party decide how to settle the problem.

HOMEOWNERS/RENTERS INSURANCE
You may be able to save hundreds of dollars a year on homeowners insurance by shopping around. You can also save money by following these tips:
• Consider a higher deductible. Increasing your deductible by just a few hundred dollars can make a big difference in your premiums.
• Ask your insurance agent about discounts. You may be able to get a lower premium if your home has safety features such as dead-bolt locks, smoke detectors, an alarm system, storm shutters, or fire-retardant roofing material. Persons over 55 years of age or long-term customers may also be offered discounts.
• Insure your house, NOT the land under it. After a disaster, the land is still there. If you do not subtract the value of the land when deciding how much homeowners insurance to buy, you will pay more than you should.
• Make certain you purchase enough coverage to replace what is insured. “Replacement” coverage gives you the money to rebuild your home and replace its contents. An “Actual Cash Value” policy is cheaper but pays the difference between your property’s worth at the time of loss minus depreciation for age and wear.
• Ask about any special coverage you might need. You may have to pay extra for computers, cameras, jewelry, art, antiques, musical instruments, stamp collections, etc.

PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY IN STORAGE
Storage units are a common way to store items that you do not have room for or use infrequently. Take these steps to protect your possessions from theft and damage:
• Get insurance. Contact your insurance provider to find out whether or not the contents of your storage unit are covered under your homeowner’s policy. If so, ask if there is a monetary limit for the coverage. Is the coverage for the depreciated cash value or the replacement value? The storage company may also offer insurance policies.
• Maintain an inventory. Use an online home inventory system, such as the Insurance Information Institute’s “Know Your Stuff” tool (www.knowyourstuff.org), to keep track of the items in your storage unit.
• Be selective. Avoid keeping documents with your personal information (social security numbers, birthdates) that can be stolen and used by ID thieves. Keep important documents in a place with more controlled access.

LIFE INSURANCE
Your need for life insurance will change over the course of your life. For example, events such as buying a home, marriage, or the arrival of children usually trigger a sharp increase in the amount you will need. As children grow older and leave the nest, you will probably need less protection. You should also consider your life insurance policies as you are planning for retirement (p. 36).
Term life insurance policies are the least costly. They pay death benefits but have no cash value if you decide to stop making payments. As the word “term” suggests, these policies are in effect for a specific period—one year or until you reach a certain age are common.
Whole life, universal life, and other cash value policies combine a long-term savings and investment product with life insurance. Canceling these policies after only a few years can cost more than double your life insurance costs.
If you have misplaced a life insurance policy, your state’s insurance commission may be able to help you locate it. Or you can search for it at www.policylocator.org. If the insurance company knows that an insured person has died, but cannot locate the beneficiaries, the company must turn the benefits over to the state’s unclaimed property office.
at www.unclaimed.org. Check with that office if you believe that you are due a benefit.

You can avoid losing your life insurance policy by alerting the policy beneficiaries and filing a copy with your will.

LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE

Medical advances have resulted in greater need for nursing home care and assisted-living. Most health insurance plans and Medicare severely limit or exclude long-term care. You should consider these costs as you plan for your retirement (p. 36).

Here are some questions to ask when considering a separate long-term care insurance policy:

• What qualifies you for benefits? Some insurers say you must be unable to perform a specific number of the following activities of daily living: eating, walking, getting from bed to a chair, dressing, bathing, using the restroom, and remaining continent.

• What type of care is covered? Does the policy cover nursing home care? What about coverage for assisted-living facilities that provide less client care than a nursing home? If you want to stay in your home, will it pay for care provided by visiting nurses and therapists? What about help with food preparation and housecleaning?

• What will the benefit amount be? Most plans are written to provide a specific dollar benefit per day. The benefit for home care is usually about half the nursing home benefit, but some policies pay the same for both forms of care. Other plans pay only for your actual expenses.

• What is the benefit period? It is possible to get a policy with lifetime benefits, but this can be very expensive. Other options for coverage are from one to six years. The average nursing home stay is about 2.5 years.

• Is the benefit adjusted for inflation? If you buy a policy before age 60, you face the risk that a fixed daily benefit will not be enough by the time you need it.

• Is there a waiting period before benefits begin? A 20 to 100-day period is not unusual.

OTHER INSURANCE

• Catastrophic Health Care Insurance. A health plan that only covers certain types of expensive care, like hospitalizations.

• Dental and Vision Insurance. Some companies that offer health insurance plans may also allow employees to purchase separate dental and vision plans, which are not part of most standard health plans.

• Identity Theft Insurance. This type of insurance provides reimbursement to crime victims for the cost of restoring their identity and repairing credit reports. This insurance may be part of your homeowner’s insurance policy or as a stand-alone policy.

• International Health Care Insurance. A policy that provides health coverage no matter where you are in the world. The policy term is flexible, so you can purchase it only for the time you will be out of the country.

• Liability Insurance. Insurance for what the policyholder is legally obligated to pay because of bodily injury or property damage caused to another person.

• Travel Insurance. There are four kinds of travel insurance: Travel Cancellation Insurance, Baggage or Personal Effects Coverage, Emergency Medical Coverage, and Accidental Death. To learn more, a helpful website is www.insuremytrip.com. See page 47 for additional insight on travel concerns and problems.

• Umbrella Insurance. A policy that supplements the insurance you already have for home, auto, and other personal property. Umbrella insurance can help cover costs that exceed the limits of other policies.

Contact your current insurance provider or state insurance commission for more information on these insurance policies.

INVESTING

If you have a financial goal in mind, such as saving for retirement, paying for college, or buying a new house, then you may decide to invest your money to earn enough to fund your goals. Before you invest, do some homework. What is your tolerance for risk? What do you want to invest in? Stocks? Bonds? Mutual funds? Do you want to open an IRA or buy an annuity? Does your employer offer a 401(k)? Remember, every investment involves some degree of risk. Most securities are not insured by the federal government if they lose money or fail, even if you purchase them through a bank or credit union that offers federally insured savings accounts. Make sure you have answers to all of these questions before you invest:

• How quickly can you get your money back? Stocks, bonds, and shares in mutual funds usually can be sold at any time, but there is no guarantee you will get back all the money you paid for them. Other investments, such as limited partnerships, certificates of deposit (CDs), or IRAs, often restrict your ability to cash out your holdings.
• What can you expect to earn on your money? While bonds generally promise a fixed return, earnings on most other securities go up and down with market changes. Keep in mind that just because an investment has done well in the past, there is no guarantee it will do well in the future.

• What type of earnings can you expect? Will you get income in the form of interest, dividends, or rent? Some investments, such as stocks and real estate, have the potential for earnings and growth in value. What is the potential for earnings over time?

• How much risk is involved? With any investment, there is always the risk that you will not get your money back or the earnings promised. There is usually a trade-off between risk and reward—the higher the potential return, the greater the risk. While the federal government backs U.S. Treasury securities, it does not protect against loss on any other investments.

• Are your investments diversified? Some investments perform better than others in certain situations. For example, when interest rates go up, bond prices tend to go down. One industry may struggle while another prospers. Putting your money in a variety of investment options can reduce your risk.

• Are there any tax advantages to a particular investment? U.S. Savings Bonds are exempt from state and local taxes. Municipal bonds are exempt from federal income tax and, sometimes, state income tax as well. Tax-deferred investments for special goals, such as paying for college and retirement, are available that let you postpone or even avoid paying income taxes.

Affinity frauds are investment scams that target specific groups, such as the elderly, religious or ethnic communities. The investment promoters involved in these scams often are (or pretend to be) members of the group.

Affinity fraud usually involves either a fake investment or an investment where the scammer lies about the investment’s risk of loss, earnings or historical performance. Many affinity frauds are Ponzi or pyramid schemes.

Take these steps to avoid being a victim of affinity fraud:

• Research the investment promoter’s professional background (even if you know him or her), as well as the investment itself. Use independent information, not just brochures provided by the promoter.

• Check to see if this person is licensed and verify with the SEC (p. 104) and your state’s securities regulator.

• Don’t make an investment based solely on the recommendation of a member of an organization or group to which you belong.

• Beware of promises of spectacular profits or “guaranteed” returns, with little risk.

• Be skeptical if the details of the investment opportunity are not in writing.

• Don’t be pressured or rushed into buying an investment. Contact the SEC (p. 104) or your state’s securities administrator (p. 128) if you have questions about investments or to file a complaint about investment fraud.

The text of these files at www.sec.gov/edgar.shtml. Contact the SEC’s Investor Information Service at 1-800-732-0330 to ask your investment related questions, get alerts, and learn how to file a complaint.

The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) also provides up-to-date market data and information for a wide range of stocks, bonds, mutual funds, and other securities through its Market Data Center at www.finra.org/marketdata.

The following companies rate the financial condition of corporations and municipalities issuing bonds. Their ratings are available online and at many public libraries:

• Standard & Poor’s (www.standardandpoors.com)

• Moody’s Investors Service (www.moodys.com)

ONLINE TRADING

Stocks can be bought and sold with a mouse click from a wide range of online brokers, often with low transaction fees. However, the value of some stocks can instantly go from high to low. Online trading is quick and easy, but online investing requires research and takes time. Before you trade, ask questions and learn how to limit losses in this fast-moving marketplace by:

• Knowing what you are buying.

• Understanding why you are buying or selling.

• Being aware of how quickly trading changes during fast markets.

Like other purchases, you should set a price limit, to avoid buying or selling at prices higher or lower than you wanted. For more detailed information about online investing, visit www.investor.gov.

FINANCIAL BROKERS AND ADVISORS

A financial professional can have multiple titles and be authorized to provide multiple services, including investment, financial planning, and insurance products. Keep in mind that a professional title is not the same as a license. When researching a financial professional, find out what the titles and licenses mean, as well as the educational, work experience, and ethical requirements; check FINRA’s Investment Professional tool at www.finra.org/Investors/ToolsCalculators/professionalDesignations to understand the designations and the organizations that offer them. Remember, that the SEC, FINRA, and state regulators do not grant or endorse any professional titles.

When selecting a broker or investment advisor, research the person’s education and professional history as well as the firm the person works for. Ask:

• Has the person worked with others who have circumstances similar to yours?

• Is the person licensed in your state? Your state securities regulator (p. 128) lists individuals and firms that are registered in your state. Ask whether the regulatory office has any other background information. You can find out how to reach your state securities regulator by visiting www.nasaa.org.

• Has the person had any run-ins with regulators or received serious complaints from investors? Call your local state securities regulator or the SEC (p. 104). You can also check out www.finra.org/brokercheck to find licensing, employment, and disciplinary information.

• How is the person paid? Is it an hourly rate, a flat fee, or a commission that depends on the investments you make? Does the person get a bonus from his or her firm for selling you a particular product?

