

NOTICE

Your appeal with the State Personnel Board shows that you are representing yourself. In other words, it does not appear that you have retained an attorney to represent you.

This is to notify you that you might be eligible for legal services from the Civil Practice Clinic operated by the University of Colorado Law School. The Civil Practice Clinic is a nonprofit, educational clinic. The Clinic does not charge attorneys' fees for the services provided by law students under the direction of a law professor.

If you are interested in retaining the Civil Practice Clinic to represent you in your appeal, please contact Zachary Mountin, Director of the Civil Practice Clinic at the University of Colorado Law School. You can reach Professor Mountin at 303-735-8762 or by email at Zachary.Mountin@colorado.edu

The Civil Practice Clinic is not affiliated with the State Personnel Board. The State Personnel Board does not endorse or warrant the services provided by the Civil Practice Clinic.
