Federally Qualified Health Center

A Federally Qualified Health Center (FQHC) is a reimbursement designation from the Bureau of Primary Health Care and the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services of the United States Department of Health and Human Services. This designation is significant for several health programs funded under the Health Center Consolidation Act (Section 330 of the Public Health Service Act). An FQHC is a federally funded nonprofit health center or clinic that serves medically underserved areas and populations. Federally qualified health centers provide primary care services regardless of your ability to pay.

Colorado Community Health Network

The Colorado Community Health Network (CCHN) represents Colorado's 18 Community Health Centers (CHCs) that together are the backbone of the primary health care safety-net in Colorado. CCHN is committed to 1) educating policy makers and stakeholders about the unique needs of CHCs and their patients, 2) providing resources to ensure that CHCs are strong organizations, and 3) supporting CHCs in maintaining the highest quality care. <http://cchn.org/>

Colorado Rural Health Center

The Colorado Rural Health Center (CRHC) is an independent, nonprofit, membership-based organization that serves as the State Office of Rural Health for Colorado. CRHC offers programs and services to ensure that rural communities have access to adequate healthcare.

Accountable Care Collaborative

The Accountable Care Collaborative is a new Medicaid program to improve clients' health and reduce costs. Medicaid clients in the ACC will receive the regular Medicaid benefit package and will also belong to a Regional Care Collaborative Organization. Medicaid clients will also choose a Primary Care Medical Provider. The ACC is a central part of Medicaid reform that changes the incentives and health care delivery processes for providers from one that rewards a high volume of services to one that holds them accountable for health outcomes.

Regional Care Collaborative Organizations

A Regional Care Collaborative Organization connects Medicaid clients to Medicaid providers and also helps Medicaid clients find community and social services in their area. There are seven in Colorado.

Indigent Community Mental Health Services

The Colorado Department of Human Services contracts statewide with Community Mental Health Centers, Asian Pacific Center for Human Development and Servicios De La Raza, Inc. to provide mental health services to a limited number of individuals who have been identified as “medically indigent.” These services are identified for children, adolescents, adults and older adults. <http://www.colorado.gov/cs/Satellite/CDHS-BehavioralHealth/CBON/1251584182604>

Accessing Substance Use Services through Managed Service Organizations (MSO)

The Colorado Office of Behavioral Health contracts with regional Managed Service Organizations for the provision of substance use disorder treatment services throughout Colorado. They in turn contract with over 40 local providers to deliver a full continuum of care. <http://www.colorado.gov/cs/Satellite/CDHS-BehavioralHealth/CBON/1251587182404>

Family Planning Program

The goal of the Family Planning Program is to reduce unintended pregnancy by ensuring all Coloradans have access to affordable, quality contraceptive and reproductive health services. More than 70 sites across Colorado offer low-cost confidential family planning and preventive health services including: Birth control information and supplies, pregnancy testing and counseling, screening for sexually transmitted infections and HIV, physical exams for women and men, cervical, breast, and testicular cancer screening, health education and counseling, including information regarding abstinence, basic infertility services, and referrals to other health and social services <https://www.colorado.gov/cdphe/categories/services-and-information/health/personal-and-family-health/sexual-health>

School-Based Health Center Program

School-based health centers are clinics located within school buildings or on school campuses, which provide primary medical and behavioral health care to youth. Centers may also have oral health providers, substance abuse treatment providers, nutritionists, health educators, and Medicaid/CHIP enrollment specialists as part of their staff. Typically, school-based health centers are located in schools where a high proportion of students qualify for free or reduced school lunches as this often coincides with the students being either un- or underinsured. Many centers are also located in federally-designated health care provider shortage areas.