• What are the fees for setting up and servicing your account?

Additional organizations that could be helpful are:

- The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) provides consumer alerts and advisories. Visit www.cftc.gov/ConsumerProtection. The CFTC oversees the Reparations Program that resolves disputes between commodity customers and commodity professionals. You can institute "reparations" proceedings against commodity professionals registered with the CFTC if they violate the anti-fraud or other provisions of the Commodity Exchange Act. To ask a question, report information, or submit a complaint, contact the CFTC (p. 104).
- Both the North American Securities Administrators Association and the National Futures Association (p. 138) can offer helpful information.

INVESTING IN GOLD AND COMMODITIES

Some financial experts recommend buying precious metals as part of a balanced portfolio. Some suggest buying only a small amount because values can fluctuate; others recommend larger investments.

There are a number of ways to invest in precious metals; common ones include bullion, certificates, and coins. Most people depend on an investment advisor or company to help them choose. Make sure the person and company you choose is licensed with a government agency. If you are considering investing in coins, check the U.S. Mint website at www.usmint.gov. Before you purchase coins or coin-related products, research the seller with a government agency, such as your state consumer protection office (p. 107) or the Federal Trade Commission (p. 103) or other sources such as the Better Business Bureau (p. 65).

Trading in commodity futures is different from investing. Commodity futures are an agreement to buy or sell a specific quantity of a variety of commodities such as precious metals, grains, or other natural resources. Trading commodity futures and options is a volatile, complex and risky venture that is rarely suitable for individual investors or “retail customers.” Before participating in the commodities market, check the registration status and background of the person and company at www.nfa.futures.org/basicnet. Anyone who trades or gives advice to the public about futures must be registered with the National Futures Association (p. 138). The CFTC also provides additional information about how to protect yourself before and during trading in the commodities and options markets at www.cftc.gov/ConsumerProtection.

RETIREMENT PLANNING

Part of smart investing is planning for retirement. The average American spends 20 years in retirement, but fewer than half of Americans calculate how much they need to save for their retirement years. Regardless of your age, it is never too early or too late to start.

The three major components of a retirement portfolio are generally benefits from pensions, savings and investments, and Social Security.

If you are still working and your employer offers a plan, find out how it works. If your employer has a 401(k) plan and offers to put some money in if you do (called a match), this should be the first place where you save. Make sure you understand how a job change might affect your employer-based retirement plan and what your options are for saving that money. If you switch jobs before you are fully vested, you may lose a significant amount of money invested.

As you approach retirement, there are many factors to consider. Experts advise that you will need about 80% of your pre-retirement income in your retirement years. The exact amount, of course, depends on your individual needs.

For example:
- At what age do you plan to retire?
- Will your spouse or partner retire when you do?
- Where do you plan to live? Will you downsize, own, or rent your home?
- Do you expect to work part time?
- Will you have the same medical insurance you had while working? Will coverage change?
- Do you want to travel or pursue a new hobby that might be costly?
- If you have a financial advisor, talk to him or her about your plans.

In addition to planning to maintain your lifestyle during retirement, you may need to purchase long-term health insurance (p. 33) or to pay for assisted-living services (p. 24).

Identity thieves steal your personal information to commit fraud. They can damage your credit status and cost you time and money to restore your good name. You may not know that you are the victim of ID theft until you experience a financial consequence (mystery bills, credit collections, denied loans) down the road from actions that the thief has taken with your ID. To reduce your risk of becoming a victim, follow these tips:

• Don't carry your Social Security card in your wallet or write your number on your checks. Only give out your social security number (SSN) when absolutely necessary.

• Protect your PIN. Never write a PIN on a credit/debit card or on a slip of paper kept in your wallet.

• Watch out for “shoulder surfers.” Use your free hand to shield the keypad when typing your passwords on computers and at ATMs.

• Phone or mail solicitations. Be skeptical when salespersons call and ask for your name, birthdate, social security number, or bank account number.

• Collect mail promptly. Ask the post office to put your mail on hold when you are away from home for more than a day or two.

• Pay attention to your billing cycles. If bills or financial statements are late, contact the sender.

• Keep your receipts. Ask for carbons and incorrect charge slips as well. Promptly compare receipts with account statements. Watch for unauthorized transactions.

• Tear up or shred unwanted receipts, credit offers, account statements, expired cards, etc., to prevent “dumpster divers” (p. 7) from getting your personal information.

• Store personal information in a safe place at home and at work. Don't leave it lying around.

• Don't respond to unsolicited requests for personal information in the mail, over the phone, or online.

• Install firewalls and virus-detection software on your home computer.

• Create complex passwords that identity thieves cannot guess easily.

• Order your credit report once a year. Check it more frequently if you suspect someone has gained access to your account information. See Free Credit Reports (p. 15).

REPORTING IDENTITY THEFT

If you are a victim of identity theft, follow these steps:

• Report it to your financial institution. Call the phone number on your account statement or on the back of your credit or debit card.

• Report the fraud to your local police. Keep a copy of the police report, which will make it easier to prove your case to creditors and retailers.

• Contact the credit reporting bureaus (p. 14) and ask them to flag your account with a fraud alert, which asks merchants not to grant new credit without your approval.

If your identity has been stolen, the Federal Trade Commission recommends that you create an ID theft report. This report will help you deal with the credit reporting agencies and companies that extended credit to the identity thief using your name. In order to file an ID theft report, first report the crime to the FTC and print a copy of the details. This detailed report is also called an ID theft affidavit. Then file the crime with your local police department; get a copy of that report. Together, your ID theft affidavit and your police report make up your ID theft report. For more information about creating an ID theft report, visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0277-create-identity-theft-report. You can file your complaint with the FTC at www.ftccomplaintassistant.gov or by calling toll free 1-877-438-4338.

PROTECTING YOUR PRIVACY

Today, it’s quick and easy to get a credit card approved, transfer money from one account to another, renew your driver’s license, fill a prescription from your doctor at your local pharmacy, use store loyalty cards, and purchase...
To help protect your privacy, follow these tips:

- Look for privacy statements on websites, sales materials, and forms you fill out. If a website claims to follow a set of established voluntary standards, read the standards. Don’t assume it provides the level of privacy you want.

- Ask how your personal information will be stored and used.

- Only provide the purchase date, model/serial numbers, and your contact information on warranty registration forms.

- Discuss privacy with others in your home. Everyone, even children, should understand what information is not appropriate to share on the phone, while using a computer, tablet, smart phone and in other situations.

- Check with your state or local consumer agency (p. 107) to find out whether any state laws help protect your privacy. Some companies and industry groups have also adopted voluntary policies that address privacy concerns.

FINANCIAL PRIVACY

The FDIC (p. 103) and other federal regulators require banks, insurance companies, brokerage firms, and certain businesses that share financial information to inform you of their privacy policies. They must give you this information when you open an account and at least once every year. This includes:

- The kinds of information being collected.
- How the confidentiality and security of your information will be protected.
- What types of businesses may be provided this information.

If a business is going to share the information with anyone outside its corporate family, it must also give you the chance to “opt-out” or say no to information sharing. Even if you do not opt-out, your account numbers may not be shared with third parties for marketing purposes.

You cannot prevent certain types of information from being shared, including information needed to conduct normal business or protect against fraud, or information that is already publicly available. Also, a bank can share your information with a partner company to market products.

Your credit information has additional privacy protections under the Fair Credit Reporting Act. Only people with a legitimate business need can get a copy of your report. An employer can only get your report with your written consent. For more information on your rights under this federal law, and to find out how you can get a copy of your credit reports, see Credit Reports and Scores on page 14.

MEDICAL PRIVACY

Personal information you give to your doctor is shared with insurance companies, pharmacies, researchers, and employers based on specific regulations. The privacy of your health records is protected by federal law, specifically under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act, also known as HIPAA. The Act:

- Defines your rights over your health information.
- Sets rules and limits on who is allowed to receive and/or see your health information.

The Department of Health and Human Services, Office for Civil Rights (p. 95) is an excellent resource for complete details and advice about the HIPAA ruling. The Office for Civil Rights provides a listing of resources for consumers, providers, and advocates, along with fact sheets and other educational materials.
You can request a copy of your medical records from the provider or from the hospital where medical services were provided. You will probably be charged a fee to cover retrieving and mailing copies to you.

If you believe that a person, agency, or organization covered under the HIPAA Privacy Rule violated your health information privacy rights or committed another violation of the Privacy Rule, you may be able to file a written complaint with the Department of Health and Human Services, Office for Civil Rights (p. 95).

For more information on how the federal government protects your personal health information, visit the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office for Civil Rights website at www.hhs.gov/ocr/privacy.

ONLINE PRIVACY

In addition to following the general advice on protecting your privacy, make sure you only use websites with acceptable privacy policies.

- Look for a privacy policy statement or seal that indicates the site abides by privacy standards. Take the time to read how your privacy is protected.
- Look for signals that you are using a secure web page. A secure site encrypts or scrambles personal information so it cannot be intercepted easily. Signals include a screen notice that says you are on a secure site, a closed padlock or unbroken key in the bottom corner of your screen, or the first letters of the Internet address you are viewing change from “http” to “https.”

Another threat to your privacy is spyware, software that is secretly installed when you download screensavers, games, music, and other applications. Spyware sends information about your online activities to a third party, usually to target you with pop-up ads. Browsers and search engines, enable you to block pop-ups. You can also install anti-spyware software to stop this threat to your privacy. For more information, see Internet on page 40.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Choices for phone service, Internet, and television have never been greater. As devices have multiple functions, such as the ability to watch television shows on your computer or surf the Internet using your phone, your decisions about each of these services may overlap. Most consumers are now able to bundle phone, TV, and Internet service for a discount; however, buying a bundle of services could make it more difficult to change providers for any one service if you are tied into a long-term contract. Before you buy, it is important to compare service providers and options to make sure you are getting what you want as well as the best deal possible to meet your needs.
INTERNET

Choosing Service Providers
To connect your computer to the Internet, you will need an Internet Service Provider (ISP). Some companies limit their service to providing Internet access only. Others, such as a telephone or cable company, may offer Internet access as part of a larger package of services.

Consider these factors when selecting a provider:

- Speed. If you only want to check email and read web pages, a dial-up connection may be enough. But if you want to download music or television shows or watch videos, you will need a faster connection with broadband access, such as a digital subscriber line (DSL), cable modem, or satellite.

- Availability. Which companies offer service in your area?

- Wireless access. Can you get a wireless connection for other computers in your home?

- Email. Do email accounts come with the service? What will be the storage limit on your mailbox?

- Software. Is any software required to activate the service?

- Support. What kinds of support are available—phone, email, chat, etc.? Is the support free?

- Special features. What services are provided for spam blocking, virus protection, instant messaging, and chat rooms?

- Terms of service. Is there a limit to the amount of data you can use per month?

- Cost. What is the monthly fee for the service? Are there fees for renting a modem or set up?

Wi-Fi (Wireless)
Going wireless provides you with the freedom to use your computer in multiple locations. However, with this increased freedom comes the danger of increased vulnerability. Wireless Internet requires that you have access to a wireless network via a wireless router. It is important that you secure your network so strangers (or neighbors) cannot use your network without your knowledge (also known as “piggybacking”). Also, computer hackers could use your network to access personal information you save on/or send from your computer. This is particularly important if you conduct financial transactions online. If you use the wireless (Wi-Fi) network at bookstores, airports, coffee shops, or other public places, there are other precautions you should take to protect your privacy.

At home:

- Turn on encryption. When you buy a wireless router, it is important to turn on the encryption feature. This scrambles information that you send over the Internet so other people cannot access it.

- Rename your router. Change the name from the manufacturer’s default name to something only you would know.

- Change the password. Routers come with a standard password. Create a new one with a mix of letters, numbers, and special characters.

- Turn off your router when you are not using it.

- Be aware of cookies. Cookies are small text files that some websites place on your computer to collect information about the pages you view and your activities on the site. They also allow the site to recognize you when you return. For more information, visit www.ftc.gov/ftc/cookies.shtm.

PROTECTING CHILDREN ONLINE

The Children’s Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA) requires websites and apps to obtain parental consent before collecting, using, or disclosing personal information submitted or uploaded by children under the age of 13.

In 2013, the FTC updated the list of children’s personal information to include usernames, mobile device IDs, IP addresses, photos, videos or audio voice recordings of the child. It also restricts websites from collecting a child’s name, address, phone number, and email address. Visit www.onguardonline.gov/blog/if-theyre-app-y-and-you-know-it to find more ways to keep your children safe online.

DO YOU REALLY OWN THOSE SONGS?

Today many consumers purchase music as digital downloads to play on digital music players or mobile devices. However, just because you buy the file, does not mean you actually own the song. A media service provider sells you a license to listen to your downloaded music, but that license may restrict your ability to lend, burn a copy, share, or transfer the contents to your music library. You may be able to use the songs on several devices; the rules vary from provider to provider. Before you download or click “I Agree,” know your rights under the terms of service agreement. For more information about digital copyright, contact the United States Patent and Trademark Office (p. 94).

On public wireless networks:

- Don’t assume the network is secure. Most public wireless networks do not encrypt information you send. Avoid sending private information from public locations. Or, consider using a virtual private network (VPN) to secure information you send via public networks.

- Use encrypted websites. If you must send sensitive information from a public network, make certain that URL starts with “https” (“s” means secure). Look for that on every page you visit.
• Log off sites after you finish using them rather than using "remember me" features.

For more information about wireless computing, visit www.onguardonline.gov.

Online File Sharing

Every day, millions of computer users share files online. Whether music, games, video, or software, peer-to-peer (P2P) file sharing allows users to share all kinds of content. To share files, you download special software that connects your computer to an informal network of other computers running the same software. The software is often free and easy to access.

However, file sharing can have a number of risks. For example, when you are connected to file sharing programs, you unknowingly could allow others to copy private files you never intended to share. You could download material that is protected by copyright laws and find yourself with legal issues as a result; you could download a virus or facilitate a security breach; or you could unwittingly download pornography labeled as something else.

To secure the personal information stored on your computer, the FTC suggests that you:

- Be aware of spyware and use a good anti-spyware program.
- Close your connection when you are not using it.
- Use an effective anti-virus program and update it regularly.
- Talk with your family about file sharing.

Visit www.onguardonline.gov for more information.

Online Copyright Issues

It is illegal to make or download unauthorized copies of software or online media, such as books, music, and videos. Whether you are casually making a few copies for friends, lending disks, distributing and/or downloading pirated software via the Internet, or buying a single software program and then installing it on many computers, you are committing a copyright infringement. It does not matter whether or not you make money doing it. If you or your company is caught copying software, you may be held liable under both civil and criminal law. If the copyright owner brings a civil action against you, the owner can seek to stop you from using its software immediately and the owner can sue for as much as $150,000 for each program copied. In addition, the government can prosecute you criminally for copyright infringement. If convicted, you can be fined up to $250,000, sentenced to jail for up to five years, or both.

Preventing Online Fraud

The Internet gives you easy access to information, shopping, entertainment, financial offers, and countless other services. The flip side, however, is that it can leave you vulnerable to online scammers, identity thieves, and criminals. Online frauds are not limited to fake companies. Thieves will often try to disguise a fraudulent website by giving the site a URL close to the URL of a legitimate, well-known site. Internet criminals try to trick customers of these legitimate sites into sharing their personal information on fake sites, so they can use that information for identity theft or credit card fraud schemes. Some scam artists have even used the names of government agencies in emails and fake online ads to collect consumers' personal information.

To guard against Internet fraud, follow these tips:

- Know your seller. If you do not, do some research.

- Company websites often provide information in a section called “About Us.” Some online sellers participate in programs, such as BBBOnLine, that help resolve problems. Look for a logo or endorsement seal on the company website; this indication, however, is not a guarantee of the seller’s reliability.

- Check with state and/or local consumer offices (p. 107).

- Reading comments from other consumers is another way to check the integrity of online sellers. Some Internet auction sites post ratings of sellers based on buyers' comments. Beware of too many glowing stories the sellers themselves might have placed.

- Protect your personal information. Don't provide it in response to an email, a pop-up, or a website you have linked to from an email or web page.

- Take your time and resist any urge to “act now” to keep your account open or take advantage of a special offer.

- Use anti-virus and anti-spyware software, as well as a firewall, and update them all regularly. Make sure your operating system and web browser are set up properly and update them regularly as well.

- Protect your passwords. Don’t share your passwords with anyone. Memorize them.

- Don’t take the bait. Don’t reply to email messages that claim your credit card information or other personal information needs to be updated.

- Back up important files. Copy them onto another computer or a removable hard drive such as a USB drive. Learn whom to contact if something goes wrong online. Report suspected fraud to your bank, credit card company, or relevant authority.

The website www.onguardonline.gov provides tips to help secure your computer, guard against Internet fraud, and protect your personal information. If you have been the victim of an online fraud, report it to the Internet Crime Complaint Center at www.ic3.gov.

To keep up to date with the latest computer threats, sign up for alerts from the U.S. Department of Homeland Security at www.us-cert.gov.
Spam
Email spam is not just unwanted; it can be offensive. Decrease the number of spam emails you receive by making it difficult for spammers to get and use your email address:

- Don’t use an obvious email address, such as JaneDoe@isp.com. Instead use numbers or other digits, such as Jane4oe6@isp.com.
- Use one email address for close friends and family and another for everyone else.
- Don’t post your email address on a public web page. Spammers use software that harvests text addresses. Substitute “jane4oe6@isp.com” for “jane4oe6@isp.com,” or display your address as a graphic image, instead of the text.
- Don’t enter your address on a website before you check its privacy policy.
- Uncheck any checked boxes. Otherwise, you may be giving permission for the website and its partners to contact you.
- Don’t click on an email’s “unsubscribe” link unless you trust the sender. This action tells the sender you are there.
- Never forward chain letters, petitions, or virus warnings. All could be a spammer’s trick to collect addresses.
- Disable your email “preview pane.” This stops spam from reporting to its sender that you have received it.
- Choose an ISP that filters email. If you get lots of spam, your ISP may not be filtering effectively.
- Use spam-blocking software. Web browser software often includes free filtering options. You can also purchase special software that will accomplish this task.
- Report spam. Alert your ISP that spam is slipping through its filters. The FTC also wants to know about “unsolicited commercial email.” Forward spam to spam@uce.gov. For more information, visit www.onguardonline.gov/articles/0038-spam.

Phones
The choices for phone service have never been greater. Most consumers are now able to buy local and long-distance phone service from their telephone company, cable or satellite TV provider, or ISP. Services such as voice mail, call waiting, caller ID, and wireless may be offered as a package deal or sold separately. Before you buy, compare services and prices and think about what you really need:

- Whom do you call most often?
- What time of day or day of the week do you call?
- Do you want call waiting and/or caller ID?
- How important is it for you to have your phone with you when you are away from home?

Find out how each company prices its services. Are there minimum use, time-of-day, or distance requirements; flat monthly fees; or special plans? For example, wireless service may be cheaper than regular local service if you do not make many calls. Make sure you are comparing prices on similar plans and features. Understand that many service providers offer contracts for specific periods. Read the fine print and ask questions if there is anything you are not clear about.

The Federal Communications Commission (p. 102) offers consumer information about choosing a long-distance carrier, understanding new phone fees and taxes, and more at www.fcc.gov/consumers. The FCC also offers information to help you understand phone charges at transition.fcc.gov/cgb/consumerfacts/understanding.pdf.

Slamming and Cramming
“Slamming” occurs when a phone company illegally switches your phone service without your permission. If you notice a different company name on your bill or see phone charges that are higher than normal, contact the company that slammed you and ask to be switched back to your original company. Tell the company you are exercising your right to refuse to pay charges, then report the problem to your original company and ask to be re-enrolled in your previous calling plan.

“Cramming” occurs when companies add charges to your phone bill without your permission. These charges may be for services such as voice mail, ringtones, or subscriptions. You may not notice these monthly charges because they are relatively small, $5 to $30, and look like your regular phone charges.

Take These Steps to Avoid Slammers and Crammers:

- Block changes to your phone service. Ask your telephone service provider if it offers a blocking or account protection service, which usually requires the company to notify you before making any changes to your service.
- Read the fine print on contest entry forms and coupons. You could be agreeing to switch your phone service or to buy optional services.
- Watch out for impostors. Companies could falsely claim to be your regular phone company and offer some type of discount plan or change in billing. They may also say they are taking a survey or they may pretend to be a government agency.
- Beware of “negative option notices.” You can be switched or signed up for optional services unless you say “NO” to telemarketers.
- Examine your telephone bill carefully, including pages that show the details, and look for suspicious charges.

Your phone service cannot be shut off for refusal to pay for unauthorized services. For help, contact your local or state consumer protection agency (p. 107), state public utilities commission (p. 132), or the FCC (p. 102).

Cell Phones

Before you sign a contract and choose a plan and a company that meets your needs, you should ask these types of questions:

- Where can you make and receive calls? Most providers now offer a choice of local, regional, or national plans. A local plan offers low-cost options if most of your calls are near your home. Regional plans cover a larger geographic area—sometimes several states. If you call outside the area covered by these plans, you will pay long-distance and roaming charges in addition to the airtime used. National plans are the most expensive, but they let you use your phone anywhere in the country for a single per-minute price.
- How frequently will you use the phone? If you just want a phone for emergencies, an economy plan with a few minutes a month may be all you need. On the other hand, if your cell phone is your primary phone, a plan with the lowest airtime rate is a wiser choice. If you plan to use texting, pick a plan that will meet your needs and avoid surprises on your bills. Most services allow you to upgrade a plan without an added one-time charge.
MOBILE PAYMENTS USING A DIGITAL WALLET
Paying for your purchases using a smart phone app has become more common and convenient. In a sense you have a digital wallet that contains your credit card numbers, store loyalty cards, and even digital coupons. When you get to the checkout counter, you pay by swiping your phone at the checkout. You can also use it online. Before you decide to use a digital wallet provider, make certain that your phone has the required chip that allows you to use the mobile payment app. Also find out how the mobile wallet service ensures the security of your cards and each transaction. Some questions to ask:

- Is it possible to freeze your wallet if your phone is lost or stolen?
- Are the details of your purchases shared or sold for marketing purposes?
- Is there a PIN to secure access to your digital wallet?
- Are there other security measures in place (encryption of your cards, security codes)?
- Can you freeze or delete your account remotely (via phone or website) if your phone is lost or stolen?
- Who is responsible for fraudulent or unauthorized purchases, and what is your liability if this happens?
- How do you dispute a purchase?

For more information about mobile payments, review Consumer Action’s article at www.consumer-action.org/modules/articles/your_digital_dollars-mobile_banking_and_mobile_payments.

Is a family plan option available? You can share one cellular service plan and a pool of monthly usage minutes among several phone lines. The cost of the additional numbers per month is usually less than if you purchased individual accounts.

Is there a trial period? There are “dead spots” where a cell phone does not work in certain calling areas. A trial period lets you test your service and try the features of the phone without incurring a termination fee.

Know your options. Make sure you are only buying the options or features you really need.

What if you want to cancel your service? Most providers charge a penalty. This is a concern if you have to move out of the area covered by your plan. Be sure to keep track of your usage and understand your cell phone bill to avoid “bill shock.” Visit www.fcc.gov/encyclopedia/bill-shock to learn more about reading your cell phone bill and how to better monitor your usage.

Smart Phones
Smart phones are like miniature computers; they provide basic phone functions, along with advanced features, including browsing the Internet, accessing email, interacting on online social networks, listening to music, watching videos, uploading pictures, and using apps. They also allow use of a QWERTY keyboard to make texting and emailing easy. (The keys are arranged the same way they are on a computer keyboard.)

When shopping for a smart phone, consider these tips:

- Consider the shape and size of the phone.
- Make sure you can use the keypad easily or use the finger swipe technology to make calls and send messages.
- Compare the cost of data plans. These plans govern use and costs associated with mobile access for email, web browsing, social networking and applications.
- Take advantage of special pricing and promotions.
- Is there a limit on the amount of data you can use each month?
- Be wary of buying phone insurance, which may sound tempting; consumer groups generally advise against it.

Since smart phones are like miniature computers, many of the same privacy and safety concerns apply; however, unlike computers, these devices do not have anti-virus software to protect them from malware attacks. For more information on how to protect yourself from these concerns, see Online Privacy (p. 39) and Internet (p. 40).

Pay-As-You-Go Plans
If you want cell phone service only for emergencies, or you are not sure how much you will actually use a cell phone once you get it, you may want to consider a prepaid cell phone before you commit to a long-term wireless contract. With a prepaid cell phone, there is no contract to sign and no monthly bill. You will know exactly how much you spend. The downside of prepaid plans is that you pay more per minute, and, if you do not use the phone for an extended period, you may lose the money in your account.

TV
There are many choices for consumers looking to buy new televisions today. Before buying a new TV, do your homework. It is important to see the monitors in person before buying to make sure the one you select will meet your needs. For independent ratings and reviews, check out Consumer Reports at www.consumerreports.org. Additional information is also available at www.energystar.gov.
Once you have a television, there are several options for tuning into the channels. In addition to free television, you can subscribe to cable, satellite or Internet TV.

Cable
You can start with a basic lineup of channels and go from there. The more channels you want, the more it will cost. You may want to consider video on demand so you can order movies and sports events and watch them when you like (usually within a 24-hour window). You can also buy a bundle of services that includes digital TV, digital phone, and broadband Internet access at discounted rates. Keep in mind, however, that you may be asked to sign a contract for bundled services.

Satellite
This requires a dish that is mounted outside (service requires an unobstructed view of the satellite) and a receiver that is placed by your television. Satellite TV offers comparable channels to cable TV, and you can add a digital video recorder to record shows for viewing later. Check with your satellite TV provider for channel options and prices. As with cable TV, you may be asked to sign a contract for a package of services. One downside to satellite TV is occasional interference during periods of rain or snow. Find out if there additional fees for repositioning of a satellite dish to due to bad weather or for damages due to falling tree limbs.

Internet TV
If you have a high-speed Internet connection, you are already able to watch thousands of videos on your computer. Movies and TV shows are also available and becoming more prevalent as large online companies start distributing TV programming. You may even be able to connect your computer to your television so that shows you would normally watch online can project on a larger screen. Several services allow Internet streaming for a fee, along with free access to shows on network websites.

What can you do about the growing pile of unwanted mail in your mailbox and unwelcome telemarketers on your phone? Actually, there are several things you can do:

- Tell companies you do business with to remove your name from customer lists they rent or sell to others. Look for information on how to opt-out of marketing lists on sales materials, order forms, and websites.
- Use the services provided by the Direct Marketing Association (p. 137) to remove your name from most national telemarketing, mail, and email lists.
- Call the credit reporting agencies’ notification system at 1-888-567-8688. This will reduce the number of unsolicited credit and insurance offers you get. All three major credit bureaus (p. 14) participate in this program.
- Under U.S. Postal Service (USPS) rules, it is illegal to send mail that looks like it is from a government agency when it is not. It is also illegal to send mail that looks like a bill when nothing was ordered, unless it clearly states that it is not a bill. Report violations of this rule to the USPS (p. 104).

NATIONAL DO NOT CALL REGISTRY
The federal government’s Do Not Call Registry allows you to restrict telemarketing calls permanently by registering your phone number at www.donotcall.gov or by calling 1-888-382-1222. If you receive telemarketing calls after your number has been in the national registry for three months, you can file a complaint using the same web page and toll free number.

Placing your number on this national registry will stop most telemarketing calls, but not all of them. Calls that are
TEXT MESSAGE SPAM

Spam text messages can be annoying, but did you know they are illegal? Some common scams use text message spam to lure you into revealing personal information in exchange for a “free gift”, like a gift card or vacation package.

How it works: In order to collect your gift, the message will instruct you to reply to the text with your personal information such as a bank account or your social security number. The spammer may charge your bank account so you can claim your “free gift” that you will probably never receive. In certain situations, spammers then sell your personal information to outside parties, leaving you vulnerable to identity theft.

Take these steps to limit your chances of getting scammed:

• Register your number on the National Do Not Call List.
• Delete spams messages.
• Never click on links provided in spam messages. Links often carry malware or send you to fake websites.
• Never reply to these texts or give out your personal information.
• Report the text spam to your cell phone carrier by forwarding the message to 7726 (SPAM).
• Report any unwanted commercial text messages to the FTC at www.consumer.ftc.gov.

PRE-RECORDED MESSAGES

Pre-recorded sales calls or robocalls are illegal. Companies cannot transmit these messages or send text messages to consumers who have not agreed, in writing, to accept such messages. A company cannot contact you based on a prior business relationship. Pre-recorded calls may only be made to residential telephone numbers in the following cases:

• Emergency calls needed to ensure your health and safety.
• Calls that do not include any unsolicited advertisements.
• Calls by, or on behalf of, tax-exempt nonprofit organizations.
• Calls for which you have given prior consent.

SCAMS USING GOVERNMENT AGENCY NAMES

Be suspicious of phone calls, texts, or emails that claim to be from the government. Scammers sometimes use government agency names, or fake ones that sound real. They may contact you saying that you either owe money or the government has money for you. Contact the agency involved in this claim, using the contact information in the USA.gov Index of U.S. Government Departments and Agencies at www.usa.gov/directory/federal/index.shtml and not the contact information that the caller or email provides. If you suspect a scam, report it to the FTC (p. 103) and your state consumer protection office (p. 107).

If you receive pre-recorded telemarketing calls but have not agreed to get them, file a complaint with the FCC at www.donotcall.gov or by calling 1-888-225-5322.

TELEMARKETING SALES CALLS

The Telemarketing Sales Rule defines what telemarketers can and cannot do when making a sales call. Callers must:

• Provide the seller’s name.
• Disclose that the call is a sales call.
• Tell you exactly what they are trying to sell.
• Disclose the total cost and other terms of sale before you make any payment for goods or services.
• Tell you if they do not allow refunds, exchanges, or cancellations.

If a prize is involved, the caller must give you the odds of winning, inform you that no purchase is necessary, and tell you how to get instructions for entering without buying anything. It is illegal for telemarketers to:

• Misrepresent what they are offering.
• Call before 8 am or after 9 pm.
• Threaten, intimidate, or harass you, or call again if you ask them not to.

This FTC rule applies even when you receive a call from a telemarketer in another state or country. It also applies when you make a call to a company in another state or country in response to a mail solicitation.

The rule generally does not apply when you call to order from a catalog or in response to an ad on television or radio, or in a magazine or newspaper. It also does not apply to solicitations you receive by fax or email. Beware that certain types of businesses, including nonprofit organizations, investment brokers and advisors, and banks and financial institutions, are exempt from the rule.

If you get a phone call from someone who says he or she is with your bank and/or credit company and the person asks you to provide or confirm any personal information:

• Do NOT answer any questions.
• Hang up immediately.
• Call your bank or credit card company directly and describe what happened.
Whether reserving a hotel room, buying plane tickets, or making other travel arrangements, these tips will help you get the deal you have been promised:

• Plan as far ahead as you can. Special deals on hotel rooms and airline seats often sell out very quickly.

• Be flexible in your travel plans. Hotels usually offer better rates on days when they expect fewer guests. Once you get a fare quote from an airline, ask if you can save money by leaving a day earlier or later, by taking a different flight on the same day, or by using a different airport. Changing planes during your trip is sometimes cheaper than a nonstop flight.

• Check out the seller. Ask tour operators and travel agents whether they belong to a professional association, then check to see if they are members in good standing. Contact your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 107) and the Better Business Bureau (p. 65) to find their complaint history.

• Comparison shop. Determine the complete cost of the trip in dollars, including all service charges, baggage fees, taxes, processing fees, etc.

• Beware of unusually cheap prices and freebies. These could be a scam, and you could end up paying more than the cost of a regular package tour. See information on Drip Pricing on page 2.

• Make sure you understand the terms of the deal. If you hear you have won a free vacation, ask whether you have to buy something in order to get it. If the destination is a beach resort, ask the seller how far the hotel is from the beach. Then ask the hotel.

• Ask about cancellation policies. You may want to look into travel insurance for added protection (see page 33). There are websites that offer pricing and policy information on plans from different companies and describe the different forms of policies available.

• Insist on written confirmations. Ask for written proof of reservations, rates, and dates.

• Pay by credit card. It’s not unusual to make a deposit or even pay in full for travel services before the trip. Paying by credit card gives you the right to dispute charges for services that were misrepresented or never delivered. If a travel agent or service provider says you cannot leave for at least two months, be very cautious—the deadline for disputing a credit card charge is 60 days, and most scam artists know this. (See Credit Card Billing Disputes, page 13).

In some states, travel sellers must be registered and insured. Advance payments for travel must be placed in an escrow account until services are provided. Prizes or “free” gifts may also be regulated. Contact your state or local consumer protection agency (p. 107) to find out about your rights and how to file complaints.

OPTING OUT

Tired of unwanted email filling up your inbox? You can opt-out of most unsolicited email lists by going to the “unsubscribe” button, usually found at the bottom of the message. Some senders make the button difficult to find, so you may have to do some searching.

In addition, the Direct Marketing Association (p. 137) lets you opt-out of receiving unsolicited commercial mail from many national companies for three years. You can register with this service for a small fee, but your registration only applies to organizations that use the association’s Mail Preference Service. To register, go to www.dmachoice.org. If you would like to opt-out of credit and insurance offers, you can call 1-888-567-8688 or go online at www.optoutprescreen.com, which is managed by the major credit reporting companies.

CREDIT CARD BLOCKING

When you check into a hotel or pick up your rental car, and give the clerk your credit card, the clerk will place a “block” on your card. This means that the hotel or rental company estimates the amount of your total charges and electronically tells your credit card company to hold that amount of money on your line of credit. When you check out, and settle your bill with the same credit card, the hold will be removed from your card. However, if you choose to pay the final rental cost with a different credit card, the hold will not be removed from the prior card, and your credit limit will still be reduced by that amount, for up to 15 days. In order to avoid this problem:

• Pay for the hotel stay or car rental using the same card you gave when you checked in.

• If you use a different credit card at checkout, ask the clerk to clear the block on the prior card.
RESOLVING AIR TRAVEL PROBLEMS

No matter how well you plan, you might encounter these common air travel hassles.

Delayed and Canceled Flights
Airline delays caused by bad weather, traffic control problems, and mechanical repairs are hard to predict. If your flight is canceled, most airlines will rebook you on the earliest flight possible to your destination, at no additional charge. If you are able to find a flight on another airline, ask the first airline to endorse your ticket to the new carrier. This could save you from a fare increase, but there is no rule requiring the airline to do this.

Each airline has its own policies about what it will do for delayed passengers; there are no federal requirements. If your flight is delayed or canceled, ask the airline whether it will pay for meals, lodging or a phone call. Contrary to what many people believe, airlines are not required to do so.

Delayed or Damaged Bags
If your bags are not on the conveyor belt when you arrive, file a report with the airline before you leave the airport:

• Insist the airline fill out a form and give you a copy, even if personnel say the bags will be on the next flight.
• Get the name of the person who filled out the form and a phone number.
• Confirm that the airline will deliver the bag to you without charge when it is found.

Some airlines will give you money to purchase a few necessities. If they do not provide you with cash, ask what types of articles are reimbursable and keep all receipts.

If a suitcase arrives damaged, the airline may pay for repairs if you file a claim immediately (before you leave the airport). If an item cannot be fixed, the airline will negotiate to pay you its depreciated value. The same is true for belongings packed inside a suitcase. However, airlines may refuse to pay for damage if it was caused by your failure to pack something properly rather than by the airline’s handling.

Lost Bags
If your bag is declared officially lost, you will have to submit a second, more detailed form within a time period set by the airline. The information on the form is used to estimate the value of your lost belongings. Airlines can limit their liability for delay, loss, and damage to baggage; however, they must prominently display this information (on the website and/or at the ticket counter) that explains the limit. According to the Office of Aviation Enforcement and Proceedings (airconsumer.ost.dot.gov/SA_Baggage_Limits.htm), the maximum an airline pays on lost bags and their contents is limited to $3,400 per passenger on domestic flights, and approximately $1,500 per passenger for unchecked baggage on international flights. See www.thetravelinsider.info/travelaccessories/lostbaggagerights.htm for more information on maximum liability, including special rates that change daily.

If the airline’s offer does not cover your loss fully, check your homeowner’s or renter’s insurance to see whether it covers losses away from home. Some credit card companies and travel agencies also offer optional or even automatic supplemental baggage coverage.

On those trips when you know you are carrying more than the liability limits, you may want to ask about purchasing “excess valuation” insurance from the airline when you check-in. Of course, there is no guarantee the airline will sell you this protection. The airline may refuse, especially if the item is valuable or breakable.

Overbooked Flights
Selling more tickets than there are seats is not illegal. Most airlines overbook their flights to compensate for “no-shows.” If there are more passengers than seats just before a plane is scheduled to depart, you can be “bumped” or left behind against your will. Whether you are bumped may depend on when you officially checked in for your flight, so check-in early. The U.S. Department of Transportation requires airlines to ask people to give Fraudulent timeshare resell companies take advantage of people that want to sell their property, by charging large upfront fees and urging owners to act fast. Before you sell, consider these tips to avoid being scammed:

- Don’t fall for promises and guarantees of a quick sale
- Be leery of pressure to act immediately or claims that “we’ve got a buyer right here”.
- Research complaints against the reseller with the state’s attorney general (or consumer protection office) and Better Business Bureau in the state where the timeshare property is located.

Airlines decide what to offer volunteers, such as money, a free trip, food, or lodging. Federal rules protect you if you are “bumped” on most flights within the United States and on outbound international flights. Passengers who are bumped involuntarily are protected under Federal Aviation Administration guidelines (www.faa.gov). If you volunteer to be bumped, your agreement with the airline is not regulated and will depend on negotiating at the gate.

The airline must give you a written statement describing your rights as well as the airline’s boarding priority rules and criteria. If the airline is able to get you to your final destination within two hours of your original arrival time, there is no monetary compensation. If that is not possible, the airline must pay you an amount equal to 200% of your one-way fare, with a maximum of $650. To receive this payment, you must have a confirmed reservation. You must also meet the airline’s deadlines for ticketing and check-in. An airline may offer you a free ticket on a future flight in place of a check, but you have the right to insist on a check.

Tarmac Delays

Under federal rules, U.S. airlines operating domestic flights must allow passengers to deplane after a tarmac delay of three hours. The only exceptions allowed are for safety or security, or if air traffic control advises the pilot otherwise. Carriers are also required to provide adequate food and drinking water within two hours of being delayed on the tarmac; they must also maintain operable lavatories and, if necessary, provide medical attention. You can file a complaint at www.dot.gov/airconsumer/file-consumer-complaint.

There are other protections as well, such as prohibiting airlines from scheduling chronically delayed flights. For more information, go to www.dot.gov/airconsumer, and search for Airline Passenger Protections.

CRUISES

Taking a cruise can be a fun way to travel and enjoy an all-inclusive vacation. Before you sail, you should know that your ticket is also a binding contractual agreement between you and the cruise ship company, so it is important to read all of the terms and conditions in the ticket contract. You

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS BEFORE YOU SAIL

While there are no federal laws that protect cruise passengers right now, the Cruise Line International Association (CLIA) enacted the “Cruise Passenger Bill of Rights”. This document is considered a legally enforceable contract and includes the following protections:

Medical Care

- You have the right to emergency care while on an oceanic cruise.
- If food, water, restroom facilities or medical care cannot be provided, you have the right to disembark from the ship.

Emergency

- Crew Members must be trained in emergency protocol.
- There must be a backup emergency power source in case of power failure.

Mechanical Failure/Cancellation

- You are entitled to a full refund if a cruise is completely cancelled or a partial refund, if the trip ends early due to mechanical failure.
- If a cruise ends early due to mechanical failure, you have the right to an overnight stay at an unscheduled port and transportation to the original port of disembarkation.
- You must have access to up-to-date information and changes to the itinerary in cases of mechanical failure.

For more information on the “Passenger Bill of Rights” or to read the document in full, check out www.cruising.org.
must agree to the terms, exactly as they are written or you cannot take the cruise. Before, you book tickets on a cruise, research the company and the ship’s history. Some things to look out for when reading the contract:

- Cancellation policy. Some cruises require you to cancel 50 or more days in advance of the departure date. What are your rights if you have to cancel your trip? How far in advance do you have to cancel in order to get a refund? Will it be a partial refund or for the full ticket price?
- Understand your legal rights. Your contract limits your ability to sue the company or specifies the time frame and location where a court case must be filed.
- Itinerary changes. The itinerary and ports of call can be changed at the captain's discretion.
- Refunds. Are you able to get a refund if you depart early? If so, what portion of the cruise price will be refunded.

TRAVEL SAFETY

Several federal agencies offer advice and information on the Internet or mobile apps available at apps.usa.gov that can help you have a safe trip. For advice on:

- Airline, highway, and rail safety information: Check out the U.S. Department of Transportation (p. 100) at www.dot.gov. Look up crash-safety reports on cars or find out how weather is affecting air travel and road conditions at www.fly.faa.gov or www.faa.gov/passengers.
- Safe travel by air, land, and sea: Contact the Transportation Security Administration (p. 98) at www.tsa.gov/travelers. This site posts tips on dealing with airline security checks, traveling with kids, and warnings on prohibited items.
- What to do before, during, and when returning from a trip overseas: Visit the U.S. Department of State (p. 100) at www.state.gov/travel. You can also get warnings on locations to avoid and what to do in an overseas emergency.
- Health-related travel information: Consult the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (p. 96) at www.cdc.gov/travel. Research vaccination requirements, find information on how to avoid illnesses caused by food and water, and review sanitation inspection scores on specific cruise ships.

UTILITIES

In many states, consumers can choose their telephone and energy service provider. Contact your state utility commission (p. 132) to find out whether you have a choice. Some commissions will provide a list of service providers and advice on making a choice, and most state utility commissions will take any complaints you have concerning utility sales and service.

STARTING UTILITY SERVICE

When you move into a new home or apartment, you may also be required to have the utility services (electricity, gas, water, waste removal, and cable) started in your name. Your city or county government may handle some services, such as water, sewer, and garbage collection. If you live in an apartment or are leasing a house from a homeowner, the landlord may handle this for you, but that is not required. If you request service, provide as much advance notice to the utility company as you can, at least one week in advance of the date you need service to start. Also, if you are relocating, do not forget to have service turned off at your old address. Each company may require you to pay a fee to start service. You may also be required to pay a deposit or allow the company to check your credit to establish service at your home. If any of these companies fails to meet its service requirements, file a complaint with the company; you may be able to get a refund of your installation fee. If that does not work, contact your state's utility commission (p. 132).

BILLING

Once you have established service, you should start receiving your bills at regular intervals, normally monthly or quarterly. Utility bills are based on the amount of energy or water you actually use. However, if you live in an apartment complex, the amount you pay for some utilities may be prorated or split, based on a mathematical formula, among... all of the residents in your community, no matter how energy conscious you are. If the amount of energy varies by season, you may decide to sign up for a budget billing program. These programs allow you to smooth out your monthly payments by paying more in lighter-use months, so your bills are still manageable in months with heavier use. Contact your utility companies to sign up for these programs. To learn ways to save on your energy bill, see Going Green (p. 22).

In addition to your actual service, you may have other fees on your bill, such as administrative fees, public surcharges, or local taxes. Contact the service provider if you see charges you do not understand or did not authorize, or if you have difficulty making timely payments.

If you have difficulty paying your bills, especially for electricity or gas, help is available. Contact the company to find out if it has a program in place to help consumers. Also, your state’s utility commission (p. 132) may sponsor a program to either reduce your bill or make your payments based on a set amount of your income each month. Programs like these from utility companies and local government are usually based on your income. You may also consider applying for help through the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). The benefits vary from state to state. For more information, visit www.acf.hhs.gov/programs/ocs/programs/liheap or call 1-866-674-6327.

People at all economic levels benefit from an estate plan. Upon death, an estate plan legally protects and distributes property based on your wishes and the needs of your family and/or survivors with the fewest tax consequences.

WILLS

A will is the most practical first step in estate planning. It makes clear how you want your property to be distributed after you die. Writing a will can be as simple as typing out how you want your assets to be transferred to loved ones or charitable organizations. If you do not have a will when you die, your estate will be handled in probate, and your property could be distributed differently from what you would like.

It may help to get legal advice when writing a will, particularly when it comes to understanding all of the rules of the estate disposition process in your state. For information about legal issues, see page 55. Some states, for instance, have community-property laws that entitle your surviving spouse to keep at least half of your wealth after you die, no matter what percentage you leave him or her in your will. Fees for the execution of a will vary according to its complexity.

WHAT IS PROBATE?

Probate is a legal process that takes place after you die. It involves proving that your will is valid, identifying all of your property, paying debts and taxes, and distributing your remaining property as the will directs.

Choose an Executor

An executor is the person who is responsible for settling the estate after death. Duties of an executor include:

- Taking inventory of property and belongings.
- Appraising and distributing assets.
- Paying taxes.
- Settling debts owed by the deceased.
RULES TO REMEMBER WHEN WRITING A WILL

- In most states, you must be 18 years of age or older.
- To be valid, a will must be written when you are of sound judgment and have adequate mental capacity.
- The document must clearly state that it is your will.
- An executor of your will, who ensures your estate is distributed according to your wishes, must be named.
- It is not necessary to notarize or record your will, but doing so can safeguard any claims that it is invalid. To be valid, you must sign a will in the presence of at least two witnesses.
- A financial will and testament will always supersede a last will and testament when bestowing financial assets.

Most important, the executor is legally obligated to act in the interests of the deceased, following the wishes stated in the will. Here again, it can be helpful to consult an attorney to help with the probate process or offer legal guidance. In most states, any person over the age of 18 who has not been convicted of a felony can be named executor of a will. Some people choose a lawyer, accountant, or financial consultant based on his or her professional experience. Others choose a spouse, adult child, relative, or friend. Since the role of executor can be demanding, it is often a good idea to ask the person if he or she is willing to serve. If you have been named executor in someone's will but are not able or do not want to serve, you need to file a "declination," which is a legal document that declines your designation as an executor. The contingent executor named in the will then assumes responsibility. If no contingent executor is named, the court will appoint one.

Choose Beneficiaries

As you write your will, you need to decide who you want to inherit your assets to ensure that your possessions are transferred as you want. Primary beneficiaries are your first choice to receive your assets. You should also consider choosing secondary or contingent beneficiaries. If your primary beneficiary dies before you do or does not meet a condition (ex. age) for inheritance, your secondary beneficiaries will receive your assets. Designating a secondary beneficiary can also prevent going through probate, which can be time consuming and expensive. Use specific names instead of broad categories like “nieces and nephews” when naming beneficiaries in your will.

You should also add primary and secondary beneficiaries on your individual bank accounts, the deeds to your homes and cars, contents of your safe deposit boxes, investments and insurance policies to make it easier to transfer the assets. Also, remember that establishing someone as a power of attorney does not automatically make this person a beneficiary of your assets. After you die, this person will not have the right to the money or to even access your account. If you want this person to be a beneficiary, you must state it in your will.

WRITE A SOCIAL MEDIA WILL

Social media are a part of daily life, so what happens to the online content you created once you die? If you are active online, you should consider creating a social media will, or statement of how you would like your online identity to be handled. You should appoint someone you trust as an online executor. This person will be responsible for closing your email accounts, social media profiles, and blogs after you are deceased. Take these steps to help you write a social media will:

- Review the privacy policies and the terms and conditions of each website where you have a presence.
- State how you would like your profiles to be handled. You may want to cancel your profile completely or keep it up for friends and family to visit. Some sites allow users to create a memorial profile where other users can still see your profile but cannot post anything new.
- Give the responsible person a document that lists all of the websites where you have a profile, along with your usernames and passwords.
- Stipulate in your will that the online executor should have a copy of your death certificate. The online executor may need this as proof for websites to take any actions on your behalf.
- Check to see if social media sites have account management features that let you proactively assign access to friends and family, after you die.

FUNERALS

One of the most expensive purchases many consumers will ever make is arranging for a funeral. A traditional burial, including a casket and vault, costs about $7,000. Extras such as flowers, obituary notices, cards, and limousines can add thousands of dollars more. At such a highly emotional time, many people are easily swayed to believe that their decisions reflect how they feel about the deceased and wind up spending more than may be necessary.

Most funeral providers are professionals who work to serve their clients’ needs and best interests. Unfortunately, some do not. They may take advantage of clients by insisting on unnecessary services and overcharging consumers. That is why there is a federal law, called the Funeral Rule that regulates the actions of funeral directors, homes, and services.

Many funeral providers offer a variety of package plans that include products and services that are most commonly sold. Keep in mind, you are not obligated to buy a package plan; you have the right to buy the individual products and services you prefer. As outlined by the Funeral Rule:
THE FUNERAL RULE
A federal law makes it easier for you to choose only the goods and services you want or need when planning a funeral, and to pay only for those you select. The Funeral Rule, enforced by the FTC, requires funeral directors to give you itemized prices in person and, if you ask, over the phone.

- You have the right to choose the funeral goods and services you want (with some exceptions).
- The funeral provider must state this “Rule” in writing on the general price list.
- If state or local law requires you to buy any particular item, the funeral provider must disclose it on the price list, with a reference to the specific law.
- The funeral provider may not refuse, or charge a fee, to handle a casket that you bought elsewhere.
- A funeral provider who offers cremations must make alternative urns available.
- When prepaying for funeral services, do not agree to give the check from the life insurance company directly to the funeral home. You are paying for specific goods and services, and signing over the life insurance check might result in a significant overpayment for services rendered.

For more information about the Funeral Rule, visit www.ftc.gov/bcp/edu/microsites/funerals.

Planning ahead is the best way to make informed decisions about funeral arrangements. An advance plan also spares your family from having to make choices in the middle of grief and under time constraints. Every family is different, and funeral arrangements are influenced by religious and cultural traditions, budgets, and personal preferences.

You are not legally required to use a funeral home to plan and conduct a funeral, but most people find that the services of a professional funeral home make the process easier. Comparison shopping, either in person or by phone, can save you money and is much easier when done in advance. Visit www.funerals.org to learn more about how to select a funeral home and research its history. Many funeral homes will also send you a price list by mail, but this is not required by law. If you have a problem concerning funeral matters, it is best to try to resolve it first with the funeral director. If you are dissatisfied, the Funeral Consumers Alliance (p. 106) may be able to advise you on how best to resolve your issue. You can also contact your state or local consumer protection agencies (p. 107) or the Funeral Service Consumer Assistance Program at 1-800-662-7666. Most states have a licensing board that regulates the funeral industry. You can contact the board in your state for information or help.

Prepaying
Millions of Americans have entered into contracts to prearrange their funerals and prepay some or all of the expenses involved. Various states have laws to help ensure that these advance payments are available to pay for the funeral products and services when they are needed; however, protections vary widely from state to state. Some state laws require the funeral home or cemetery to place a percentage of the prepayment in a state-regulated trust or to purchase a life insurance policy with the death benefits assigned to the funeral home or cemetery. For a list of questions to consider before prepaying for a funeral, visit www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0305-planning-your-own-funeral.

VETERANS CEMETERIES
All veterans are entitled to a free burial in a national cemetery and a grave marker. This eligibility also applies to some civilians who have provided military-related service and some Public Health Service personnel.

Spouses and dependent children also are entitled to a lot and marker when buried in a national cemetery. There are no charges for opening or closing the grave, for a vault or liner, or for setting the marker in a national cemetery. For more information, visit the Department of Veterans Affairs, National Cemetery Administration (p. 101) at www.cem.va.gov.
PART II: FILING A COMPLAINT

FILING A COMPLAINT

Even the savviest consumer has problems with a good or service at one time or another. It is your right to complain if you have a genuine consumer problem. It is also your responsibility. A problem cannot be fixed if no one knows it exists.

CONTACT THE SELLER

The first step in resolving a consumer problem is contacting the seller. You can solve most consumer problems by talking to a salesperson or customer service representative. Do this as soon as possible because some retailers have time limits on returns and refunds. If this does not work, ask for a supervisor or manager. If this fails, try going higher up to the national headquarters of the seller or the manufacturer of the item.

Many companies have a special customer relations or consumer affairs division whose primary function is solving consumer problems. Many companies provide a toll free number or address for this office on the product label, warranty, or other papers you received at the time of purchase. If this is not the case:

• Check the Corporate Consumer Directory portion of this Handbook for the contact information of several hundred corporations (p. 70).
• Visit the company’s website and look for a “Contact Us” link.

• Dial the directory of toll free numbers at 1-800-555-1212 to see whether the company has a toll free number listed.
• Ask your local librarian to assist you. Most public libraries have reference books with corporate contact information.
• As you do your search, keep in mind that the name of the manufacturer or parent company is often different from the brand name. ThomasNet, an online database of manufacturers may be helpful.
• With each person you contact, calmly and accurately explain the problem and what action you would like to be taken. A written letter is a good strategy because you will have a record of your communication with the company. The sample letter (p. 57) will help you prepare a written complaint.
• Be brief and to the point. Note all important facts about your purchase, including what you bought, serial or model numbers, the name and location of the seller, and when you made the purchase.
• State exactly what you want done about the problem and how long you are willing to wait for a response. Be reasonable.
• Don’t write an angry, sarcastic, or threatening letter. The person reading your letter probably was not responsible for your problem but could be very helpful in resolving it.
• Send your letter as certified mail or request delivery confirmation.
• Include copies of all documents regarding your problem. Keep the originals.
• Provide your name, address, and phone numbers. If an account is involved, be sure to include the account number.
• Keep a record of your efforts to contact the seller; include the name of the person with whom you spoke and what was done, if anything. You should also keep a record of the dates and times of your contact.
• If you use a company’s online complaint form, print the screen or take a screenshot before you click “submit”, so that you have a record of your complaint.

CONTACT THIRD PARTIES

Don’t give up if you are not satisfied with the seller’s response to your complaint. Once you have given the seller a reasonable amount of time to respond, consider filing a complaint with one or more of these outside organizations:

State or local consumer protection offices (p. 107). These government agencies mediate complaints, conduct investigations, and prosecute those who break consumer laws.

State regulatory agencies that have jurisdiction over the business. For example, banking (p. 120), insurance (p. 124), securities (p. 128), and utilities (p. 132) are regulated at the state level.
State and local licensing agencies. Doctors, lawyers, home improvement contractors, auto repair shops, realtors, debt collectors, and child care providers are required to register or be licensed. The board or agency that oversees this process may handle complaints and have the authority to take disciplinary action. Your state or local consumer protection office (p. 107) can help you identify the appropriate agency.

Better Business Bureaus (p. 65). This network of nonprofit organizations supported by local businesses tries to resolve buyer complaints against sellers. Records are kept on unresolved complaints as a source of information for the seller’s future customers. The umbrella organization for the BBBs assists with complaints concerning the truthfulness of national advertising and helps to settle “lemon law” disputes with automobile manufacturers through the BBB AUTO LINE program (p. 64).

Trade associations. Companies selling similar products or services often belong to an industry association that will help resolve problems between its members and consumers (p. 136).

National consumer organizations. Some of these organizations assist consumers with complaints. Others may be unable to help individuals but are interested in hearing about problems that could influence their education and advocacy efforts (p. 105).

Media programs. Local newspapers, radio stations, and television stations often have action lines or hotline services that try to resolve consumer complaints they receive. Call for Action, Inc. is a nonprofit network of consumer hotlines that educate and assist individuals with consumer problems. For more information, visit www.callforaction.org to find your local action office, or call 240-747-0229.

DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROGRAMS

Some companies and industries offer programs to address disagreements between buyers and sellers. The auto industry (p. 64) has several of these programs. The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (p. 137) offers a program to resolve investment-related disputes. Some small claims courts also offer a dispute resolution program as an alternative to a trial.

Mediation, arbitration, and conciliation are three common types of dispute resolution. During mediation, both sides involved in the dispute meet with a neutral third party and create their own agreement jointly. In arbitration, the third party decides how to settle the problem. Conciliation is similar; however, you and the other party meet with the conciliator separately (not a group meeting). Request a copy of the rules of any program before deciding to participate. You will want to know beforehand whether the decision is binding; some programs do not require both parties to accept the decision. Also ask whether participation in the program places any restrictions on your ability to take other legal action.

Some contracts include a clause that prohibits you from taking legal action and require you to engage in mandatory arbitration with a company in the case of a dispute. The clause may limit your ability to take a case to court. Be sure to read contracts carefully to see whether they include a mandatory arbitration clause. If you do not wish to be prohibited from taking legal action if needed, you can choose not to purchase an item from the company. If you have no other option, write on the contract that you don’t agree with the clause and initial next to the statement.

SMALL CLAIMS COURT

Small claims courts resolve disputes over small amounts of money. While the maximum amount that can be claimed differs from state to state, court procedures are generally simple, inexpensive, quick, and informal. Court fees are minimal, and you often get your filing fee back if you win your case. Typically, you will not need a lawyer—however, some states do not permit them. If you live in a state that allows lawyers, and the party you are suing brings one, do not be intimidated. Most judges make allowances for consumers who appear without lawyers. Even though the court is informal, the judge’s decision must be followed. If you file a case and win, the losing party should give you what the court says you are owed without further action on your part. But sometimes the losing party refuses to follow the court’s decision. When this happens, you can go back to court and ask for the order to be enforced. Depending on local laws, law enforcement officials might sell a person’s property or take money from a bank account or business cash register. If the person who owes the money receives a salary, the court might order an employer to garnish (deduct money from) a portion of each paycheck to pay you.

Check your local telephone book under the municipal, county, or state government headings for small claims court offices. Ask the clerk how to use the small claims court. Before taking your own case to court, observe a small claims court session and ask the court whether it has information that will help you prepare your presentation to the judge.

LEGAL HELP AND INFORMATION

If you need an attorney to advise or represent you, ask friends and family for recommendations. You can also contact the Lawyer Referral Service of your state, county, or city bar association listed in your local phone directory. Websites such as www.americanbar.org (American Bar Association) and www.nolo.com can help you with answers to general legal questions.

Tips for Choosing an Attorney
Many lawyers who primarily serve individuals and families are general practitioners with experience in frequently needed legal services, such as divorce and family matters, wills and probate, bankruptcy and debt problems, real estate, and criminal and/or personal injury. Some have a narrower focus. Be sure the lawyer you are considering has experience in the area for which you are seeking help.

Once You Have Identified Some Candidates:

- Call each attorney on the telephone, describe your legal issue, and find out whether he or she handles your situation.
- Ask if you will be charged for an initial consultation.
- Ask for an estimate of what the lawyer usually charges to handle your kind of case.
- Ask whether there are hourly charges or your attorney accepts a percentage of the settlement as a contingency fee. If the lawyer is paid by a contingency fee, then the he or she will only receive a payment if he or she wins your case.

The initial consultation is an opportunity for you and the lawyer to get to know each other. After listening to the description of your case, the lawyer should be able to outline your rights and liabilities as well as alternative courses of action. The initial consultation is the lawyer’s opportunity to explain what he or she can do for you and how much it will cost. You should not hesitate to ask about the attorney’s experience in handling matters such as yours. Also, do not hesitate to ask about the lawyer’s fees and the likely results. If you are considering going beyond the initial consultation and hiring the lawyer, request a written fee agreement before proceeding.

What If You Cannot Afford a Lawyer?

If you cannot afford a lawyer, you may qualify for free legal help from a Legal Aid or Legal Services Corporation (LSC) office. These offices generally offer legal assistance for such things as landlord-tenant relations, credit, utilities, family matters (for example, divorce and adoption), foreclosure, home equity fraud, Social Security benefits, welfare, unemployment, and workers’ compensation. If the Legal Aid office in your area does not handle your type of case, it may refer you to other local, state, or national organizations that can provide help. Additional resources may be found at www.lawhelp.org or www.freeadvice.com.

FILING A COMPLAINT

SAY NO TO NOTARIOS

In some countries, “notarios” help with legal problems. However, in the United States notarios have no legal authority to practice law, file legal documents on your behalf, or help you solve a consumer problem. If you need help with a legal issue, contact a lawyer with the American Bar Association (www.americanbar.org) or seek help from Legal Aid (www.nlada.org) or Legal Services (www.lsc.gov).

To find the Legal Aid office nearest to you, check a local telephone directory or contact:

National Legal Aid and Defender Association
1140 Connecticut Ave., NW, Suite 900
Washington, DC 20036
Phone: 202-452-0620
www.nlada.org

To find the Legal Services Corporation (LSC) office near you, check a local telephone directory or contact:

Legal Services Corporation Public Affairs
3333 K St., NW, 3rd Floor
Washington, DC 20007
Phone: 202-295-1500
www.lsc.gov

Free assistance may also be available from a law school program where students, supervised by attorneys, handle a variety of legal matters. Some of these programs are open to all; others limit their service to specific groups, such as senior citizens or low-income persons. Contact a law school in your area to find out whether such a program is available.

REPORT FRAUD AND SAFETY HAZARDS

If you suspect a law has been violated, contact your local or state consumer protection agency (p. 107). This agency may take action or refer you to another state organization that has authority where you live. A local law enforcement officer may also be able to provide advice and assistance.

People who have no intention of delivering what is sold, misrepresent items, sell counterfeit goods, or otherwise try to trick you out of your money are committing fraud. Violations of federal laws should be reported to the federal agency responsible for enforcement. While federal agencies are rarely able to act on behalf of individual consumers, complaints are used to document patterns of abuse, allowing the agency to take action against a company or industry.

You can find the appropriate federal agency by using the Federal Agency Directory (p. 93).
Keep copies of all of your letters, emails, warranties, work orders, order confirmation numbers, receipts, owner's manuals and related documents.

If you suspect fraud, there are some additional steps to take:

- Contact the Federal Trade Commission (p. 103). Please note—the FTC does not handle individual consumer complaints.
- Report scams that use the mail or interstate delivery service to the U.S. Postal Inspection Service (p. 104). It is illegal to use the mail to misrepresent or steal money.
- Report scams that are Internet-based to the Internet Crime Complaint Center at www.ic3.gov.

Reporting fraud promptly improves your chances of recovering what you have lost and helps law enforcement authorities stop scams or safety hazards before others are victimized.

If you suspect you have a product that poses a safety hazard, report the problem to the appropriate federal agency:

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS

Disasters can strike in many forms—fires, floods, hurricanes, tornadoes, and even national emergencies. Protecting yourself, your family, your pets, and your home or your business requires advance planning. It is equally important to know where to turn for help and information. You may even be eligible for government assistance.

There are numerous sources of information to help you prepare. To get started, check out these sites:

FOR MILITARY PERSONNEL

Today’s military families face many common consumer challenges as well as the additional stress associated with frequent separation. To ease such difficulties, Family Centers, along with the other programs described below, provide help and support for military families.

U.S. Military Family Centers
Located on most military installations, Family Centers provide information, life skills education, and support services to military members and their families. One key function of the Family Center is to link people with appropriate services available in the local community and/or through state and federal assistance programs such as those related to health and human services, school systems, employment assistance, law enforcement, and recreation.

Air Force Community Readiness and Family Support
Airman and Family Readiness Centers (A&FRC) are located on every Air Force Installation and offer a wealth of resources to airmen and their families. One-on-one consultations are available on information such as financial management, transition assistance, spouse employment, readiness, deployment, family life and relocation assistance.

RESOURCES FOR MILITARY FAMILIES

Be sure to take advantage of resources designed for military personnel and their families. Check with family readiness centers on your installation to get access to financial help. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau’s Office of Servicemember Affairs offers resources to plan your financial future and prevent being victim of fraud at www.consumerfinance.gov/servicemembers. The Better Business Bureau also offers consumer education and advocacy to service members through their Military Line® at www.military.bbb.org. If you need to file a complaint, you can file it with the FTC (p. 103) or the CFPB (p. 93).
KEY INFORMATION RESOURCES

BEWARE: FRAUDS AGAINST SERVICEMEN

Soldiers, sailors, and airmen are an appealing target for scammers, for several reasons. Many servicemembers are young and making major financial decisions for the first time. They receive a steady paycheck, plus reenlistment bonuses and deployment pay. In addition, military families move frequently and do not know which sellers to avoid. Scam artists also know that military personnel are required to keep their finances in good shape and may be more likely to pay a fake debt, to keep their finances in good standing.

You can take steps to protect yourself and your finances:
- Be wary of sellers or “investment professionals” that use their connection to the military to make a sale. This could be a fraud in disguise. See “Beware: Affinity Fraud” (p. 35).
- Protect yourself from identity theft by changing your mailing address when you are restationed.
- Contact the credit reporting agencies to place an active duty alert on your accounts. This limits the ability of ID thieves to apply for credit while a servicemember is deployed.
- Know your rights. The Servicemember Civil Relief Act extends consumers rights to service personnel; there is added protection from default judgments as well as the ability to cancel contracts and leases. Visit www.dmdc.osd.mil/appj/scra for more information.

Commissaries and Exchanges
Consumers who shop at military commissaries and exchanges and who have a question or problem should contact the local manager before contacting the regional office. If your problem is not resolved at the local level, write or call the regional office nearest you.

National Resource Directory
www.nationalresourcedirectory.gov
The National Resource Directory provides wounded, ill, and injured service members, veterans, and their families with a web-based “yellow book.” It has information on the full range of medical and non-medical services and resources needed to achieve their personal and professional goals across the transitions from recovery to rehabilitation to community reintegration. The National Resource Directory, an online partnership of the Departments of Defense, Labor, and Veterans Affairs, provides links to the services and resources of federal, state, and local government agencies; veterans’ service, nonprofit, community-based, and philanthropic organizations; professional associations; and academic institutions.

SaveandInvest.org
www.saveandinvest.org/militarycenter
Whether on-base or deployed overseas, it is crucial that military personnel have access to financial education information that enables them to make prudent saving and investing decisions for themselves and their families. This site offers online and on-the-ground training to support military personnel at key financial milestones.

Unfortunately, the scams don’t stop after you retire from the military; veterans, particularly those age 65 and over, are targeted with financial scams. Fraudulent financial advisors may offer to help you qualify for both your VA Aid and Attendance (A&A) benefits and Medicaid services, by moving your money into a trust. However, you could lose your eligibility for Medicaid services and have to pay back the A&A benefits if this shift does not meet Medicaid’s rules. Plus, this advisor could run off with the money that you have placed in the trust account.

If you are approached with this offer, beware of:
• A financial planner or adviser that calls, mails, or comes to your door offering their services.
• Charges you a fee (from $100 to $1000) to help you apply for benefits; There is no cost for the forms or to apply for VA benefits.
• Urges you to transfer money to a trust or invest in certain financial products in order to qualify for pension benefits.

For more information on these scams read the FTC’s article at www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0349-veterans-pensions. If you have been the victim of a veteran’s benefit scheme, file a complaint with your state’s consumer protection office (p. 107) and the Federal Trade Commission (p. 103).

SOCAP INTERNATIONAL

Many of the companies listed in this Handbook are members of the Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals International (SOCAP). Formed in 1973, SOCAP is composed of over 2,000 best-in-class customer care executives and professionals from over 100 brand name companies throughout the U.S. and Canada. SOCAP is committed to promoting customer care and engagement as competitive advantages. However, SOCAP International does not investigate or accept individual consumer complaints. SOCAP members are identified in the automotive and corporate directories by the SOCAP logo (see Key at right). For more information, contact SOCAP (p.138).

Contacting Your Automotive Manufacturer

If you have a problem with a car purchased from a local dealer, first try to work it out with the dealer. If the problem is not resolved, contact the manufacturer’s regional or national office. Ask for the Consumer Affairs Office.

If you are still unsuccessful, consider contacting the automotive dispute resolution resources listed at the end of this section. The method used to resolve your dispute may be mediation, arbitration, or conciliation. Decisions of arbitrators are usually binding and must be accepted by both the customer and the business. Ask for a copy of the rules of the program before you file your case. See page 55 for an overview of dispute resolution programs.

A local or state consumer agency (p. 107) could also be a useful resource in resolving problems with your vehicle. If you have a new vehicle, be sure to ask whether you have any protection under a state “lemon” law (p. 11).

Contacting Your Local Better Business Bureau

Better Business Bureaus (BBBs) are non-profit organizations that encourage honest advertising and selling practices, and are supported primarily by local businesses. BBBs offer a variety of consumer services, including consumer education materials; business reports, researching unanswered consumer complaints or other problems; mediation and arbitration services; and information about charities and other organizations that are seeking public donations. They also provide ratings (A, B, C, D, or F) of local companies to express the BBB’s confidence that the company operates in a trustworthy manner and demonstrates a willingness to resolve customer concerns.

Complaints should be submitted in writing so that an accurate record exists of the dispute. The BBB will then present the complaint to the company involved. If the complaint is not resolved, the BBB may offer an alternative dispute settlement process. BBBs do not judge or rate individual products or brands, handle employer/employee wage disputes, or give legal advice.

If you need help with a consumer question or complaint, contact your local BBB or visit its website.

BBBOnline (www.bbb.org/online) provides Internet users an easy way to verify the legitimacy of online businesses. Companies carrying the BBBOnline seal have been checked out by the BBB and agree to resolve customer concerns.

The Council of Better Business Bureaus, the umbrella organization for the BBBs, can assist with complaints about the truthfulness and accuracy of national advertising claims, including children’s advertising; provide reports on national soliciting charities; and help to settle disputes with automobile manufacturers through the BBB Auto Line program (p. 64).

1-800-FED-INFO (800-333-4636) 2014 Consumer Action Handbook
To identify the name of a company that manufactures a specific product, check the product label and other documents given to you at the time of your purchase. ThomasNet, an online database of manufacturers, might also be helpful.

If you have a complaint about an item or service, it is usually best to go back to the seller BEFORE you contact the companies in this directory. Follow up with a letter, phone call, or e-mail message to the consumer affairs department of the company to let it know about your complaint and whether the seller was able to resolve your problem. You may express your complaint on a company’s social media profile to get quick attention to your problem.

Contacting Federal Agencies

Many federal agencies have enforcement and/or complaint-handling duties for products and services used by the general public. Others act for the benefit of the public, but do not resolve individual consumer problems. Agencies also create printed publications, and websites that may be helpful when making purchase decisions or dealing with consumer problems. Some agencies provide timely information to citizens through profile pages and videos on social media outlets, blogs, text messages, and news feeds. Call 1-800-333-4636 to get help determining the right agency to contact.

Contacting Your Local Consumer Protection Offices

State, county, and city consumer protection offices offer a variety of important services. They might mediate complaints, conduct investigations, prosecute offenders of consumer laws, license and regulate professionals, provide educational materials, and advocate in the consumer interest.

An advantage of contacting a city or county government office is that it is familiar with local businesses, ordinances, and state laws.

You can also contact your state consumer protection office to get more information about other local resources or nonprofit organizations that help consumers.

Before sending a written complaint, call the office to confirm that it handles the type of complaint you have. Many offices distribute consumer materials specifically geared to state laws and local issues. Ask whether any information is available regarding your problem.

Note: Toll free phone numbers may be restricted to use only within the state listed.

State Banking Authorities

Contacting Your Local Banking Authority

The officials listed below regulate and supervise state-chartered banks. Many of them handle or refer problems and complaints about other types of financial institutions as well. Some also answer general questions about banking and consumer credit. If you are dealing with a federally-chartered bank, check Federal Agencies on page 93. Also see the chart in the Banking section on page 8.

Note: Toll free phone numbers may be restricted to use only within the state listed.

Contacting Your Local Insurance Regulator

The offices listed below enforce laws and regulations for each type of insurance. Many of these offices can also provide you with information to help you make informed insurance-buying decisions. See the Insurance section in Part I of this Handbook for advice (p. 30).

If you have a question or complaint about your insurance company’s policies, contact the company before you contact your state insurance regulator.

Note: Toll free phone numbers may be restricted to use only within the state listed.

STATE INSURANCE REGULATORS
State Securities Administrators

Contacting Your Local Securities Administrator

State securities regulators protect the investing public. Each state has its own laws and regulations for securities brokers and securities, including stocks, mutual funds, commodities, real estate, and more. The agencies listed below enforce these laws and regulations. They also license securities professionals, register securities, and investigate consumer complaints. While these agencies do not provide investment advice, many of them offer educational resources so investors can make informed investment decisions.

If you have a question or complaint about an investment, contact the company involved. If you are not satisfied with the response you get, contact your state securities administrator.

Note: Toll free phone numbers may be restricted to use only within the state listed.

Contacting Your Local Utilities Commission

State utilities commissions regulate services and rates for gas, electricity, and telephones in your state. In some states, the utility commissions regulate other services such as water, transportation, and the moving of household goods. Rates for utilities and services provided between states are regulated by the federal government.

Many utilities commissions handle consumer complaints. Sometimes, if they receive a number of complaints about the same utility matter, they will conduct investigations.

Note: Toll free phone numbers may be restricted to use only within the state listed.

Contacting Trade & Professional Organizations

Companies that manufacture similar products or offer similar services often belong to an industry association. These associations help resolve problems between their member companies and consumers. Most also provide consumer information through publications and websites.

If you have a problem with a company and cannot resolve it by working directly with that firm, ask whether the company is a member of an association. Then check this section to see whether the association is listed. If the association is not included here, your local library has reference materials to help you find the appropriate contact.

This alphabetical index will help you find the right organization to contact for information or for assistance with your complaint. First, look for the specific topic, for example, Cars. Under this topic there will be one or more contacts, followed by the Handbook page number(s). Sometimes you will be directed to “See” another entry for information and a list of contacts. “See also” references direct you to other topics that might be related to your problem and may help you locate the right contact. For company names see the alphabetical listings under “Corporate Consumer Contacts” (p. 70), and “Automotive Manufacturers” (p. 63).
